

Concentrated power! The two 12-cylinder 450-horsepower Liberty motors of Miss Detroit V, the seventy-mile-an-hour speed boat which will go overseas to compete for the Harmsworth Cup, won by England from the United States before the war. The newest Miss Detroit, which was launched in the city after which she is named, a week ago yesterday, is 38 feet long, with an 8-foot beam.

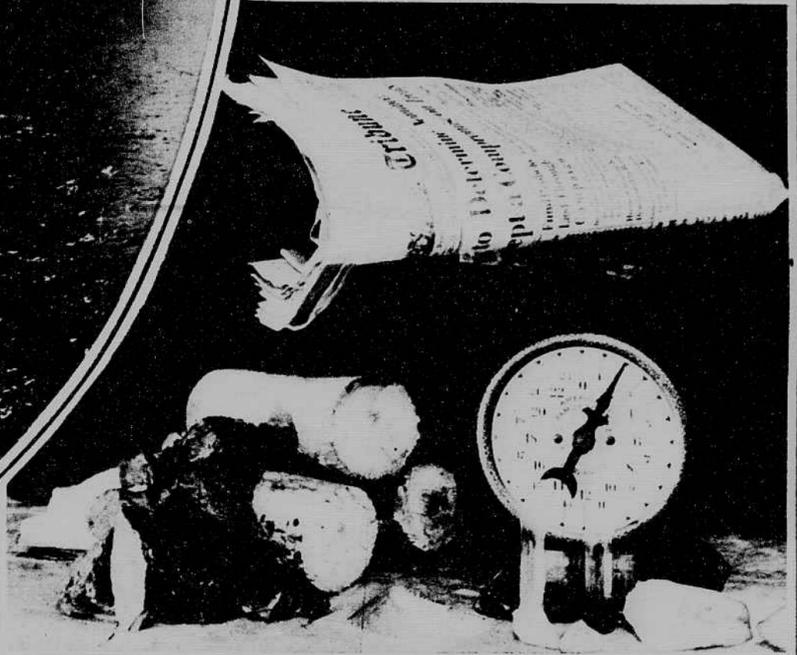

Two early birds—a graceful navy seaplane from the Rockaway station and a commuting, but wide-awake, photographer on a Staten Island ferryboat. Result, this unusually artistic sunrise photographic study of the Lower Bay.

A new picture of King Alexander of Greece, taken on the occasion of his visit to Paris last month to see his young wife, Mlle. Manos, to whom he was secretly andmorganatically married in Athens last fall. The Greek Chamber has not as yet decided whether the King's bride, who is a commoner, will be allowed to share the throne. Mlle. Manos is a Greek, tall, dark and one of the most beautiful girls in Athens society.

Woof! Woof! No one is going to dispute the right of way with this splendid team of husky Great Danes. J. Harry Myers' Rolling Hill Hoder and Rolling Hill Vider, winner and runner-up, respectively, in their class at the recent successful Mineola Dog Show.

Your two-pound Sunday Tribune and the materials (nearly six pounds) required to make the white paper in it—2 pounds of coal, 3 pounds of spruce wood, one ounce of sulphur, one ounce of rosin, red and blue dyes, one and a half ounces of unslaked lime and one ounce of bleaching powder. The shortage of print paper is due to the scarcity of these materials. Two years ago the paper in The Sunday Tribune cost less than three and a half cents; to-day more than ten. Newspapers, even at increased prices, are one of the few real bargains obtainable these days.

A recent public contest chose Mlle. Agnes Touret, of Biarritz, as the most beautiful girl in all of France. And here's the smiling beauty herself.

Two cheerful faces at the Chicago convention—those of Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt.
