Elkus, of the Court of Appeals, who was down for a speech yesterday at a meeting of the Democratic Women's National Campaign Committee of 1,000 at the Hotel Astor, was late in getting there. This led Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby, who presided, to suspect he might be trying to pull the wool over the women's eyes.

In the new place—all the old faces which made Haan's at Park Row famous for 20 years. Also dinner a la carte with music 6:30 to 8 P. M.

Recently there was completed for the Republican National Committee an informal survey of the political situation, with particular reference to the attitude of labor toward the Republican and Democratic organizations, the effect of prohibition among the toilers and the likelihood of success for Republicans in Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, North Carolina and Texas.

While for obvious reasons no one in a position of authority in the national committee would take it upon himself to outline the situation, lest he might come to grief afterward as a poor diagnostician, the information obtained from the survey, which is in circulation among the members of the committee as a result of the work, is substantially as follows:

There is little probability of an organized labor vote of the country or of laboring men in the steel, coal and coke industries voting as a mass for any candidate or party. The high wages during the last three or four years has made many a former wage earner a small capitalist, filled his home with comforts and near luxuries, enabled and inspired him to get his mind off his own particular personal task and to look at things with a broader view than previously.

Workers to Vote Republican The survey indicates that a large percentage of wage workers who in the last two Presidential elections voted the Democratic ticket this year will vote the Republican ticket. The fundamental reasons impelling the changed view are (1) the old-fashioned notion of the layman that it is not good for a political party to control the Federal government too long; (2) that the Wilson Administration, judged by its record, is incompetent.

The survey indicates that the great bulk of the wage earners are satisfied with prohibition and that if the question were up again on a referendum they would vote "dry," as the greater percentage did before. There is a feeling that it might be well to have greater elasticity in the law with reference to light wines and beer, but this feeling does not go deep enough to warrant the assumption that the laboring masses would welcome back the saloons and distilleries. The survey indicates that the agitation for the speedy repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment is paid for by the liquor interest and that the wage workers are conscious that it is paid propaganda.

"Hoover in the Picture" The survey further indicates that the members of labor organizations are quicker to resent the unreasonable orders of their organization heads than formerly.

The canvass reveals that Herbert Hoover is fairly strong all over the country, especially with the new voters. The report to the national committee is that "Hoover is in the picture," but not necessarily in a way that will insure his being seriously considered at the Chicago convention.

The national committee is strengthened in its conviction that it is well worth while to give time and money for legitimate campaign work in North Carolina, Tennessee and Texas and certainly in Missouri and Kentucky, both of which went Republican in 1918. The survey does not indicate that the Republicans will carry Texas, but it does show that the Republicans with diligence may count on carrying three or four Congressional districts.

"Save Money on Meat" Week Begins To-morrow Retailers Aid in Campaign to Educate Buyers in Using Cheaper Cuts

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau WASHINGTON, March 20.—The Department of Justice announced today that in New York the education campaign designed to save money on meat by taking advantage of the less expensive cuts is proceeding vigorously under the direction of Commissioner Arthur Williams.
