

Nation-Wide War On Things German Has Started Here

Suppression of Teuton Papers and Language Sought by Security League

Demands Loyal Conduct Membership of 100,000 to Join in Americanization Crusade

A nation-wide crusade against German language newspapers and the teaching of German in the public schools was announced yesterday by the National Security League.

Marshaling this army will be four editors and publishers. They are Colonel Charles E. Lydecker, a trustee of the College of the City of New York and chairman of the National Security League's Board of Directors; Edward H. Clark, treasurer of the Security League; Ernest C. Brown, editor and publisher, and Dr. Robert M. McBryer, educational director of the University of Princeton University.

The committee has sent instructions to the chairmen and secretaries of every branch asking them to call meetings to express a one-language sentiment, to publish articles, to procure the cooperation of newsmen in restricting their circulation.

Insist on Open Loyalty Colonel Lydecker's committee has elaborated this plan of attack in the following notice:

"The presence of a large number of persons in the country who profess loyalty to the government but who foster the traditions, maxims, speech and principles of the enemy government by suggestion, innuendo and conversation, is a conspiracy against the national interest. It is a conspiracy to bring about a change in the national policy, to neglect to learn it is voluntarily to remain unfit for the duties of American citizenship.

"We are justified in expecting open loyalty from those who profess to be Americans. We are entitled to know their minds and to know their hearts. We are entitled to know their minds and to know their hearts. We are entitled to know their minds and to know their hearts.

"Great patience has been exercised in our efforts to convince the foreigners. In the case of those not now convinced, justice to the cause for which we fight demands stronger measures. We must be compelled to convince ourselves of the value and the justice of American ideals, and this requires a knowledge of the English language.

"There is no immediate need to have laws enacted to suppress the foreign language dailies. In towns where there is a strong patriotic sentiment, a host of patriotic citizens are being persuaded by a clear and forceful expression of the views of the majority that ours must be, from this time forward, a 'city' language nation.

Prof. C. C. Trowbridge, Of Columbia, Dies

Scientist Gained Fame as Physicist and Student of Natural Phenomena

Charles Christopher Trowbridge, assistant professor of physics in Columbia University and member of the university teaching staff since 1892, died at Roosevelt Hospital yesterday after a brief illness. He was born April 26, 1870.

Professor Trowbridge was known for his interest in a wide range of natural phenomena as well as for his work in physics. He had made contributions to the knowledge of meteors and of the mechanics of bird flight, besides carrying on laboratory investigation in fields of modern physics.

Professor Trowbridge was the son of General William P. Trowbridge, for many years head of the department of engineering at Columbia. He is survived by three sisters, Miss K. H. Trowbridge, Mrs. F. G. Ingersoll and Mrs. J. M. Toumey, of New Haven, and by two brothers, William P. Trowbridge, of Seattle, and G. Frank Parkman Trowbridge, of New York.

He was an alumnus of Trinity College, having been graduated in 1892. In 1903 he received from that institution the degree of M. S., and five years later the honorary degree of Sc. D. He was a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a member of the American Astronomical Society, the New York Academy of Sciences, Sigma Xi and Delta Psi.

Funerary services will be held in St. Paul's chapel, Columbia, Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. Interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery, New Haven.

Upstate Cities Tied up by Strike of Traction Men Albany, Troy and Other Places Affected by Demand for More Pay

ALBANY, June 2.—Streetcar service was at a standstill to-day in Albany, Schenectady, Troy, Green Island, Waterford, Cohoes, Watervliet and Rensselaer, the electric railway employees of the United Traction Company and the Schenectady Railroad Company having made good their threat to strike if not given the increase in pay demanded. The only electric cars entering Albany were those of the Albany Southern Railroad, which runs between here and Hudson.

Federal representatives, who have been here for several days in an effort to prevent a strike, owing to the large number of persons employed at the Watervliet Arsenal and at Schenectady who have depended upon streetcar service to reach their work, continued their labors to-day, but had not met with any known results to-night.

Preparations were made as soon as it appeared that a strike was inevitable with the Delaware and Hudson Railroad to operate special trains for munition workers. Federal agents also arranged for special motor bus service in the various cities.
