Super-Police Force Bill Vetted; Hylan Denies Wanting It

Also Tells Governor Smith Enright Had No Hand in Drafting Measure; Says It Could Have Been Improved

Mayor Hylan yesterday vetoed the Walker bill establishing a super police force of 25,000 members and sent it to the Governor a memorandum in which he denied that he or Police Commissioner Enright had any hand in drafting the measure.

The bill was jammed through the Legislature over the protests of its introducer, Senator James J. Walker, who sought to kill it. Every New York City member of the lower house, with three exceptions, voted solidly against it.

It was rumored that high officials in the Hylan administration had prevailed on friends of Thaddeus C. Sweet, Speaker of the Assembly, to put the measure through.

When the measure, which would have exempted all these men from all civil service restrictions, while em-

Delmonico Patrons Pledge $250,000 to Meet Coming Drouth

Three Plans Suggested to Remodel Historic Restaurant on "Dry" Basis; Hotels to Abandon Grills

In a private dining room at Delmonico's last night a committee of patrons of the historic old restaurant, inspired by wine that was brought solemnly in cobbeted bottles from the deepest recesses of the famous cellar, tried to solve the question: "What's to be done with dry Delmonico's after July 1?"

After they had reached their coffee they agreed to underwrite the reorganization of the restaurant on a prohibition basis for $250,000.

Among the patrons present were Dr. Bentley Squires, Eli Frost, Colonel Thomas Mann, of "Town Topics," August Sills, George McAnany, Stanwood Henke, Major Little, and several others.

Then, too, there was present Rene Fisher, for many years maitre d'hotel, and now risen to the dignity of assistant manager, due to the reversion of Maurice Dewitson, attorney, who took over the tangled affairs of the place last October, when indebtedness of $200,000 threatened bankruptcy. Mr. Davidson was there also.

At the request of the committee of patrons he suggested three courses to offset the $100,000 annual loss that will be due to prohibition.

First, the building could be altered. Renting store space on Fifth Avenue would bring $75,000 annually. Private dining rooms upstairs could be transformed into about eighty apartments, consisting of one room and bath each. This alone, he explained, would overcome the monetary loss caused by prohibition.

But the Harriman National Bank, which owns the property, wants Delmonico's to move. Mr. Davidson thought that could be adjusted in the courts.

Second, the restaurant could be moved to Park Avenue into less expensive quarters. Would all the patronage follow?

Third, there was the possibility of continuing in the present location, without alterations and developing the special catering service for private parties until the loss caused by prohibition was overcome.

After considerable discussion the patrons suspended definite action and suggested that invitations be extended

Father Duffy Will Be Honored by Whole City

Plans Complete for Big Parade on Grand Concourse Tomorrow Afternoon

Delegations from all sections of New York will make The Bronx their foregrounding place to-morrow, when the people of that borough turn out to honor Chaplain Major Francis P. Duffy, hero "sky-pilot" of the 16th Infantry, New York's old "Fighting 6th."

More than 25,000 marchers, including military and civic organizations, church societies and children's associations, will march down the Woodrow Wilson Parkway, from 181st Street to Kingsbridge Road, as a tribute to the priest who went out from among their community and won the lasting affection of his "doughboys" and a decoration for bravery.

Religious lines have been erased in the enthusiasm of the community to honor the chaplain. Jew and gentile and all religious denominations will be in line.

In the reviewing stand, north of 181st Street, state and city officials, military officers and church dignitaries will be seated. Governor Smith, Mayor Hylan, the Governor's military staff and Archbishop Hayes, together with other clergymen, will review the parade.

YOUR TOWN

CREWEY SQUARE, at Thirty-third Street and Broadway, with its budding little patch of greenward, would be a pleasant spot to store and hotel patrons of the vicinity if it were given a cleaner and pleasanter air.

For a long time the spot has been littered with paper and rubbish, large chunks of rotting wood and piles of rusty iron bars. They have been there, says the storekeepers, for months, and spite the fact that construction on the subway at that point was finished long ago.

Some say that if the unsightly material isn't removed soon they will clean the place up themselves.
