

U. S. to Clamp Liquor Lid on N.Y. City To-day

James S. Shevlin Declares He Will Seal Up Town "Hermetically" if It Is a Physical Possibility

Cases Swamp the Courts

Three of 13 Arrests Made in Premises Said To Be Owned by Federal Judge

James S. Shevlin, supervising officer of the government in the enforcement of prohibition, announced yesterday that he would clamp down the lid to-day and make New York a town "hermetically sealed" if within the domain of physical possibility. His battalion of liquor hunters has been augmented by fifty revenue agents from the moon-shine districts of Kentucky.

Henry D. Mildeberger, Assistant United States Attorney, in charge of the liquor enforcement division, announced that there have been 1,065 arrests under the prohibition amendment and the Volsted act, and that it would require Federal courts to sit eight hours a day for the next three months to clear the docket of the liquor cases.

Thirteen Arrests
Yesterday's enforcement raids netted thirteen arrests for violation of the prohibition laws. Among those gathered in by internal revenue agents was the bartender of "Yo Old Coffee House," 105 Broad Street, who sold two glasses of whisky, according to Mr. Mildeberger, to two revenue agents and charged them 70 cents a glass each. Fritz Lindinger and William Hemme, proprietors, are charged with maintaining a nuisance. It is said that a Federal judge owns the premises. Lindinger and Hemme gave bail of $250 each before United States Commissioner S. H. Hitchcock.

The most spectacular arrest made yesterday was that of two whisky "highwaymen," as they have come to be known to the Federal authorities. Nicola Marcehenna, of 2181 Arthur Avenue, the Bronx, and Louis Destfano, of 2457 Belmont Avenue, Manhattan, saw two boys rolling a barrel on 188th Street toward Arthur Avenue.

Marcehenna and Destfano, according to the Federal authorities, told the boys that they were violating the prohibition law by rolling a barrel along a public highway. The boys ran and Marcehenna and Destfano took possession of the barrel and resumed the rolling along 188th Street.

The subtle odors of the barrel, however, began to permeate the atmosphere and a crowd gathered. Two revenue agents also got a whiff.

Bartender Seized
Marcehenna and Destfano were held for $250 bail each to answer to a direct information charging possession and transportation of liquor.

Revenue agents found six quarts of whisky, seven quarts of wine and a quart of rum yesterday in a cellar at 322 Ninth Avenue, a saloon, and arrested Joseph Smith, a bartender. Smith was released under $250 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock.
