

Five Expelled Socialists Win Again at Polls

tion Candidates Make a Poor Showing, as Republicans and Democrats Stay Away From Polling Places

Disorder at Booths Alloting Unusually Light, but Gives the Ousted Men Overwhelming Majorities

The entire Socialist delegation, which was ousted from the last session of the Assembly by Speaker Madison C. Street, was rejected at the special elections held here yesterday.

While the vote in each of the five districts was considerably smaller than a year ago, the Socialists won over their opponents by considerably large majorities.

The small vote for the fusion candidates proved the statements made by Republican and Democratic leaders in the district that the fusion candidates of the two major parties would not go to the polls as a protest against the ouster of last winter.

Socialist Vote Falls Off The Socialist vote in the five districts was only half of what it was a year ago, yet the Socialists won by majorities in excess of 1,000 and a fifth had a majority of more than 600.

The small Socialist vote was a surprise. In these five districts more than 1,200 Socialists were added to the Socialist strength by legalized colonizing—moving Socialists from other districts into the five where the special elections were being held.

Another election yesterday was devoted to disorder of any kind. Several polling places in the Bronx failed to open at 6 o'clock as the law requires. Some of the Socialists carried their complaints to the Board of Elections, saying that they believed it a plot to prevent their followers from voting.

John R. Voorhis, president of the board, at once requested Police Commissioner Enright to instruct the policemen on duty at the polling places to see that all who were in line at 5 o'clock were permitted to cast their ballots.

The Socialists had written to Governor Smith and to other officials that they anticipated fraud, and asked that they be afforded protection. As a result of their letter, the Board of Association placed special watchers in every polling booth in addition to those maintained by the political organizations.

Vote in Five Districts The vote in the five districts was:

Soldier Bandit Is Held Without Bail as Slayer

Van Reed Shows No Emotion When Arraigned for Murder of 34th Street Tailor

Harry Van Reed, the soldier bandit who Wednesday entered the tailor shop of Max Rabinowitz at 233 West Thirty-fourth Street and, after failing to rob the place, shot and killed Rabinowitz, and seriously wounded his wife, Emma, was held without bail yesterday on a charge of murder.

Emotionless and apparently interested only in the legal proceedings accompanying his arraignment, he said he was thirty-six years old and lived at 52 St. Nicholas Avenue.

While he was in West Side Court Magistrate Tobias received word that Mrs. Rabinowitz's condition was unchanged and that possibility of her recovering was slight.

Assistant District Attorney Hennis, of the Homicide Bureau, told the court that he would present the evidence to the grand jury to-day, and expected an indictment by to-night.

One Killed, 20 Hurt As Runaway Trolley Hits Tree at Ithaca

Members of Cornell Football Squad in Fatal Collision; Motorcar Loses Control of Car Going Up Steep Hill

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 16.—One man was killed and twenty persons were injured, three perhaps fatally, this afternoon, when a runaway streetcar laden with passengers, many of whom were members of the Cornell football squad on their way to practice, crashed into a tree after running down hill for four blocks.

The dead man is J. C. Berger, of Springville, N. Y. One of the most seriously injured is A. G. Nosek, of Cleveland, a candidate for the Cornell football eleven. His injuries are internal. The other two whose injuries the physicians say may be fatal are Berger's wife, who has severe spinal injuries, and Mrs. Mary Moe, of this city, whose skull was fractured when she jumped from the car.

The car got out of control as it was ascending the steep Eddy Street grade and had just reached the Eddy Street gate to the university grounds, when, according to the motorman, something snapped and the car began to back down the grade.

After it had run four blocks, gathering momentum as it descended, the car jumped the track and crashed into a tree, a few feet short of a sixty-foot embankment.

The impact split the car half in two and threw the passengers in all directions.

Cars Stoned by Strike Mobs In Brooklyn

Two Attacks Are Made and Several Persons Injured; Police Scatter Crowds and Arrest Two Men

Help Is Demanded From Compers as Union Offers $5 to Married Men Only

Crowds of strikers or their sympathizers attacked trolley cars in Brooklyn yesterday for the first time since the early days of the strike. Two cars were attacked, both in the Williamsburg section. Nearly 2,000 police guarded the cars.

Several hundred persons, most of whom were throwing stones, bricks or bottles, brought a Nostrand Avenue car to a stop at Park Avenue and thronged about it while the motorman and conductor sought shelter inside. The siege was kept up until six cars had been stalled, all of which were targeted for the mob's missiles.

Patrolmen Bearns and Gleason seized three of the attackers and stood guard over them with drawn revolvers. This aroused the crowd to a more angry pitch and jeers and missiles were directed at the patrolmen when they retreated from the Vernon Avenue police station came up on the run and dispersed the crowd.

The prisoners said they were Joseph and James Fanielletti, of 2353 East Fifteenth Street, Brooklyn, and Joseph Ventello, of 805 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn. None of them was on strike. Joseph Fanielletti and Joseph Ventello were charged with disorderly conduct and James Fanielletti with malicious mischief.

A Union Avenue car became a target for stones and bricks at Union and Driggs avenues. Louis Leveroth, the motorman, fell beneath the hail of missiles, and the crowd surged about the car, threatening to lynch him and the conductor. Reserves from the Greenpoint and Bedford Avenue police stations dispersed the mob. Leveroth was able to proceed with his car after an ambulance surgeon had patched him up.

About 2,000 B. R. T. strikers attended a meeting in Brooklyn Labor League, Myrtle and Willoughby avenues, and cheered when James Sheridan, chairman of the meeting, directed them to form a line for the payment of a "strike benefit."

The din was redoubled and reversed in tone, however, when the men discovered that the maximum payment was only $5, and that only married men were entitled to receive that. Several flung down the $5 offered them, saying in ill-tempered accents that they would be ashamed to take such a sum home to their wives. About 1,500, however, waited until they had pocketed the money to express their disappointment. E. J. Shea, vice-president of the union, who was standing in the front of the hall, was surrounded by clamorous strikers, who shouted inquiries as to why Samuel Compers didn't help them. Mr. Shea's only response was: "What can I do?"

The B. R. T. reported to the Public Service Commission that its subway and elevated service was 81 per cent normal yesterday. Two hundred and ten trains, composed of 1,073 cars, were in operation, an increase of seven trains over Wednesday's figures. The 190 surface cars in operation were seventy-seven more than were in service Wednesday. Seven surface lines were in operation last night and night service will be started on strike to-night. The Wilson Avenue line which will be operated to-day will be the fifty-second of its sixty-seven surface lines the B. R. T. has put into service since the strike began.

In spite of the abnormal call made on the Police Department by the Wall Street explosion, patrolmen were on guard throughout the day on the trolley lines and subways in Brooklyn.

Shopkeeper Flees and Is Pursued; Others Shoot One and Capture Another Suspect

Three men, one of them more than six feet tall, entered Philip Gordon's candy shop at 127 Forsyth Street about 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning and inquired if he had them in a game of poker. He refused, he said, and the three set upon him, one of them stabbing the shopkeeper in the chest.

Regardless of his wound, Gordon broke away and ran to Herman Zeller's room at 97 Forsyth Street, in front of which several men were sitting. One of them interrupted Gordon to tell him he was wanted. At sight of the blood Gordon fled senseless.

The three men had pursued him and came up at this point, causing those seated outside the tea room to take hasty refuge inside. Max Renner, of 190 Forsyth Street, one of those seated inside, ran out, however, on learning of the attack on Gordon and grappled with a tall man he met at the door.

The other two ran and were pursued by the group, which a moment before had fled from them. In the chase one of the pursuers fired five shots from a revolver and ran to the door of 243 East Eighty-fourth Street, which was turning ahead of the crowd, fell with a bullet in his groin.

Renner's prisoner said he was Tobias Levine, of 221 Division Street. He was locked up at the Clinton Street police station, charged with felonious assault and attempted robbery. Collins, who was taken to the Roosevelt Hospital, also was arrested. Gordon also was taken to Gouverneur Hospital.

Held on Charge of Fraud Anastasius G. Vernard, secretary of the American Company of Commerce, who was named with six other Greeks, officers and employees of the same company, in an indictment handed down last September, charging conspiracy to defraud, was arrested yesterday on Broad Street by an agent of the Department of Justice.

The other named in the indictment are already held in jail. He was the only one missing. George Pteriotis, president of the company, who is held in $100,000 bail, is also named in an involuntary bankruptcy suit instituted by the Bank of Athens, Greece.

Vernard was arraigned before Federal Judge William Sheppard and was held in $50,000 bail.

Speech is silver and silence is golden Henry Van Dyke, poet and preacher, wrote with his own legible hand in a birthday book of a young lady friend.

Beautiful words they are, and good to live with every day. A careful analysis of the common talk in the daily round gives convincing proof that speech in the main is mostly nickel.

Whereas silence is wrought into golden bars and coins of unbroken friendships, unlost loves and betterments, instead of estrangements of lives. (Signed) John Wanamaker
