

EUROPE'S MOST FAMOUS WINTER RESORT, the popular St. Moritz in the Swiss Alps as viewed by a daring aviator. Tobogganing, skiing and skating (note the several rinks between the village and the snow-covered lake at the right), that may be indulged in to the limit, draw to this quaint wintertime rendezvous, with its fashionable hotels, tourists and dyed-in-the-wool lovers of outdoor sports, from all over the Continent. Keystone

KENTUCKY'S FIRST OIL GUSHER, the Whittaker-Kelly, which came in so unexpectedly that it tore the arm off its driller and spouted a flaming column of oil to a height of 175 feet for seventeen hours before its precious flow was finally diverted into a reservoir and saved for future use in twin sixes. International

A DRESS REHEARSAL FOR THE STYX. Since there are no streets in Spreewald, near Berlin, everything is transported after the fashion in vogue in Venice. When a native dies he is borne to his grave in a hearse-punt. International

Right—A PHOTOGRAPHER'S "SCOOP." A snap through a cell door of the Norristown (Pa.) jail of a Captain of State Police obtaining a confession from Auguste Pasquale to the murder of little kidnaped Blakely Coughlin. International

Left—CAPTOR AND CAPTIVE. Martin Johnson, a movie producer, arrives in England from the South Seas, bringing along with him a mick-faced orang-outang. International

Right—FROM ALASKA BY AIR. Two of the army aviators who completed the magnificent round trip to Alaska, and the three Arctic dogs who returned with them. Wide World

AN INTERESTING RELIC of the engineering methods of yesterday. A quaint and powerful old waterwheel erected at Troy in 1838, and which was in continuous use up to 1890, supplying motive power for a large plant. It is 60 feet in diameter and developed 1200 horse power. International

ALL AT SEA ON THE BEACH at Ostend during one of the sand yacht races that have come back again with all their pre-war popularity at this popular Belgium coast resort. Kadel & Herbert

NEW YORK'S OWN DAISY ASHFORD. Clever thirteen-year-old Helen Lincoln, talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Lincoln, who has already dashed off one novel, several short stories and a goodly quantity of excellent verse. Underwood
