It had a long court train, and over it fell a veil of lace.

Mrs. Archibald Marshall Denny was her sister's matron of honor, and she was in gray chiffon and satin, wore a blue gray chignon hat and carried blue larkspur.

Her small daughter, Katherine Denny, was the flower girl. The bridesmaids were Miss Marion Kerr and Miss Marion Hall. They were dressed in orchid colored chiffon, with which they wore blue chiffon hats, trimmed with wisteria.

Herbert Nash, of Norfolk, Va., served as Mr. Grosse's best man, and the ushers were Walton Cox, Henry Gardner, William Cogswell and Archer Hill.

Owing to the illness of the bride's father the reception which followed at the home was small.

Mr. and Mrs. Grosse will live at 41 West Eleventh Street.

London Lord Mayor Honors Symphony Orchestra of N. Y.

Walter Damrosch, the Conductor, is Decorated With the Medal of the Royal Musicians' Company

LONDON, June 18.—High tribute was paid the New York Symphony Orchestra to-day, when Sir Edward Elgar, Cooper, Lord Mayor of London, gave a luncheon for its members at the Mansion House.

Many distinguished persons were present to honor Walter Damrosch, conductor, and the other American musicians.

Among those attending the luncheon were John W. Davis, American Ambassador, and Mrs. Davis; Viscount Bryce, former British Ambassador to the United States; Sir Gilbert Parker, the novelist, and a number of noted English musicians, including Sir Henry Joseph Wood, London, and Sir Alexander Campbell MacKenzie.

The Lord Mayor, himself a musician who sang for twenty years in St. Paul's, conferred on Mr. Damrosch the rare honor of the medal of the Royal Musicians' Company, of which the Lord Mayor is master. The medal has been struck but not received, and will be sent to Mr. Damrosch at New York.

In a brief speech Mr. Damrosch said that the seven weeks' tour of Belgium, France and Italy had been accomplished despite every kind of strike, and their mission had been cultural as well as musical.

"We feel that we have promoted the amity of nations," he added. "We have arrived here whole, sane and healthy, and our reception has gladdened our hearts. We want to wish a dark, weird, heavy curse upon those who have done this to us."

$1,000,000 Fund Asked for Fordham For New Buildings

Dr. Tivnan Makes Appeal to Alumni at Graduation; Enrollment Is Tripled; 219 Receive Degrees

A request for $1,000,000 from the Rev. Dr. Edward P. Tivnan, president of Fordham University, to be used for new college buildings and endowment, marked the commencement exercises on the college campus yesterday afternoon.

The appeal was made directly to Fordham graduates, and will not be conducted in the manner of a "drive."

Two hundred and nineteen young men received degrees from the college of medicine, pharmacy, law and arts and sciences. Miss Mary McCumb received a degree of bachelor of science, the first woman ever to receive this degree from the university.

Fifteen sisters, including the attending university, in addition to carrying on their work among Catholic children, also were awarded the degree of master of arts.

This year's class is the largest ever graduated from Fordham University and is the forerunner of other large classes.

The recent remarkable growth of Fordham University, the student body having been multiplied three times during the last twelve years, Dr. Tivnan said, "has made the task too great. If the university is to continue at the top notch of its possibilities for usefulness, we, like other colleges, must issue a call for aid."

Dr. Tivnan explained that the fund of $1,000,000 must be divided equally between a building fund and an endowment fund. Only one building has been added in the last twelve years, although the enrollment has tripled. The most pressing need is for a new science building to cost $250,000, and for a library and administration building.

The university has a library of 125,000 volumes, but these are inaccessible to large numbers of students because of insufficient space.

The second $500,000 would be applied to the running expenses of the college, which are not met by the tuition fees of $150 a year. Dr. Tivnan said the average tuition fee received was $55.

It was announced that the Medical School is to be discontinued. The present junior class will receive degrees next year, but they will be the last.

The Medical School has been continued for the last two years only through the personal contributions of its friends.

The address to the graduating class was made by Alfred J. Talley, Assistant District Attorney, who was assisted by Justice Albert H. F. Seeger, of the Supreme Court of Westchester County.

John P. O'Brien, Corporation Counsel of New York City, and Thomas E. Rush, Surveyor of the Port of New York.

The honor man of the day was Edmund B. Butler, a member of the law class. He was the first graduate of the School of Arts four years ago, and since his entrance into the Law School has continually held first place in his class.

He is the only graduate to receive his degree "Summa cum Laude." The degree of doctor of philosophy was conferred upon Edward C. Sullivan, the Rev. John L. Bedford, Edwin A. Bolger, the Rev. Joseph A. Murphy, John J. Leonard, Maricetta Reilly and Maurice E. Rogalin.

Cathedral College, the preparatory department of St. Joseph's Seminary at Dunwoodie, held its commencement exercises yesterday at the Aeolian Hall. The graduating class consisted of forty-four members.

The closing sale of the art season at the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries will begin June 22 and will include house furnishings and art objects, both modern and antique.

Modern paintings, etchings and other prints, choice covered furniture suitable for country houses, garden marbles, European and American porcelains, art objects and modern furnishings will be placed on exhibition in the Plaza Art Rooms prior to their sale at auction on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

The Tribune Fresh Air Fund

Breaking the Grip of the Tenements

Here's a fresh air story with a moral written by a fresh air boy himself: "May 6, 1920. 'Mrs. J. Murtaugh: I guess you will be surprised to receive a letter from someone whom you most likely have forgotten and whom you don't know from Adam. I take the liberty to write you and ask how you are feeling and wishing that the good times I once had at Oxford could be lived over."

"Many times since I have dreamed of some day visiting the only country that I've ever liked. My most cherished hope is that some day I shall be able to own a nice old-fashioned cottage in Oxford and live the life of a true American on the land that God made for us. As each summer comes and goes my heart yearns for the happy days I spent at Oxford. If I made a wish now as to what I would want most I can tell you I wouldn't hesitate as to what it would be."

"I can picture to myself all the places surrounding the houses and barns where we used to play. Many times I've felt down hearted but when I think of old times my sorrows all end."

"I am enclosing money and stamps for which I would like to please send me the last paper published (when this reaches you) in Oxford. I want to read about the people who once treated me so royally. Never will I forget how you gave me my dinner when I didn't expect any. I have some hope of coming out to Oxford some time this summer. Hoping to hear from you soon, I am a friend, WILLIAM OKRENT."

The tenement problem! More has probably been written about it and the possibilities of solving it, than concerning any other single problem confronting the citizens of New York. Doubtless there is no single great cure-all for all the ills of tenement congestion.

As the writer of the letter shows, the Tribune Fresh Air Fund is nibbling Joffre-like at the outskirts of the problem.

Why do people live in tenements? Some, of course, because of poverty; some because they like crowds and tumult; some because they've never realized the contrast between their tenement homes and the homes of other people. Not all tenement dwellers hate the tenements—they don't know enough about the modes of life in other places to do so. This is especially true of children born and reared in tenement homes.

But here's a lad who got the contrast vividly through a fresh air vacation. "My most cherished hope is that some day I shall be able to own a nice old-fashioned cottage in Oxford."

It was in 1913 that he had his vacation. The picture has kept fresh in his mind for seven years.

In that period the fund has given probably 30,000 children of the tenements a chance to gain the same sort of picture by placing them in private homes like that of Mrs. Murtaugh for country outings. How many shall the fund give a similar chance to this year?

Your contribution in support of the work will help to determine that. Send it to-day.

Becky Lanier Captures 3 Prizes at Horse Show

Riding Feature of Second Day at Godfrey Farms; Racer Bolts into Crowd

The riding of Miss Becky Lanier was the outstanding feature of the second day of the Westchester Horse Show at Godfrey Farms yesterday.

On Down East she won first in the hunters' and jumpers' class, and on the same mount got second in the Corinthian hunters' class. She won first on Chestnut Blossom in the ponies-under-saddle class.

The Corinthian hunters' class furnished the most thrills. The Devil, with Miss Michelle Newburg up, bolted after taking the hurdle, jumped the fence near the judges' stand and crashed into the crowd. No one was hurt. A little later, in the same event, William H. Madison, on Enoch Graham, had a nasty spill at the third jump, but was not injured.

Great Heart, Percy A. Rockefeller's favorite hunter, won the blue ribbon in this class. It was his second first in two days, for he won the blue for heavy and middle weight hunters on Thursday. Another of Mr. Rockefeller's stable, Virginia, with Mrs. Folsom up, won second place in the jumpers' class.

Others who captured ribbons yesterday included Mrs. A. Rutledge Smith, Miss Mollie Cranford, Miss Sallie B. Thomas, Miss Newburg, Miss Ivy Madison, Miss Hope Vandell, Miss Geraldine Lee, Miss Clara S. Peck, Miss Joan E. Nichol, Mrs. Francis P. Gorman, Miss Betty Berry and Mrs. E. A. De Peyster.

Zerola III, "Otello" Postponed

Owing to the sudden indisposition of Nicola Zerola, who was to have appeared in the title role of Verdi's "Otello" at the Lexington Theater this evening, the performance has been postponed until next Saturday evening.

The Republican Call to Battle. When the call to battle is heard, differences within the ranks are forgotten in the common hatred of the foe. So observers of all political leanings, looking back on the Chicago convention, find the Republicans, tho of contrary minds on various issues, thoroughly at one in their determination to defeat President Wilson, his party, and his policies. The first note in this "Hymn of Hate" was sounded in Senator Lodge's declaration that "Mr. Wilson and his dynasty, his heirs, and his assigns, or anybody that is his, anybody who with bent knee has served his purposes, must be driven from all control, from all influence upon the Government of the United States." The one bond of agreement between the Republicans assembled at Chicago was "the feeling against Wilson and his works," asserts the Louisville Courier-Journal, and the New York Sun characterizes the Chicago platform as the expression of "mighty Republican indignation, preparing to evict the undesirable tenant." For all the important news, with special attention given to reporting the Republican Convention, you should read this week's LITERARY DIGEST, dated June 19th.
