

Unusual Photographs of the Ceaseless Conflict in Europe.

French line in France masons are kept busy building the bodies of the dead. © Paul Thompson.

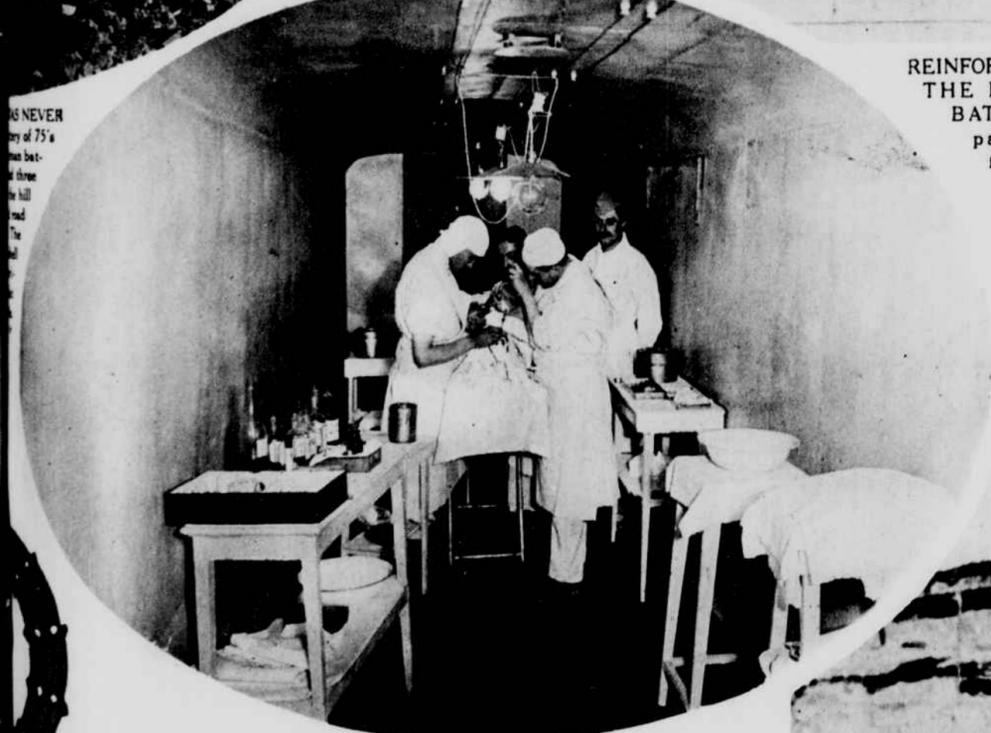

REINFORCEMENTS IN THE HEIGHT OF BATTLE. A company of French fighters making their way, through the streets of a ruined village, to relief duty in the first line of trenches. © Underwood & Underwood.

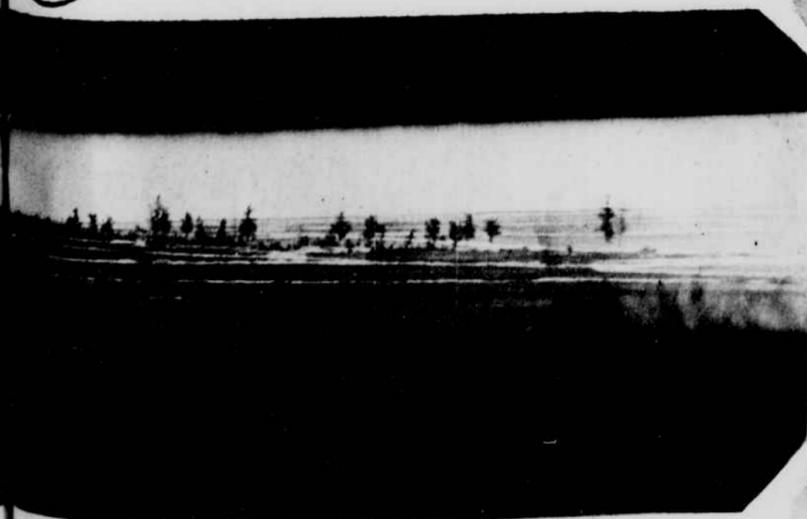

WAR MAKES ITS OWN GRAVEYARDS. A company of French soldiers fought splendidly behind this wall. Each was buried where he fell. A cross and a flag of white cloth were erected over the graves. Pack Photo News, Inc.

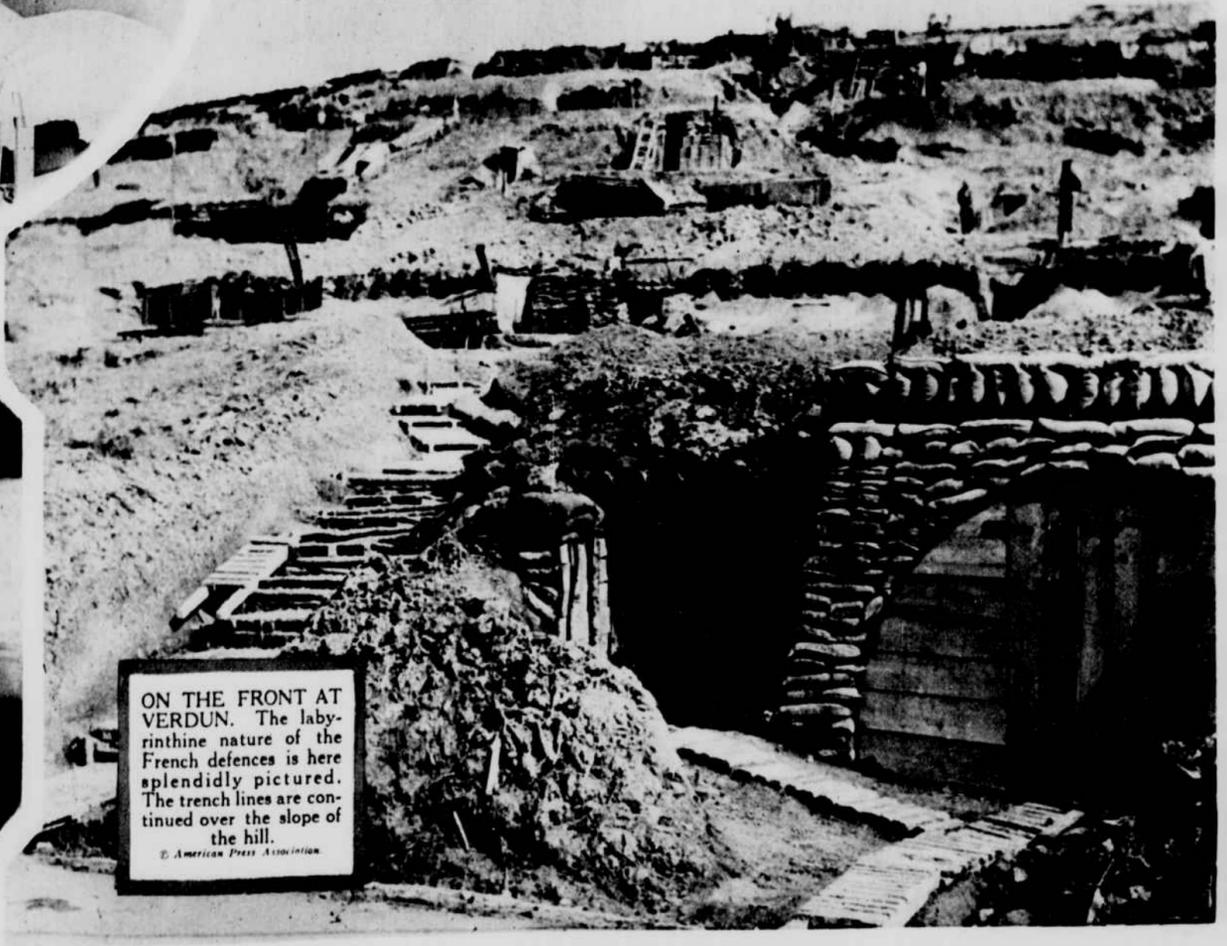

IN THE CATHEDRAL OF SOISSONS. Never ending assaults of heavy German shells have piled debris high in the interior of this beautiful edifice. Every window is riddled with small shot. © Paul Thompson.

A SUBTERRANEAN HOSPITAL. The operation chamber, with a wounded soldier under the ether, in a neatly contrived field station in the Marne. © Paul Thompson.

Lines look from a dugout observation station before the Marne. © Paul Thompson.

ON THE FRONT AT VERDUN. The labyrinthine nature of the French defenses is here splendidly pictured. The trench lines are continued over the slope of the hill. © American Press Association.