48 Heroes of War Given Medals for Deeds of Valor

Forty-eight heroes of the world war were honored yesterday by the four Allied nations they served when decorations for valor were bestowed in an impressive ceremony at City Hall. Three of the medals were received by women relatives of soldiers who died for the cause.

The women thus honored were Mrs. Mary T. Lynch, who received the Croix de Guerre from the French government, and Mrs. Jennie Freibert and Mrs. Margaret Begley, who were given the Distinguished Service Cross of the United States. Colonel Wilbur E. Wilder, receiving officer for this district, presided at the ceremony.

Major U. Breton and Captain M. H. Blaise bestowed the Croix de Guerre from the French government upon the following:

Captain Richard Peters and Major John Phillip Blackard, Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.
Private Walter Klinge, Frank W. Garvin, John J. Finn and John Zych, Medaille Militaire.
Major Julius O. Adler, citation.

Croix de Guerre—Lieutenant Colonel William Shaw; Captains Thomas Simpson, Carl G. R. Ross and Richard R. Leighton; Lieutenants Joseph G. Oshorn, William Hawkins, Thomas J. Taylor and Stanley B. Hazard; Sergeants Eric W. Spencer, John J. Gribbin, Harry E. Link, Thomas P. O'Hagan, Patrick Freeman and George Jones; Corporals Henry G. Kramer and Harry Closs; Privates Edwin W. McLoughlin, Stephen K. Newhall, Anthony Scelfoni, James Lyons, John J. Monahan, Henry John Harlin, Charles Edward Gaymer, Dennis McCarthy, Henry Gillet and James Bougie.

Captain Blaise decorated the heroes in a unique fashion on the shoulder of his sash and then kissed each of their cheeks. Lieutenant Colonel Shaw, who was a member of the Knights of Columbus, was one of the Americans to offer his services to France.

The Italian War Cross then was pinned on the breast of Private William K. Scoville by Captain Biaga, representing Italy.

American and Belgian decorations were conferred on the following men by Colonel Benjamin W. Atkinson, American Commissioner of Awards: Captain War Cross—Lieutenant Frederick R. Wulfsberg.
Distinguished Service Cross—Lieutenant Russell B. Lyvermore and Arthur H. Winters, both Sergeants; Michael J. McLaughlin, Private; John J. Monahan, Charles Gustafson, Hugh P. Travers, Harry Margolin, Frank Lombardo, Irving Saffitz and Thomas Washburn.

Private Winters, who was decorated to-day with flowers and sold for the winter months by one hundred Knights of Columbus overseas secretaries. Tomorrow, September 26, will mark the first anniversary of the great Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Several pilgrimages by the French, led by the clergy and mayors of towns nearby, have been arranged and the Knights of Columbus also will take an active part.

One year ago the American army, assisted by a division of French infantry, started the drive into the Argonne Forest on a forty-mile front.

The first advance by the Americans gained them 7,000 prisoners and ten kilometers of enemy ground. More than 400,000 United States troops were engaged in the operation.

"An Exchange of Wives" Will Have First Performance at Bijou To-night

"An Exchange of Wives" will have its first performance at the Bijou Theatre to-night.

Yesterday Charles Dillingham received the following cablegram from Luisa Trazzini in London: "Returning America; transcontinental tour; management Jules Daiber. Am happy to confirm opening concert at Hippodrome on evening of November 28."

"The Green Suit," a play of magic and mystery, will be given by Tony Sarg's Marionettes for the week beginning to-night at the Provincetown Players' Theatre.

The 450th performance of "Lightnin'" will be celebrated at the Gaiety to-night.

There was a time when Eddie Leonard, of "Roly-Boly Eyes," John Corle's new musical comedy, made more money on the ballfield than on the stage. The genial comedian was only an ambitious boy then, but later he was graduated to the ranks of the professionals under the management of John J. McGraw.

"Roly-Boly Eyes" Has Its First Performance at the Knickerbocker

By Heywood Brown
"Roly-Boly Eyes" may perhaps be set down as effective popular entertainment. The book and lyrics, for which Edgar Allan Wolf is responsible, could hardly be worse. They are inane beyond belief. But the specialties are numerous and interesting, and it is by such devices that many a musical show is saved.

Eddie Leonard, the well known vaudeville performer, sings a number of minstrel melodies with a quality of voice and rhythm which is gratifying. He also dances pleasingly. As for the lines, it is a matter of indifference as to how they are spoken. The dancing and appeal of the show, particularly strong, since the cast boasts the cooperation of Miss Queenie Smith, the talented young exponent of classical modes, from the Metropolitan Opera House. Miss Queenie Smith is not only a graceful dancer, but a stanch and determined young miss who for several seasons has resisted every appeal of the Metropolitan management to change her name to the more dignified Regina Smith. Queenie she has remained, and it has abated her charm to a whole. It would seem the part of wisdom to make greater use of this performer's talents, for her one solo dance in the second act was rapturously received. Her singing is pleasing, and as an entertainer, she is a valuable asset to the grand opera stage her future in light opera should be bright.

Margaret Edwards danced vividly in the original number, and there was some mildly amusing broad burlesque by Miss May Foley.

Eddie Leonard's appearances are interesting not only for his present quality of voice and rhythm, but for the tradition which he brings to the stage. Apparently, a great number of persons in all his audiences are familiar with his song repertoire and in every pause list his numbers. An atmosphere of engaging intimacy was there by created, but it seemed to us as if the evening might have been still more pleasant if the activities of Leonard could have been confined entirely to these melodies of negro origin, which he does so well with, and of the fearfully dull dilution of the performance by the necessities of the book.

Church Publicity Urged
Presbyterian Assembly Approves Advertising Campaign

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 25.—The executive committee of the General Presbyterian Assembly directed at its meeting here to-day the appointment of a committee to deal with the problem of the modern pastor. The committee is authorized to "make a suggestive effort" to obtain salary increases for clergymen. The executive committee approved of a national advertising campaign, stating that such a campaign is to be employed as follows: "The daily newspaper is the best medium for church publicity. Don't let the fellow monopolize it. Let the church get its own newspaper. Don't ask newspapers for free space for anything except live news, and all they have to sell. Don't ask for cuts in the church newspaper. The Presbyterian church is the richest of all Protestant churches."

The committee will hold real news from the report.

Jewish New Year Is Celebrated Here by Rites in Temples

Rabbis Stress Pleas for Americanism in Sermons; Orthodox Take Holiday to Aid in Ceremonies

The shofar, sounded at yesterday morning's Rosh-ha-Shanah services in every New York synagogue, told the East Side that the 5,600th year since the creation had begun.

Rabbis also told their congregations of the part American Jewry is expected to play in the reconstitution of the world, exhorting them, while they steadfastly maintain the distinctive character of their faith, to cooperate with all the forces of good to stabilize a war-wrecked world. Labor unrest came in for a good share of the pulpit discussion.

"We must all resolve for the New Year to make every effort to abolish the clash of classes that now exists," Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein said at the Institutional Synagogue. "Neither capital nor labor may hold the dominating position in our country."

Think Persecution Ended
At Temple Israel, Rabbi Maurice H. Harris asserted the signing of the Polish treaty destroyed forever the era of persecution Jews had suffered for eighteen centuries, but he expressed concern over the ability of his race to "resist Gentile domination."

"To what extent," he asked, "can we maintain our religious individuality? Sons of our brethren have endeavored to surrender any of the privileges of the world as a price for citizenship. We must answer the question, Do we want to be Jews or not? If so, are we willing to pay the price? If we are willing to pay the price, we are willing to give up the essentials of the spiritual legacy we have inherited, through living them, we can be a great power for good. Great minorities have saved the world before."

Rabbi Schulman Preaches
Rabbi Schulman preached on "Israel's Message to Mankind" at Temple Beth-El.

"Judaism," he said, "is an appeal to the will to overcome the evils that are arrayed against the Jewish people and labor. There is just as much to be gained by a proletariat as there was under feudalism. What the world and especially our country needs is recognition of the fact that we are relying on force, but by a genuine desire to discover the right, by broad-minded discussion, by the cooperative meeting of the conscience and intelligence of both elements, can justice be established and civilization saved."

Dr. Stephen S. Wise preached to the Free Synagogue at Carnegie Hall.

"Justice can be done to Jews only in a world of justice," he said. "The world of Jewish affairs has not been imagined that because the better have been written into the chapters of peace, that the quarrels of their achievement. Eternal vigilance will for all time remain the price of everything worth while. No league of nations will be more than we resolve to put into it. All the religious wars are over. In many of them there were spiritual masters."

About 500 Jews took advantage of the holiday to apply at the Bronx Court-house for naturalization papers.

Spirited Performance of "Aida" Given by Lyric Federation at Brooklyn Academy

The Italian Lyric Federation gave a performance of "Aida" at the Brooklyn Academy of Music last evening. The eternal beauty of Verdi's score gave pleasure to the audience and served as an inspiration to those taking the principal parts. The strength of the cast lay rather with the men: Mr. Zonovief, Mr. Pico, Mr. De Biasi and Mr. Corvini, who displayed fine voices as well as knowledge of operatic traditions. Miss Freeman's Aida was conventional in song and action. Miss Poggi's voice was excellently suited to the appearance, and her impersonation was well sustained.

There were certain informalities about the performance. Anneris was not diverted by the dancing of the customary slaves, and the Ethiopian prisoners were conspicuously few in number. These omissions, however, were atoned for by the generally spirited character of the performance, which reached its climax in the great ensemble at the end of the second act.

Tomorrow evening the Federation will present "Il Trovatore."

Hylan Promises Regard For Libraries in Budget

Facilities and Employes' Salaries to Receive Consideration, Mayor Says

Assurances that the public libraries will continue to provide "the best literature and reading facilities" and that the library employes' salaries will be given consideration were made by Mayor Hylan in a statement issued yesterday. The Mayor said:

"Every possible consideration will be given to the salaries of the library employes by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment."

"The city of New York desires its citizens, especially the working people and the school children who so largely use the libraries, to rest assured that reasonable provision will continue to be made for the best literature and reading facilities, which must play a large role in the scheme of Americanization and help to offset the harmful and unedifying propaganda circulated by dangerous agitators."

The purpose of these library facilities will be to give the people the best of the world's literature and to make them community centers for the acquisition of knowledge in a wholesome way. These libraries in our congested sections have proved to be invaluable, drawing the people to ideals of cleaner living and showing forth advantages that make for social betterment, stimulating the young man and woman to improve their condition in life."

American Public Schools Are Lacking 38,000 Teachers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The public schools of the nation through the new school year with a shortage of approximately 38,000 teachers. This estimate was made to-day by the National Education Association on the basis of questionnaires sent to State, district and county school superintendents in all States.

To meet the acute shortage, due in large part, Commissioner of Education Clayton K. Kistler, has asked for the law stipulated, it is estimated that approximately 50,000 teachers were employed who were below the standard requirements existing in the various school districts.
