

Press Club Diners Cheer For Hoover

1,000 at Hotel Astor Applaud for Several Minutes When J. W. Gerard Points Out Candidate

Daniels Scores Sims

Colby Says President Is Not Cowed, Nor Is His Spirit Bent, by Attacks

The thousand men high in financial, political and newspaper affairs who attended the forty-eighth annual dinner of the New York Press Club last night at the Hotel Astor joined in an enthusiastic demonstration for Herbert Hoover when James W. Gerard, in his address, nodded toward the table where Mr. Hoover was seated and said:

"I had a candidate and his name commenced with H and I see him sitting at a table over there."

The applause and cheering that followed made it impossible for the former Ambassador to Germany to continue his address for several minutes. When he could make himself heard, he continued:

Refers to "Vain Admiral"

Secretary Daniels, who was hailed as "managing editor of the navy," in his address referred slightly to the charges made by Admiral Sims, and Secretary Colby praised President Wilson and the league of nations.

Mr. Daniels also was most vehement in inveighing against radicals. "We ought promptly to deport every alien anarchist and jail every home-brewed Bolshevist," he said.

Address by Edwards Governor Edwards spoke chiefly of the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence and alleged recent violations of them.

"I am quite conscious," he said, "of the fact that I am your guest because you wish to see what manner of man the Governor of New Jersey is. The fact may seem strange to you, as it is to me, that merely standing for the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States may make a man a political curiosity."

In his denials of the league of nations and President Wilson, Secretary Colby charged that the forces of evil in the nation have been attacking the Chief Executive with every device known to man's ingenuity and the resources of scurrility and hatred.

President. Rapidly, my friends, he is recovering that vigor of mind that always has been his. He is neither cowed nor is his valued spirit bent by these contemptible charges and attacks that have been leveled upon him in such an unparliamentary spirit...

Sinn Fein Clash With Foes Before Prison

LONDON, May 1.—Sinn Fein sympathizers and opponents engaged in a street fight before Wormwood Scrubs Prison last night, and mounted police had to charge on the crowd before it would disperse.

Several Persons Injured Before Mounted Police Disperse Mobs in Street

Several persons were injured before mounted police disperse mobs in street. The scene was described as a riotous one, with many persons being taken to hospital.

One feature of last night's demonstration was the appearance of "tin" helmets, worn by a large party of Irishmen engaged in keeping order. A choir of women sang Irish songs, and Mrs. Despard, sister of Field Marshal French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, addressed the crowd.

Irish Bill Is Denounced

LONDON, May 1.—A statement credited to the Irish Nationalist members of the House of Commons was issued to-night, saying they would refuse to countenance the Irish bill by their presence at further discussions of it in the House.

The government gave no such indication in its statement to-night. "The bill is a denial of every right the Irish people demand," it said.

Jew, Negro, Indian Named for Places In Hall of Fame

Eighty-seven Men and Four Women Nominated for Honor in 1920 Election at New York University

A Jew, a negro and an Indian will be in the Hall of Fame next fall, should the electors concur next fall in the action of the Senate of New York University yesterday. For the first time in the elections, a member of the three races is included in the nomination ballots.

The final list as passed by the University Senate yesterday includes the names of eighty-seven men and four women. To these will be added the names of 111 men and twenty-three women held over from the last election.

The names of the men who will become pioneers of their respective races for the highest honor New York University can bestow are Isaac Meir Wise, the first rabbi in this country; Frederick Douglass, the negro; and Dekanawida, founder of the League of the Iroquois, the famous chief who drew up the constitution of the Six Nations.

For the first time the name of Paul Revere appears on the list, as does also that of Ethan Allen, victor at Ti-conderoga. Their names come under the class of famous soldiers and sailors.

Under the class of statesmen comes the name of William Penn, for the first time. The list also includes the names of Robert Underwood Johnson, the newly appointed ambassador to Italy.

Mrs. Vanamee said there was a mistaken idea that the Hall of Fame was part of New York University. She declared it was a national institution to honor great Americans, founded by the university in 1900 and is in no sense part of its activities.

Among the women included in this year's nominations are Susan B. Anthony, the pioneer woman suffragist, and Fanny Dayenport, actress. Augustus Saint-Gaudens was the only sculptor accepted this year, but Harriet Hosmer held over from the last election also comes under that classification.

Authors predominate in this year's nominations, no less than eighteen being approved. Among them is the name of Mrs. A. B. Dean, among the inventors is the name of Othmar Mergenthaler, creator of the Linotype machine which revolutionized newspaper publication. James Abbott McNeill Whistler, famous painter, was also nominated this year.

Coal Conference Fails To Reach an Agreement Operators and Workers to Resume Meeting With Secretary Wilson To-morrow

WASHINGTON, May 1.—An all-day conference participated in by representatives of the anthracite mine workers and mine operators and Secretary of Labor Wilson failed to bring a wage scale agreement acceptable to both sides, but negotiations were not broken off.

The joint committees will meet again with Secretary Wilson on Monday to resume discussions. The situation was summarized in a brief statement by the joint scale committee of operators and miners issued after the session, which said that "each side presented to the Secretary reasons substantiating their positions as affecting the wage negotiations."

Anthracite wage scale negotiations have been in progress for some weeks, with only the operators and miners participating, but finally came to a deadlock. The miners agreed to make a new contract on a basis of a 27 per cent general increase in wages, with some changes in working conditions.

This proposal, the miners contended, corresponded to that made by the coal strike settlement commission for the bituminous industry. Operators tendered only a 15 per cent increase, and Secretary Wilson asked both parties to bring the matter up before him.

Women's Exchange Closed By Economic Conditions The West End Exchange and Industrial Union, which for twenty-three years has been aiding the women of the West Side and teaching them self-support, has closed its establishment at 169 West Seventy-fourth Street for the present at least.

Economic conditions have made this action necessary. The board of managers will continue to keep the corporation alive in the hope that a change in costs will make it possible to re-open it.

The exchange was founded in March, 1896, and had its first rooms in a small store at 380 Amsterdam Avenue. The store increased so rapidly that the adjoining store was added for two years. In October 1900, it moved to its present home and five years thereafter the adjoining house also was taken over.

The present officers are Mrs. Henry C. Quinby, who has been president for six years; Mrs. James M. Donald, first vice-president; Mrs. Walter E. Frew, second vice-president; Mrs. Nicholas Pond, treasurer; Miss Josephine H. Dill, recording secretary, and Mrs. Z. S. Freeman, corresponding secretary.

National Budget Bill Passes Senate Without Roll Call

System of Independently Auditing U. S. Accounts Provided in Measure as Amended in House

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The Senate to-day, without a roll call, passed the bill providing for a national budget system and for a system of independently auditing government accounts. The House already has passed a budget bill, but the Senate committee made several amendments in the measure.

The Senate bill provides that the budget department should be under direct charge of the director of the proposed bureau much independent authority. All government estimates for expenditures and appropriations would be compiled by the budget bureau and submitted to Congress at the same time.

Under the present system, each department and bureau of the government submit their estimates to the President. The Senate bill provides that there shall be a commissioner and two assistants in charge of the budget bureau, appointed by the President, with the consent of the Senate.

They shall be charged with compiling the budget of expenses of all government departments and bureaus for each fiscal year. Then the President shall submit them to Congress in the form of a single national budget.

The Senate bill, if it becomes law, in no sense will impair either the authority or the responsibility of Congress. It presumes that the President, in conference with his Cabinet, will adopt a fiscal policy conformable to his general program; it presumes that there will be laid before the Cabinet the estimates of the revenues for the ensuing fiscal year as well as preliminary and tentative estimates for expenditures by the several departments.

The President, in conference with his Cabinet, must determine the item of the budget, the total of expenditures to be proposed to Congress, as well as the sums proposed to be expended by the several executive departments of the government. This will require the same time decision whether recommendation shall be made to Congress to continue the existing sum of tax, or to reduce or to increase it.

The Senate bill further proposes to create an independent establishment to be known as the general accounting office, which will take over the powers and duties now exercised and performed by the Comptroller of the Treasury and the six auditors of the Treasury Department.

The bill confers upon the general accounting office the authority and power to prescribe and to supervise the methods employed in the administrative examination of accounts and claims, and to exercise in general a control over all the accounting of the government.

In the Senate bill the comptroller general of the United States is given exclusive jurisdiction over all matters relating to auditing and accounting forms, systems and procedures. His powers and authority, however, will be exercised through three assistant comptrollers general, who will act under his direction and with his approval.

The general accounting office is to be organized into three branches. The auditing branch proper will be in charge of the first assistant comptroller general.

This officer will receive, audit and settle the accounts of all disbursing and collecting offices of the government and all claims against the United States. He will perform generally the duties now intrusted to the auditors for the various departments. The constructive accounting branch will be under the second assistant comptroller general.

All the hotel managers are standing firm against the strike. Confidence was expressed that services would not be interrupted with to any appreciable extent.

Meals are being served by the aid of bell boys, maids and other employees. The men are asking a wage increase approximating 35 per cent. In most places they now receive $45 a month and meals. They are demanding a flat rate of $18 a week with meals, or $25 a week without meals.

Trolley Strikers Work As Bus Route Inspectors Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, put seven of the striking Staten Island trolley men to work as inspectors yesterday, along the routes covered by his Staten Island buses. He said he had applications from about thirty more strikers, but had no places for them yet.

The strikers' committee is to call on Borough President Van Name, of Richmond, to find jobs for the strikers. The same number of buses was running yesterday as on previous days, but three more lines will be put into commission to-day, one to Midland Beach, one to Seaview Hospital and one to Fort Richmond Square.

Stannenburg, president of the Cooks' and Pastry Cooks' Union, and secretary of the joint executive committee of the two organizations.

Miss Taylor's Second Premiere Brings Big Demand for Seats LONDON, May 1.—The investigation into the rioting at the Garrick Theater, when Laurette Taylor was obliged to withdraw and the curtain was rung down, is proceeding, but so far the investigators have not been identified, nor have there been any revelations as to their motives.

The friends of Miss Taylor are preparing an ovation for Monday, when she has her second "premiere," and it is reported that the demand for seats has been four times the house's capacity.

Bill Is Introduced to Stop Sugar Speculation WASHINGTON, May 1.—A bill designed to prevent speculation in sugar was introduced to-day by Representative Howard, Democrat, of Oklahoma. It would prohibit resale of sugar by dealers without "reasonable justification."

The Department of Justice, Mr. Howard told the House, has been unable to meet the present emergency because of inadequate legislation. The same number of buses was running yesterday as on previous days, but three more lines will be put into commission to-day, one to Midland Beach, one to Seaview Hospital and one to Fort Richmond Square.
