T. R. STARTS BOY SCOUT TROOPS AT OYSTER BAY

Organization Develops Efficiency and Virility, He Says.

Oyster Bay, hitherto without Boy Scouts, now has three troops, which were organized as a result of Colonel Roosevelt's criticism at a recent exhibition by scouts from Irvington and Glen Cove on the lawn of Sagamore Hill.

One troop was organized at Grace Episcopal Church, which is attended by Colonel Roosevelt and his family. Carey A. Townsend is the scout master. Colonel Roosevelt signed the application for charter and agreed to serve as a member of the troop committee. In a recent letter the Colonel characterized the scout movement as "distinctly an asset to our country for the development of efficiency, virility and good citizenship."

The total enrollment of the Boy Scouts of America, according to a statement from the organization's headquarters, was 190,483 on July 26, 1916, as against 135,735 for the same day last year.

NEW PLAN TO SWELL BOY SCOUT ARMY FOUND

Lads May Join as Individuals, Not Troop Members.

A movement opening the way for further expansion of the Boy Scout movement was announced yesterday in a statement from the national scout headquarters. The organization has created a "pioneer scout" class.

Hitherto when youngsters from the below-normal grades of the public schools of Texas or other remote sections have written to the national headquarters, asking to be enrolled, the reply has been to "form a troop or join one already organized." In thousands of cases boys found it impossible to do either, because there were not enough boys in their neighborhood to comprise a troop.

The pioneer scout plan will solve this difficulty. Now boys may join the organization individually and as conditions change build up scout units about them.

EBEN D. JORDAN DIES AGED 59

Liberal Patron of Fine Arts.

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 1.—Eben D. Jordan, senior member of the firm of Jordan-Marsh Company, died tonight at his summer home here, as the result of a paralytic stroke he suffered ten days ago. He was fifty-nine years old.

Mr. Jordan was widely known as a patron of fine arts. He was president of the Boston Opera Company, and owned the opera house which he built especially for the company, which served as its home until the abandonment of the enterprise two years ago. He was also a director of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, an honorary director of the Royal Opera, London, and president of the New England Conservatory of Music.

As head of the department store business established by his father, the late Eben Jordan, he was one of the leading merchants of New England. He was also a director of the Globe Newspaper Company, publishers of "The Boston Globe."

Mr. Jordan was a son of the late Eben D. Jordan, who founded the firm in 1841. He traced his ancestry directly to the Rev. Robert Jordan, a clergyman of the same name, who came to this country and settled in what is now the State of Maine, in 1640.

Mr. Jordan was born in Boston, and after being graduated from the Public School of Boston, he attended the Adams Academy. During these years he was in poor health, and had trouble with his eyes. Finally he entered Harvard University, where he completed the course owing to ill health. After a trip to California for his health he entered his father's business as a clerk, working his way up until he became a member of the firm in 1889.

His wife,
