Treaty's Friends In a Panic Over Lansing's Stand

Administration Senators Are Worried by His Refusal to Confirm or Deny He Called Pact Bad

Now Fear Its Rejection Debate in Open Session to Begin Monday; Vote Unlikely Before Oct. 1

By Carter Field

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Fear that the peace treaty may be rejected or that such drastic amendments may be adopted that the President will refuse to forward the amended treaty to the Allies is felt by several Administration leaders here today as a result of the quotation of Secretary of State Lansing as saying the treaty in parts is "thoroughly bad" and the league of nations is "entirely useless."

That a real panic is on for the moment, which is heightened by the failure of Secretary Lansing to repudiate the interview with him given the Foreign Relations Committee yesterday by William C. Bullitt, is obvious. Many Democratic Senators who have been supporting the Administration admitted privately that the statements attributed to Mr. Lansing are "sensational" and "may have a profound effect," but for quotation they have not a word to say.

The first question of every Senator, no matter what his desire as to the treaty, is to get Mr. Lansing's "mad" and "sensational" statement, and when he had said nothing except to state last night he had no comment to make, the pro-league Senators were obviously worried, and the anti-liguesists pleased.

Formal consideration of the treaty in "open executive session" will be begun on Monday. The first point of debate to be reached in the formal reading to which was pointed out today, will be the "equality of voting" amendment. This would give the United States as many votes in the league of nations assembly as the British Empire has.

Senators favoring this amendment do not propose to permit a vote on it until the statement of Senator Hiram W. Johnson, its author, from his speaking tour throughout the West. They do not intend to have him out short his trip, as they believe he is before the Western country. Therefore, they intend that there shall be plenty of conversation before permitting this first vote.

They believe also that discussions are now going on which will have the effect of increasing the strength of this amendment, which already is being put in the hands of the Senate. There is no doubt about the adoption of the reservations in the minds even of the Administration Senators.

As a result of this policy, the league and treaty will be discussed by various Senators before a vote on this amendment is permitted, and a vote will not be reached on it before the first of October.

A prominent Republican Senator said tonight after considering various possibilities, that this first test vote will not be had until after October 5, when then will be happening the friends of the amendment think, which will gain enough Democratic votes for the amendment to offset such losses as seem inevitable on the Republican side.

But the vote on Mr. Lansing's report on repudiating the Bullitt quotations of his opinions on the league and treaty is preventing any other action here, and one is waiting until that move is made.

Mr. Bullitt today made public the report on Russia which he made to the President and Premier Lloyd George in which he is quoted in his testimony many before the committee yesterday. This is the report which the President suppressed at the time, although Lloyd George and General Smuts had urged Mr. Bullitt to make it public.

U. S. Coal: $125 a Ton. Too High for Germany

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—By The Associated Press. Importation of American coal in quantities sufficient to relieve Germany's need is regarded by the press as inconceivable owing to the cost. Although German-American negotiations have resulted in an offer to send American coal to this country, it is said, the price is so high, owing to the importation of coal in large quantities, that it is not feasible.

Coal experts of the Ruhr district are against the movement to import foreign coal, especially American. Peter Kloetner, one of the leading Ruhr industrialists, recently declared American coal costs 200 marks (814 a ton for German coal. Since he made this statement the foreign exchange situation has become worse.

While recording a similar opinion the "Vossische Zeitung" reports that Hugo Stinnes, director of the Westerman Shipping Company, has already agreed to supply Russia with 470,000 marks ($94 a ton for distribution in Berlin and Hamburg, but will be given credit to a considerable extent.

Lenine Still Ready for Peace, Say Agents Here

Russian Soviet Bureau Asserts He Would Negotiate Upon Terms Submitted by Bullitt

In a statement issued yesterday, referring to the testimony of W. C. Bullitt, a former member of the American Peace Mission before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Friday, the Russian Soviet Bureau here declared that the soviet government of Russia was still ready to make peace upon the terms arranged by Bullitt on his trip to Russia as a special representative of the United States government. These are the terms which Mr. Bullitt told the committee had been suppressed when his report was submitted in Paris last week.

Mr. Bullitt's testimony before the committee stated that he was assured that "Lenine is ready to accept the terms of the peace negotiations" and that he had received on his return to Russia as a special representative of the United States government. These are the terms which Mr. Bullitt told the committee had been suppressed when his report was submitted in Paris last week.

As for his own information goes, the Soviet government has a right to say as much as it likes about the terms arranged by Mr. Bullitt. "A communication which we recently received from Leningrad, on behalf of the Communist Government of Russia, outlined its policy of special friendliness toward America. This communication was very interesting."

Through out the last year he has been running a red thread in evidence of our inclination toward an agreement with America. Unfortunately, American officials, by their approach by words, in fact had identified herself with the mad policy of Clemenceau, and has actually taken part in all military and diplomatic actions against us in the name of the Entente, and in the economic blockade.

"After Leningrad had sent a note to President Wilson in December, 1918, he was visited in Stockholm in June 1919. The remedy for all of this proposed as a fulfillment of the nation's promises, asserted Mr. Wilson, was the league of nations, which alone permanently could overthrow anarchy and give to the world a permanent order. He said, in such movements as that which had overturned Russia.

"Entry position," the President said, had been aroused by the treaty denunciation which had been made in the name of the document had come years ago from a Republican statesman. He asked his audience to forget that he had anything to do with the denunciation of these principles and to overlook that there would be an election in 1920.

On his return from Paris, Mr. Wilson was in the habit of answering questions from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which came for the most part from the Republican side of the committee, returning to the peace conference, he had secured the acceptance of every one of these suggestions.

Reads the Riot Act to Foes

"I say these things," he continued, "because I want to read the riot act to anybody who tries to introduce politics into this thing. There is something so much greater than being a Republican or a Democrat in the name of the people that should be mentioned in connection with it. That is being an American, and the way to be an American is to fulfill the pledges we have made."

The crowd cheered this declaration, and there was more applause when Mr. Wilson went on to tell of the peace conference, he had secured the acceptance of every one of these suggestions.

Mr. Wilson said he was deeply touched by the interest of mothers and fathers in the peace conference. Saying many of the children had hailed him along the way as "Woody," the President disengaged to remark that he had no objection to that if it were applied "as a name, and not as a description."

Every woman with a child, declared the President, should live in fear if she had no objection to that if it were applied "as a name, and not as a description."

Without the league, said Mr. Wilson, the treaty will be a "house of cards," which any breath of power" could blow down. Mr. Wilson added, it was "as strong as Gibraltar."

Retrieving delay in acceptance of the treaty, Mr. Wilson declared American industry would be "chilled and ruined" unless there is action.

He said that the President had said that he would be willing to sacrifice to underwrite civilization, "because it was the true American spirit to 'give until it hurts.'"

Repeating his hope that no attempt would be made to amend the treaty, the President predicted that some day men would look back with surprise that any one should have opposed it.

The text of President Wilson's address in Tacoma follows in part:

"I feel, as I am sure you feel, that we have reached one of the most critical periods in the history of the United States. The shadow of the war is not lifted from us, and we have to face the depths of the valley of death.

"I thought it might be useful if I remind you of a few things, lest we forget. It is so easy with the strong that they will not remember. I am sure that you will not forget the real depths of meaning which lie underneath the things that we are merely touching the surface of. Therefore, I thought it would not be amiss to ask you to ask permission to read you the concluding passage of the address in which I requested the government of the United States to accept Germany's challenge of war.

Requests Programme United States Started Out Upon

"We shall fight, I said, for the things which have always carried nearest our hearts. We shall fight for the right of those who submit to authority to have a voice in their own government, for the rights and interests of all nations, for a universal dominion of law, for the strengthening of the new military spirit to Denmark.

"So far we have not been able to establish to what extent America actually participated in this league. Recently American cruisers have been visiting Archangel and Murmansk. It is not known to us whether they came for the removal of American troops or for the removal of American troops. We had in our hands a few American prisoners of war whom we have liberated without any reciprocities.

"I am sure since you are here, we have never failed to emphasize our particular desire to enter into relations with America."

Belgium Underwrote Civilization, He Declares

"I want to remind you many other nations were put under a deeper temptation than we. It would have been possible for little Belgium at any time to make terms with the enemy. Belgium refused to do so. She was useless. Belgium knew that she could get any terms of advantage from Germany that she pleased if she would only submit. And in the end of everything that she did, Belgium refused to do so. She did not know anywhere in history of a more inspiring fact than that.

"The fact that Belgium refused to do so, she fulfilled her pledge of civilization. Only could have had her terms at the hands of Austria at almost any period of the war, particularly just before the war. Belgium refused to do so. She did not know anywhere in history of a more inspiring fact than that.
