

MRS. BOISSEVAIN'S BODY NOW HOME

Reaches Westport Draped in an American Flag, a Los Angeles Tribute

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.)
Westport, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Covered with the flag of her country, the casket containing the body of Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain arrived here shortly after noon today from California, accompanied only by her father, John E. Milholland. It had been intended to take the body to New York for the funeral service, at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, which Mrs. Boissevain had attended from her girlhood. But at Chicago, Mr. Milholland decided, that despite the recent snow and cold weather, the ground would permit interment at the ancestral home of the Milhollands.

Mrs. Milholland left the funeral car at Albany and proceeded to New York, to be present at the memorial services. She will come here later with the other members of the family for the funeral, which will be held Tuesday afternoon from the Congregational Church, at Lewis.

The flag with which the casket was draped was the gift of a prominent Los Angeles man, who asked the privilege of thus testifying to his admiration "for one of the bravest and most unselfish women the world had seen since the days of Joan of Arc."

A large number of residents of this village, who had known Inez Milholland as child, girl and woman, were at the station to meet the funeral train and thus show their respect for the deceased.

Few of her friends could bear to send cold, white flowers for the funeral of Mrs. Boissevain. In life she was brilliant and beautiful; in death her friends thought only of American beauty roses. The altar of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church was covered with them yesterday afternoon, while a small group of those nearest the young suffragist gathered there for a brief funeral service. Dr. Charles Parkhurst officiated.

Mrs. John Milholland, Miss Vida Milholland and John Milholland, Jr., were the only members of the family present.

Out of respect for the wishes of Mrs. Boissevain's family the service was private, and the large numbers of suffragists who had planned to attend stayed away. Later, a memorial meeting will be arranged by the suffragists and other organizations with which Mrs. Boissevain was identified.

MISSING WOMAN STARVED

Physicians Say Mrs. Carey, Discovered in Bungalow, Was Not Murdered
Physicians declared yesterday after an autopsy that Mrs. Theresa Carey, whose body was discovered in a vacant bungalow at Coney Island on Friday, had died from starvation and a weak heart. A bruise on her head, which had led to the suspicion of murder, was the result of falling against a stove in the bungalow, it was said.

Mrs. Carey, who was sixty-eight years old, lived at 519 Eleventh Street, Brooklyn. She had been missing since November 19. Her husband, a policeman, was killed twenty-four years ago, and her mind had been weakened by the tragedy. She had a daughter, Miss Helen Carey, a teacher, and two sons, Dr. J. J. M. Carey and Benjamin Carey.

NOT A MOURNER ATTENDS BURIAL OF MARY GOODE

Procession Is Unnoticed in District Where Woman Aided City's Erring Girls

A coach filled with flowers, followed by a hearse, turned from Thirty-seventh Street into Sixth Avenue yesterday and plodded northward. It was the funeral procession of Mary Goode, and it wended its way toward Calvary Cemetery, unnoticed through the district whose secrets she had bared.

The funeral service consisted of a requiem mass celebrated by the Rev. Father Walsh at the Church of the Holy Innocents, on West Thirty-seventh Street. Although there were many flowers, no names accompanied the gifts. No mourners attended the funeral; no eyes turned to follow the coffin of the woman who had aroused a city with her revelations.

Funeral expenses were borne by the undertaker, Peter J. Deoling, who was the only escort to the cemetery. On the coffin was engraved the name "M. E. Bell," under which Mrs. Goode had been most frequently known since she emerged from the underworld and began helping others. Her real name was Mary Elizabeth Butler. At the time of her death she was at work on a history of her life.

AUTO RACER KILLS HUGHEY HUGHES AND ANOTHER

Several Injured When Automobile Crashes Into Stand at Uniontown

Uniontown, Penn., Dec. 2.—Hughy Hughes and Gaston Weigel were killed, Frank Galvin was injured, probably fatally, and several other persons were hurt near the end of the Universal Trophy automobile race at the Uniontown Speedway today.

Others who were injured included Richard Adams and Edward F. Kovel.

of New York; Richard Spavin, of Pittsburgh; Elmer Putman, of Uniontown; L. H. Conger, of Akron; J. J. Daugherty and W. L. Myers, of Philadelphia, all spectators; Herbert Smith, a Pittsburgh newspaper man, and Montgomery McCormick, a constable on duty at the track.

Hughes had run his car into the guard rail near the centre of the speedway during the sixty-second lap of the race because of engine trouble, and had walked to the press stand when Galvin came tearing down the track.

When almost opposite the stand Galvin seemed to lose control of his car, and it shot with lightning speed toward the stand which Hughes had reached scarcely a moment before.

Hughes saw his danger, but had no chance to escape, for he, with Galvin and Weigel, Galvin's mechanic, were buried in the wreckage.

Persons on the stand were knocked down by the impact, Smith being caught in the splintering timbers.

BRYAN'S PORTRAIT ON VIEW

Canvas for Capitol Shows Him with "Peace Plan" in Hand
The portrait of William Jennings Bryan, paid for by the United States government and destined to hang among the pictures of other Secretaries of State in the Capitol at Washington, has been completed.

On Thanksgiving Day the first public exhibition of the canvas was held in the studio of Irvine R. Wiles, its artist. It portrays the upper three-quarters of Mr. Bryan, arrayed in frock coat, black bow tie and low turndown collar. The left hand grips what might be taken for a Chautauqua contract were it not for the words "Peace Plan" showing at the top of the scroll.

Mr. Wiles also has painted a bust portrait of Mrs. Bryan, which will be sent West to hang in the Bryan home. Mr. Bryan attended the first viewing and expressed his satisfaction with both pictures.

COURT CRITICISES LAWYER

Orders Accounting for Porter Who Won $12,500 Verdict, Got $2,500
Joseph W. Clausen, attorney for Cornelius W. Driscoll in a suit against a hotel where he had been injured while employed as a porter, is criticized by the Appellate Division for his handling of the porter's case. Although Driscoll obtained a verdict for $12,500 against the hotel, he only received $2,500 of the sum, according to his statement.

After $12,500 had been awarded him, Driscoll said, a man representing himself as a clerk in Clausen's office called on him and said that the case looked desperate, and that he had better take what he could get from a man who would "gamble on the decision of the higher court." Driscoll said he signed a paper and received $2,500.

Justice Dowling, for the Appellate Division, said that the lawyer did not appear to have discharged his duty, and reversed the decision of the lower court, which denied an accounting to Driscoll.
