

World Peace Idea Fathered by Carnegie

about 5 feet 4 inches in height. He weighed about 150 pounds. His hair and beard in late life were quite white. He had small hands and feet, blue eyes, a small, rather thick nose and a determined mouth. He spoke with a decided accent when animated or excited, and it required no great discernment to see that he was a Scotchman. He was not a churchman in the usual sense, and some people even went so far as to contend he was an atheist. His favorite game was checkers, although he was a good whist player.

His "Hall of Fame."
Mr. Carnegie's estimate of his fellow men was set forth a few years ago in an address in the Young Men's League of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, when he named the twenty-one men who since the Dark Ages had most notably bettered the world. The list as follows:

- Archimedes, Sir Richard—Inventor of the cotton spinning machine.
- Bell, Dr. Alexander—Inventor of the telephone.
- Bessemer, Sir Henry—Inventor of the steel process that bears his name.
- Burns, Robert—The Scotch poet.
- Columbus, Christopher—The discoverer.
- Edison, Thomas Alva—The electrician.
- Franklin, Benjamin—The electrical pioneer.
- Gutenberg, Johannes—The inventor of the printing press.
- Hargreaves, James—Inventor of the carding machine and the spinning jenny.
- Jenner, Dr. Edward—Discoverer of smallpox vaccine.
- Kay, John—Inventor of the fly-shuttle and the carding machine.
- Lincoln, Abraham—Abolished slavery.
- Morton, Dr. William Thomas—Discoverer of the anesthetic properties of ether.
- Murdoch, William—Perfected coal gas for illuminating purposes.
- Musket, Robert—Inventions used in the manufacture of steel.
- Neilson, James Beaumont—The inventor of the hot blast used in the manufacture of iron.
- Shakespeare, William—Playwright.
- Siemens, Sir William—Inventions used in the manufacture of steel.
- Stevenson, George—Founder of railways.
- Symington, William—Inventor of the steamboat.
- Watt, James—Development of the steam engine.

$350,695,653 Given Away by Carnegie

In 1901, at the age of sixty-five, Andrew Carnegie, possessor of approximately a quarter of a billion dollars, declared it was "disgraceful" for a man to die rich. He said he would spend the rest of his life trying to rid himself of this disgrace.

Carnegie Praised As a Man of Ideals

Best Friend a Man Ever Had, Declares Schwab; Donated $350,000,000

Tributes to the genius of Andrew Carnegie were paid by many of the country's leading citizens yesterday. Charles M. Schwab said: "The world has lost a great man and a great benefactor to humanity, and I have lost a friend greater than whom no man ever had. He was my partner and associate for forty years. Mr. Carnegie possessed the faculty of inspiring others to unusual efforts in a greater measure than any man I ever knew, and he always won by expressions of appreciation rather than by criticism."

James B. Clews, the banker, said: "The death of Mr. Carnegie removes one of the greatest characters the world has ever known. In those days of labor unrest his career offers a fitting example of what can be accomplished by one commencing in the lowest station of life when he possesses the necessary qualifications for rising and making the most of his opportunities."

George W. Perkins, who is chairman of the Senate committee of the Carnegie Foundation, said: "I am deeply grieved to hear of Mr. Carnegie's death. He was a very great American, belonging to the class which after the war of 1812 was quick to appreciate that we had a united country and a great opportunity. He grasped the new machinery which inventors placed in our hands, and with them threw all his great mental energy into developing our country."

"One of the last talks I had with him was about profit sharing. He expressed the opinion that the principle of profit sharing was destined to be a great factor in solving existing problems between capital and labor."

Mr. Morgan & Co. said: "Mr. Carnegie had extraordinary qualities, which made him a notable figure on both sides of the Atlantic. He first achieved a great success in industry, and then devoted his fortune and his energy to the causes of education and peace."

No Effect on Foundation
Elihu Root, jr., son of the former Senator who was Mr. Carnegie's counsel for years, said he did not think the death of Mr. Carnegie would have any effect on the future of the Carnegie Foundation and other philanthropies. He expressed his deep sorrow at the passing of Mr. Carnegie.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Dr. Charles F. Thwing, president of Western Reserve University,leveland, and secretary of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, who was here to-day, said:

"Mr. Carnegie's death is a personal loss to thousands. These thousands include his 'boys' who had been his associates in business and also the leaders in every department of life in America and England. Lord Morley and Sir Gilbert Parker were among his friends. His love for individuals was the expression of his love for all men. Out of this love sprang his great benefactions. He died poor, as it is said he wished to die, in the sense that he had given away the larger part of his fortune."

"He said to me after he retired from business that he could have kept on and still made money by the millions, but he added, 'Why not stop now?' He had the greatness to stop and to give. 'One great mark of his character and career was his wisdom in selecting his associates. The remark which he probably made, that he wished to put on his tombstone the words, 'Here lies the man who had the greatest character and was the wisest that he surrounded himself with men wiser than himself,' is characteristic."

Pittsburgh Mayor Puts Flags at Half Mast

City Where the Magnate Laid Foundation for His Fortune Takes Steps to Pay Tribute

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 11.—This city, where Andrew Carnegie laid the foundation for his vast fortune in the steel business, paid tribute to-day to the dead magnate. Immediately after reading the dispatch announcing Mr. Carnegie's death, Mayor E. W. Babcock ordered all flags in Pittsburgh lowered to half-mast. At the Carnegie Institute, the scene of one of his philanthropic works, plans were made to drap the buildings with crepe. News of Mr. Carnegie's sudden

Engineers to Honor Carnegie at Memorial

At a meeting of the United-Engineering Society and the Engineering Club held in the Engineers' Society Building in West Thirty-ninth Street, yesterday afternoon, action was taken in connection with the death of Mr. Carnegie. Committees were appointed to draw up resolutions and arrange for memorial services. The services will be attended by civil, mining, mechanical and electrical engineers and will be held in the club house. The day and hour will be announced later. The club house is a gift of Mr. Carnegie to the engineers of the country. He subscribed $1,500,000 to have the structure erected.

German Land Tax Bill Passes Second Reading

WEIMAR, Aug. 11. (By The Associated Press.)—The National Assembly to-day passed the second reading of the land purchase tax bill and Matthias Erzberger, Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Finance, spoke in the necessity for rejecting amendments proposed by members of the Right in view of the country's financial distress. Erzberger declared that the state needed twenty-four billion marks (nominally $1,000,000,000), and that if anything was struck out from the property taxes the imperial inheritance tax must be raised.

Motorist Accuses Motorist

Henry W. Gaston, president of the New York State League for Motorists' Protection, was complainant yesterday in Jefferson Market police court against Fred Schillani, of 241 Mulberry Street, who was held for trial on a charge of felonious assault. Schillani is accused of driving over a sixteen-year-old boy and escaping without waiting to ascertain the extent of his victim's injuries. The league was organized July 15. Its purpose is to promote better feeling between pedestrians and motorists, particularly by causing the arrest of reckless drivers. Mr. Gaston, who was in his own car, pursued Schillani until he came across a patrolman, whom he asked to arrest the fugitive. The league has 7,000 members, Mr. Gaston said.

Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich at Southampton Cottage

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Aldrich returned to-day from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller jr., at Sea Harbor, Me., and are occupying the Schermerhorn East cottage again. M. and Mrs. C. B. Alexander, who have been at the cottage while Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich were away, left this morning for Taxedo. The tournament for the Cameron cup was played at the Meadow Club for prowl in tennis and was won by Lawrence McKeever Miller, against Waldron P. Belknap, final score: 6-1, 1-6, 6-1. Mr. and Mrs. Alden Tabbot, who have been spending some time with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Peabody, left to-day for their future home near Philadelphia.

Rumanians to Maintain Order At Budapest

Allied Council Indignant at Supplies Seized but Will Not Demand Immediate Evacuation of the City

PARIS, Aug. 11. (By The Associated Press.)—Many of the delegates to the peace conference have come to believe that it is necessary for Rumanian troops to remain in Budapest, temporarily, at least, to maintain order and steady the situation. As a result of this changed attitude, it is not considered likely that the Supreme Inter-Allied Council will insist upon the immediate evacuation of the city by the Rumanians, although indignation is expressed over the seizure of supplies in Hungary to be shipped to Rumania.

Red Laws Are Repealed

BASEL, Aug. 11.—Hungarian Communist measures abolishing private property have been abrogated in a decree issued by the new Hungarian government, according to a dispatch from Budapest. All owners are enjoined by the government to resume the direction of their properties and to continue agricultural activities.

Serbia Will Appeal to Allies to Save Banat

BELGRADE, Aug. 11.—A semi-official statement here says Rumania is making efforts to obtain more territory in the Banat district of South-eastern Hungary, although she has already been allotted the greater part of the territory. The statement adds that the Serbian government intends to request the peace conference to settle the question by means of a plebiscite throughout Banat.

them at least—"Triumphant Democracy" which appeared in 1886; "The Gospel of Wealth," published in 1902; "The Empire of Business," published in 1902, and "Problems of To-day," published in 1918. He created profound interest throughout the world. Another profound work was "The Life of James Watt," published in 1906.

Mr. Carnegie received many honors. Among them were his election as Commander of the Legion of Honor in France and as Lord Rector of St. Andrew's University, the latter institution also bestowing upon him the degree of LL. D. in 1905. He was honorary member of the American Institute of Architects and a member of the executive committee of the National Civic Federation and of the American Philosophical Society.

Family and Home.
In 1887 he married Louise Whitfield, daughter of John and Frances Whitfield, of New York. One daughter was born to them, Margaret Carnegie, whose engagement to Ensign Roswell Miller, U. S. N., son of the late Roswell Miller, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, was announced in November.

Mr. Carnegie had a beautiful home in Scotland, which he bought several years ago for $100,000. Skibo Castle was built by Gilbert Murray, Bishop of Moray, in 1188. It was a famous fortress, and withstood no less than ten sieges. The old castle is now an ivy-covered picturesque ruin, and stands about one-fourth of a mile from the present modern structure. The estate has a sea frontage of twenty miles.

Mr. Carnegie spent a considerable portion of the latter years of his life in the Carnegie city house, at Fifth Avenue and Ninetieth Street, is a beautiful structure but unlike the modern Fifth Avenue palace in so far that it is plain, and, despite its size and the imposing wall which surrounds it, it is unpretentious in style.

Mr. Carnegie's name was on the roster of a score or more clubs and societies. Among them are the Lotus Union League, Authors', Nineteenth Century, Metropolitan Museum of Art, American Institute of Mechanical Engineers, American Fine Arts Society, New York Genealogical and Biographical Society and the Chamber of Commerce. He was a small man physically—

Carnegie's Last Letter Praised World League

WHAT is believed to have been one of the last letters written by Mr. Carnegie, in which he expressed his gratification at the proposed league of nations, was made public here yesterday by Charles C. James, a broker, to whom the communication was addressed. The letter, which was written in response to one sent to Mr. Carnegie by Mr. James calling attention to a statement of the iron master made in 1914 that no hereditary monarch, czar, emperor or king, should have the right to declare war, was dated August 9.

"I rejoice in having lived to see the day," said Mr. Carnegie's letter, "when, as Burns put it, 'Man to man the world o'er shall be brothers and that.' I believe this happy condition is assured by the league of nations and that civilization will now march steadily onward, with no more wars to mar its progress."

ANNOUNCEMENT

The AMERICAN WOOLEN COMPANY announces the incorporation of the HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION, Inc., Room 1111, 245 State Street, Boston, Mass.

PURPOSE—The PURPOSE of the Homestead Association, Inc., is to improve the housing conditions of the employees of the American Woolen Company, and to assist them to OWN THEIR OWN HOMES.

METHOD—The Homestead Association, Inc., will prepare designs in consultation with the employees of the American Woolen Company for a large number of attractive individual houses, conveniently located to the mills of the American Woolen Company. These houses will be of durable, permanent construction; of four, five, six or more rooms, with all modern conveniences.

These houses will be sold to the employees of the American Woolen Company AT COST.

Money will be loaned to the employees of the American Woolen Company at 4½% for the purchase of these houses.

A first payment of at least 5% of the selling price will be made at the time of sale. The subsequent payments will be made monthly, of an amount equal to rent for that type of house.

A part of the monthly payment will cover INTEREST CHARGES, TAXES, AND INSURANCE, and the remainder will go towards reducing the mortgage.

By this plan the owner will pay off the mortgage by only paying the equal of "RENT MONEY."

The Homestead Association, Inc., will also take mortgages at 4½% on quarterly balance on individual homes to be purchased by the employees of the American Woolen Company up to 75% of their real estate value, providing the owner will pay off the mortgage on the following monthly instalment plan:

Amount of Loan	Pay Off Principal Per Mo.	Total Payment Per Mo.
$1000	6.50	$6.50 to $10.00
2000	7.50	11.00 to 15.00
