

News From the Training Camps Changes in National Guard Radical Shifts Made In Guard Commands

Permanent Personnel of Spartanburg Division Is Announced

Place Found for Reserve Officers

Those in Second Line Will Be Yaphank Drillmasters

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Oct. 8.—Staff officers who have been laboring for several days in arranging the personnel of officers for the new reorganized 27th Division have completed their work, and the result became known to-night. Officers in second line regiments which have been reduced to skeleton organizations that the men might be used to bring the first line commands up to full war strength are gratified in scores of instances to find that they have been put into the fighting divisions.

A number of the 27th Division units, such as the old 7th Regiment, retain practically all of their officers and gain a number of additional ones because of the increased size of the regiment. There was disappointment for the reserve officers who have been temporarily attached to the first line regiments. Many had supposed that they would be continued with the commands to which they were attached. It is supposed now that many will be sent into the second line regiments or to Yaphank to handle the draft army.

Drill Masters Needed A number of officers of first line regiments have been sent to second line regiments. It is pointed out that efforts were made to retain sufficient drill masters that they may whip the second line troops into shape. It should be stated in fairness to the majority of the officers sent to the second line commands that they have been so chosen because of their ability as drill masters to handle the raw troops, who will succeed to the ranks made vacant by the withdrawal of trained National Guardsmen.

The 104th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of men and officers of the 1st New York Cavalry. It will be commanded by Major Edward McLean, Jr. The 104th Infantry, the old 2d Regiment, will receive a number of officers from the 1st and 12th regiments. From the 23d Regiment it gets Lieutenant Colonel Morris Liebmann.

Officers who will go to the 105th from the 7th are: Captain William H. Ely, Captain Stephen A. De Laney, Captain Frank R. Potter, Captain Raymond S. Hodgson, Captain Henry Maslin, Captain George S. Terry, Captain Ernest W. Strong, Captain Stanley Buckley, First Lieutenant Harry Mearz, First Lieutenant John J. Callahan, First Lieutenant Edward C. Thomas, First Lieutenant Ernest C. Dreher, First Lieutenant Frederick E. Lovell, First Lieutenant Charles H. Scott, First Lieutenant Alexander Grant, First Lieutenant John J. Lane, First Lieutenant Henry L. Conroy, First Lieutenant William L. Forbes, Jr., First Lieutenant James H. George, Second Lieutenant Albert E. Comstock, George G. Fleming, Robert C. Merivether, Richard P. Powers, Kelsey O'Connor, Leon A. Eben, Edwin W. Scherzer, Leo J. Giblin, Lawrence P. Clark, Marvin L. Atkins, Francis J. Ridgeway.

Shifted From the Twelfth Those from the 12th Regiment are Major Sidney De Kay, First Lieutenants G. M. Bramwell, G. G. R. Ross and J. V. Dowling, Second Lieutenants C. B. Cattus, A. B. Swathmore, John Wells and Edward B. Gere.

The 106th Infantry, formerly the 25d New York, receives a large quota of officers from the 12th Regiment, as follows: Major G. G. Hollander, Captains Harry C. Surratt, Foster G. Hezel, William E. Blaisdell, Arthur V. McDermott, Rosseter Holbrook, John C. Hardy, Stanley W. Purce and James G. Conroy, First Lieutenants Joseph L. Gilman, John A. Nelson, Charles G. Ostberg, Matthew J. Wilson, Harry F. Sullivan, Albert Clements, Ira I. Hodas, Thomas F. Ward, Joseph A. A. Kerrigan, Alfred J. Hoos, Herbert E. Marshall, Jr., and Ivan L. Smith; Second Lieutenants John W. Moran, Louis Peterson, James H. Doyle, George W. Hernandez, Grover C. Cleaver, Willard M. Webster, Frank L. Stephenson, Franklin J. Jackson and Joseph F. Curtis.

From the 7th Regiment the 106th gets Major Walter De Lamater; from the 12th Regiment it gets Major H. S. Bildeath, First Lieutenant Murray Taylor, J. F. Callahan and F. D. Clark; Second Lieutenants Ivan Fenty, J. B. Post and A. R. Elluman.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Infantry, the old 3d Regiment, draws the greater portion of its additional officers from the 7th of Buffalo. It also gets the following from the 12th: First Lieutenant Reginald Durrant, W. R. Turner and L. H. Butt; Second Lieutenants W. De F. Manice and P. C. Thebaud.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of officers and men from the 1st New York Cavalry, under command of Major Charles M. Pearson. The 102d Trench Mortar Battery, an altogether new organization, will be made up of officers and enlisted men from the 1st Cavalry. The officers of the new unit will be: Captain Charles A. Pearson, First Lieutenant Harry R. Dikko and Second Lieutenant Richard F. Cloak.

The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

The 106th Machine Gun Battalion is made up of the officers and men of Squadron A, under command of Major William R. Wright. The 10th Regiment of Infantry, the old 7th, loses but one officer, its lieutenant colonel. As lieutenant colonel it gets James M. Hutchison, of the 7th. It gains a number of line officers from the 1st Regiment, from which comes its greatest quota of enlisted men to bring it to full war strength. It also gains the following officers from the 12th Regiment: First Lieutenant J. J. Koen, Second Lieutenants Arthur Talbot, P. K. Rhineland, Gaines Gathway and Carey Wahradt.

DRAFTED MEN TAKE THE "KAISER," A CAPTIVE, TO YAPHANK

Robert Kenny impersonated the German Emperor and Louis Annachiaro was Uncle Sam in the parade yesterday.

"Kaiser" Entrains With Drafted Men In Sham Battles At Plattsburg

Handcuffed to Uncle Sam, He Leaves With Contingent for Yaphank

"Kaiser Wilhelm" accompanied the drafted National Army men of the fourth contingent who went to Camp Upton, at Yaphank, Long Island, yesterday morning. He was the only one of the 1,716 selected men who left under compulsion.

Dressed in military boots and full military regalia, the "Kaiser" was securely handcuffed to Uncle Sam, who was supported by soldiers and a sailor. A sign reading, "Mit Gott für König und Vaterland," was attached to the "Kaiser."

The graphic presentation of what every one of the selected men seemed to be hoping for was provided by the drafted men of Local Exemption Board 94, with headquarters at 153 Baxter Street. Robert Kenny, clerk of the board, impersonated the Kaiser, and Louis Annachiaro took the part of Uncle Sam.

Chinese in Parade These two men headed a parade of fifty-five drafted men from the lower East Side. In the party yesterday was Foo H. Wang, leader in the Chinatown district; Danny Kester, a pugilist, and John Fertelli, a patrolman. Leon Cadore, a pitcher on the Brooklyn baseball team, was in the contingent.

From the 7th Infantry to the 14th, Major James E. Schuyler. From the 7th to the 12th, Lieutenant Colonel Robert McLean. Major Thomas H. McClintock, of the medical staff of the 104th Infantry, is transferred to the 12th Infantry.

Several officers, having been rendered surplus by the reorganization order, are assigned temporary duty. Captain David B. Mohler, of the New York Train, to the 102d Engineers. Enlisted men of the 7th New York who are absent at training camps will be transferred to the 7th Regiment, and men of the 23d Regiment similarly will be transferred to the 14th Infantry.

The order making the change in the personnel of officers becomes effective to-morrow morning. As soon as possible the shift of enlisted men will be made.

Pair Separated by Draft When Father Promises To Support Paer's Wife

The selective service law offers a new way to get rid of a son-in-law. It was alleged before the District Board, over which Charles E. Hughes presides, yesterday, Archie Paer, of 2079 Daly Avenue, The Bronx, sought exemption because he has a dependent wife, but his claim was weakened by the fact that his father-in-law offered to support the wife while Paer was fighting.

Fort Myer Men on Hike Student Officers Go to Edsall, Va., for Rifle Practice

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Several of the companies of student officers at the Reserve Officers' training camp at Fort Myer left this morning for Edsall, Va., where they will spend several days in range practice and drills.

Army Officer Shot In Blind Tiger Raid In Blind Tiger Raid

Lieutenant, Felled by Bullet, Mortally Wounds Spartanburg Resident

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Oct. 8.—As the result of a battle with revolvers shortly before dawn this morning, William Lands, of this city, is dying in a hospital to-night and Lieutenant Randall M. Matson is in another. The lieutenant is seriously wounded, but may recover.

Lieutenant Matson, whose home is in Rochester, was on duty last night with the second company of the military police, operating between Spartanburg and Camp Wadsworth. Matson, with a detail of men, armed with night sticks, was sent to close the "moonshine" dispensaries.

After closing one place the military police went to see one which Lands is charged with conducting. Matson ordered his men to surround the house, which is in a lonely spot. He then called to the men inside to come out. A voice replied, saying: "Wait a minute, until I get my clothes on."

Suddenly the front door was thrown open and two shots were fired directly at the lieutenant. One bullet struck Matson in the groin and as he went to his knees he drew his automatic. A third shot went over the officer's head. Matson fired four times in the direction of the door. Each bullet found its target.

The soldiers rushed up to find their commander on his knees. A few yards from him lay Lands, with two bullets in his chest and two in the legs. Two other men, who ran out of the house at the sound of the shooting, were captured by the soldiers. The wounded officer was rushed to the Steady Hospital, where an immediate operation was performed. Lands was taken to another institution. He is sixty years old and a resident of Spartanburg.

Although the military police have had a number of encounters with sellers of "blackade" whiskey, this is the first shooting affair. The soldiers have conducted their raids heretofore simply armed with night sticks, but as a result of this morning's affair, it is expected the men will carry firearms on future raids.

Camp Wadsworth set out to raise a million dollars for the new Liberty Loan, it was announced to-day. The War Department is seeking to stir up a race between the various divisions of the army. The 27th is confident of reaching the million mark. Major Edward Olmsted, assistant chief of staff, will be in charge of the loan in camp. A huge thermometer will be erected in front of headquarters and will indicate each day's subscriptions. It was announced to-day that the 1st Battalion of the 2d Field Artillery, which has been on duty at Fort Niagara, will arrive in camp on Wednesday.

Last Day Squadron A and First Cavalry Leave To-day

New York will bid a final farewell to Squadron A to-day. The famous organization will entrain for Spartanburg this morning, and with its departure its famous old name will vanish utterly from the list of the nation's warriors. In the afternoon 900 members of the 1st Cavalry, with headquarters in Brooklyn, will follow the men of Squadron A to Camp Wadsworth.

In Spartanburg the men of both organizations, which will officially pass out of existence to-day, will be known henceforth as part of the 106th Machine Gun Battalion of the 27th Brigade. The city's last chance to see Squadron A as a cavalry unit will come at 9:30 this morning, when the men will leave their armory for their farewell march down the avenue. At Sixtieth Street they will be met by the United States Navy Band, commanded by Lieutenant John Philip Sousa, which will escort them to the foot of Twenty-third Street. Major Mitchell and Major General Brigman will review the squadron at the Union League Club.

Squadron A broke camp at Van Courthout Park yesterday and arrived at its armory, Madison Avenue and Ninety-fourth Street, in the early evening. Twenty-five large motor trucks conveyed its equipment. Under the command of Major Mortimer Bryan, the 1st Cavalry will break camp at Bay Ridge this morning. Because 600 men of this organization are already at Spartanburg, no formal ceremony will accompany the departure.

Noted Horse Trainer Dead John Powers, a noted horse trainer, who handled Jack Atkins and Nealon, and who for the last several years had been in charge of the stable of W. P. Orr, died suddenly at Mr. Orr's residence, 193 East Eighty-fourth Street, yesterday from acute indigestion.

3 Morris Cohens On Anxious List At Camp Upton

Exemption Is Granted One of Them, but Which, Nobody Knows

CAMP UPTON, Long Island, Oct. 8.—Every third selected man encountered in Camp Upton to-day either had just yawned, was yawning or was about to yawn. There were hundreds of officers, too, whose eyes were ringed with dark circles, and who looked generally as if they had had a bad night of it. As a matter of fact they had, and so had the 7,000 rookies of the ranks whose good conduct had won them a week end in town.

The words these tired men exchanged concerning service on the Long Island Railroad were vivid, but not always pretty to hear. Even at the reduced rate which the men and officers of the National Army enjoy, none of the travellers felt he had got any particular bargain on the last trips out of camp and back again.

Some sixty-three miles lie between New York City and Camp Upton. Ordinarily the road negotiates them in two hours or so. On Saturday afternoon the city-bound soldier specials were four hours on the way. Men who had passed up the midway meal to be sure of a seat in the first section, scheduled to leave at 1:30, were twelve hours without food. They did not reach New York until 10 o'clock in the evening, and it in the morning had been breakfast time for them.

From passengers on one section came the complaint that the last leg of the journey—from Jamaica on in—had taken three-quarters of an hour. Actuated by a high sense of duty to the road, the conductor is reported to have kept the train dawdling while he made sure that no one had slipped aboard to deadhead his way over the last few miles.

On the way back not only was the time even slower, but conditions were infinitely worse. Men and officers were jammed into cars together in a super-subway style. The vast majority were compelled to stand up for five or six straight hours. The first section pulled out at 11:44 last night. Men and officers alike had looked forward to getting some sleep aboard it, for reveille meant to them the beginning of a full day's work.

But the only ones who got any sleep were men who crawled aloft into the baggage racks. Every man who had a seat held another man on his knees. Some seats were not occupied as seats at all, it having been discovered that more persons could stand than sit upon them.

The platforms, too, were crowded by men and officers who hadn't been able to force their way into the cars. That made wintry riding, as a lieutenant colonel and a major, among others, discovered.

Hard though the travelling out of camp may be, there are three men in G Company of the 36th Infantry who are anxious to make the journey. They are, as the company roster has them: Morris Cohen, No. 1; Morris Cohen, No. 2; and Morris Cohen, No. 3. The Cohens—strangers until they were thrown together in the same barracks—haven't been exactly enthusiastic over the prospect of active service in France. All, in fact, had filed exemption claims.

To-day there came into the hands of Captain Charles M. Bull, jr., of G Company commander, a telegram addressed to Morris Cohen. It was signed by one H. Cohen, and briefly informed the addressee: "Exemption claim granted. Papers are on the way."

Captain Bull called Morris Cohen No. 1 into the orderly room and read the message to him. "It's me," cried Morris Cohen the first. "Got 'em, didn't I? Goodby, captain Goodby. God bless you!" Just on speculation, Captain Bull sent for Morris Cohen No. 2. "My prayers have been heard," devoutly insisted this Cohen. "Must I stay for the papers?" Then Morris Cohen No. 3 was heard from. He went when the news was read to him. He had always felt sure there was some mistake about the denial of his exemption plea.

Only "the papers" will decide the Cohen problem, and they haven't arrived yet. In the meantime the three Morris Cohens are having one another more with each fleeting moment.

Advertising and its Relation to War Conditions Economy is something that should be practiced with judgment. Every man must be his own judge in practicing it—always remembering that it is not good economy if it is not practiced with THRIFT.

If we all stopped eating, if we all stopped buying Liberty Bonds or if we all stopped advertising—that would not be economy, because we could not carry on the war or business. It is WHAT we eat, HOW we help the government and the KIND of advertising we do that constitute REAL economy.

We venture to predict that there will be more money spent in thrifty advertising this year than ever before. But there will also be more economy practiced in buying advertising and more delving into statistics of circulation, quality, records of results and cost per thousand than there have been in the past.

Retail merchants and national advertisers will soon find that they cannot capture the New York market with a fly swatter. This is one place where you have to use the big stick and go into every street and capture the shy customer with a card in the (surface) street cars when the people are out buying. Write for rates of any part or all of Manhattan, Bronx, Richmond (Statens Island) or Westchester. New York City Car Advertising Co. (The Surface Cars) 225 Fifth Avenue Telephone, Madison Sq. 4680 JESSE WINBURN, President Study the Cards—We Have a Standard

OBEDIENT DOCTOR Real Coffee—The kind that does not start your heart jumping. KAFFEE HAG 95% CAFFEINE FREE

DASHWOOD HAS THE NEW LAPEL FRONT 2 for 35 EARL'S WISLON TROY'S BEST PRODUCT