London Takes Serious View of Diplomatic Breach—Radicals in Stockholm Condemn Foreign Office Policy—Even German Public Aroused

By Arthur S. Draper

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Although it has remained dormant for the past three days, the Swedish situation is by no means settled.

People Kip in the Dark

The whole situation from beginning to end has been an example of the worst side of secret diplomacy. The Allies agree with Wilson that their quarrel is not with the Swedish people, but with the diplomats.

Organized Practice Shown

This dissatisfaction was indicated in the Associated Press interview obtained yesterday with Lord Robert Cecil, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs and Minister of Blockade, who is acting in behalf of Foreign Secretary Balfour in the latter's absence.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 15.—Camouflage by the gun crew of a British steamer tricked a German U-boat commander into the belief that he was attacking an unarmed merchant vessel and caused him to manœuvre his boat so that the gunners of the merchant vessel were able to send him and all on board to the bottom, was told to-day by an officer of the British ship, which has just arrived here.

British Ship Brings Story of Trick by Which Submarine Was Sunk

The steamer was nearing a French port with a cargo of foodstuffs and ammunition when the U-boat appeared. "The German was seen some distance away when we first saw him," said the British officer, "and at the time he was watching us through the periscope. The gun crew was all ready. Our big gun was hidden behind a screen, which covered the entire stern and which had been painted, both at starboard and port, to look like lifeboats. The U-boat came on. When about twenty yards off the command, evidently having satisfied himself that we were unarmed, ordered the vessel sunk by bombs."
