

ASKED DIVINE AID TO LOSE HIS WIFE

Dr. Adler Prayed for Vengeance on Her, She Alleges in Suit.

Dr. Marion S. Adler, of 134 Henry Street, is, or was, a believer in the efficacy of prayer in dissipating marital troubles.

Non-support since July 27 is one of the allegations of Mrs. Adler, but mental cruelty is the chief indictment she brings against her husband.

"O God," said the physician prayed, "help me in this most critical moment to get rid of my present troubles. O God, help me to reform my wife. If that is not possible, dear Almighty, help me get rid of her and let it be soon.

Dr. Adler did not confine his supplications to matrimonial matters, his wife says. He also asked aid in business affairs, as Mrs. Adler cites the following prayer to show:

"O God, help me get rid of my wife. O God, help me sell the house at Coney Island to some good people at a good price on good conditions.

Will the Great War be decided where it commenced? "After Rumania--what will Bulgaria do?"

THE ALLIED MILLSTONES.

At last Rumania has jumped into the maelstrom of fighting nations.

What can Bulgaria do to evade the Russo-Rumanian onslaught from the north and the allied drive now starting from Saloniki?

Frank H. Simonds

justly declares in his crystal-clear analysis of the Balkan tangle, in next Sunday's Tribune, that "the war has seen few more dramatic moments than the present."

Is Bulgaria the Central Powers' forlorn hope? This vital question may decide the war! Read Simonds' answer next Sunday, and see if you agree with him.
