

General Pershing finds time midst the ceremonies attending the generous welcome extended to him on his recent visit to San Francisco to shake hands with young America when scores of youngsters squeeze through the lines and surround the country's hero commander. Underwood

Right — Muggins, one of the most famous dogs in Canada, is dead, and Dominion dog lovers everywhere mourn his loss, for this pure bred Spitz, owned by a Victoria lady, collected over $21,000 for various war funds. Muggins for five years met every incoming liner from the Orient and his little collection box seldom failed to receive donations. Muggins was the proud possessor of ten medals for services rendered. British & Colonial Press

A half dozen sailor lads from the Naval Training Station at Pensacola up for a flight in a free navy balloon over the Florida city and the Gulf of Mexico. Let's hope that when they wanted to come down the wind was from the south. International

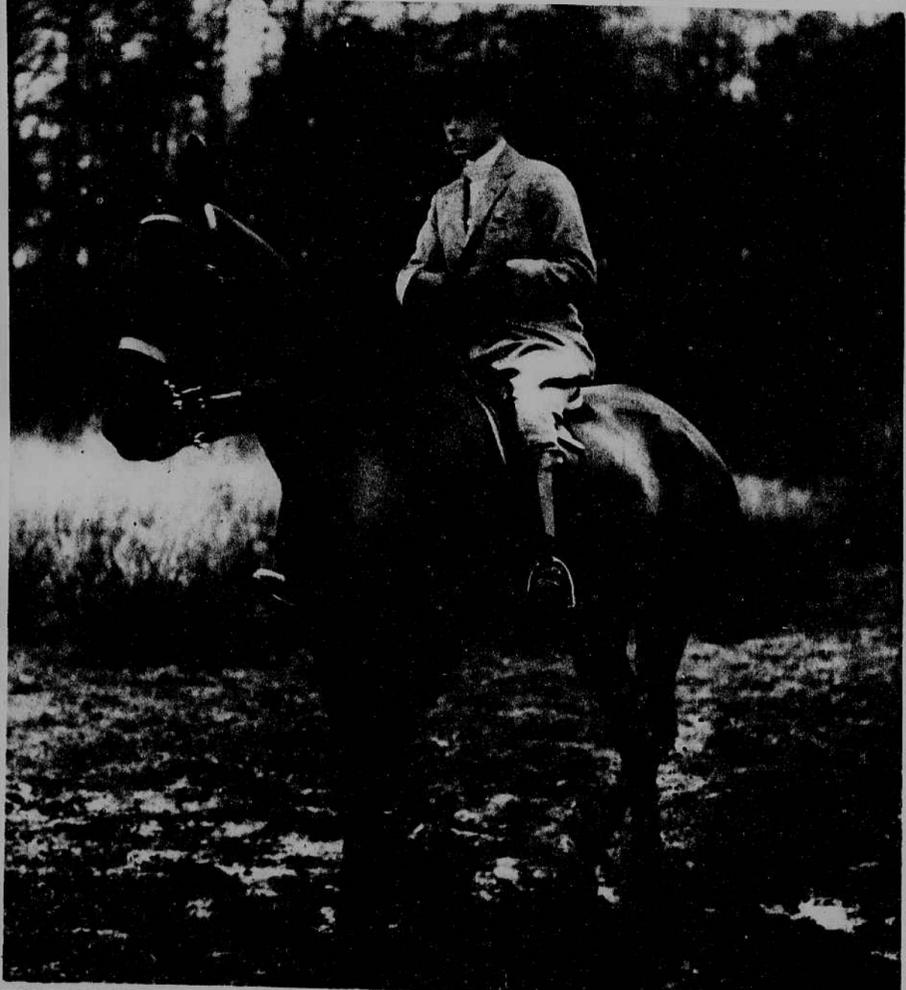

Left—Not a generalissimo in a comic opera army but J. S. Humphreys, a British fire-fighter of Wimbledon, who has never missed an alarm in thirty-six years, answering in all over 2,000 calls. Can any of New York's firemen equal this record? Wide World

Meet William Butler Yeats, writer and leader of the Irish National Theater movement, who arrived here recently for a lecture tour. Mr. Yeats says "Ireland in her struggle toward nationalization presents the tragic perspective of three antagonistic forces each arrayed against the others, and among which there is no common ground for reconciliation." Underwood

"Red Bug" racing is all the rage among the members of the fashionable Palm Beach colony these days. A light buckboard with a motor wheel attached to the rear, a daring chauffeur, a challenge, and then the fun begins. The car to the right, Mrs. Hiatt, of Kansas City, driver, and Mrs. A. McNeil, of Bridgeport, mechanic, was the winner of this trio. Underwood

The Prince of Wales recently took a day off from the formidable round of public engagements that have taken up his time since returning home and spent it in a typically English way by a run with the hounds. Here is our royal visitor of last fall astride his favorite hunter. Central News

Right—A sturdy Belgian Boy Scout stands at attention while a war widow pays silent tribute before the flower-festooned wall on the Rue de Leopold, against which five years ago last August the invading Huns shot down 166 villagers. Keystone View