Veterans Protect Einstein

Fight Off Cleveland Throns in Crush to See Scientist CLEVELAND, May 25.—Only the strenuous efforts of a squad of Jewish war veterans, who fought the people off in their mad attempts to see them, saved Professor Albert Einstein, discoverer of the Einstein theory of relativity, and Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, from possible injury upon their return here to-day. City officials, reception committees of Zionist leaders and several thousand citizens thronged Union Station to welcome them.

Most Jewish merchants closed their stores to-day. Professor Einstein, Dr. Weizmann, with their wives, were escorted to the City Hall, where in the City Council chamber formal welcoming ceremonies were staged.

Open Business Policy Urged

Only by taking every one into their confidence can the business men of the country overcome the obstacles in their path of complex relationships, said C. D. Hardy, of Swift & Co., speaking on reconstruction problems at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Midway Hotel, yesterday. Mr. Hardy handles economic questions for the packing concern, dealing with organization, profits, purchases and distribution. "Normal times will return only when buyers begin ordering up to their full capacity," he continued, "and this they will not do until we give them all the facts. In the same way we cannot get the country on its feet unless we tell them the whole truth. We cannot interest capital unless its holders know just where we stand. The actual cost of every product, the profit expected on each, and the reasons for our producing costs must all be public property."

Diplomas Given To 12 Graduates Of Divinity School

General Theological Seminary Confers Doctor's Degree on Rev. H. Percy Silver at Commencement

Diplomas were presented yesterday at the General Theological Seminary, Chelsea Square, to the twelve graduates of the class of '21. The commencement exercises took place in the Chapel of the Good Shepherd, on the Twenty-first Street side of the seminary quadrangle. Bishop Lines, of Newark, presented the diplomas to the graduates, while the Rev. Dr. Hughell Edgar Woodall Fosbrooke, the dean, conferred seventeen degrees. The Rev. John William Nichols, dean of the Theological School at St. John's University, Shanghai, China, delivered the commencement address.

The graduates, candidates for degrees, alumni and friends gathered in the chapel at 11 o'clock. A church service preceded the commencement exercises. At its conclusion the Rev. Mr. Nichols addressed the graduates, asking them to strive for unity and harmony in the churches to which they soon would be assigned.

The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred by Dean Fosbrooke upon the Right Rev. Hugh L. Burleson, of South Dakota, and upon the Rev. H. Percy Silver, of the Church of the Incarnation, New York. The Rev. Dr. Donald E. Horrocks was made Master of Divinity, and fourteen clergymen received bachelorships.

Four prizes were awarded. The Greek diploma prize was given to Henry Hamblin Chapman; the Walter and Gary prize for meritorious work by Henry C. Chase, of New York; the Gary prize for leaders by Robert Stanley Lambert, of Philadelphia; and a special prize for juniors by Harold Leslie Gilmer, of Westfield, Mass.

Following the exercises luncheon was served in Hoffman Hall.

Stuart Needlework on Exhibition Here June 1

Collection of 61 Heirlooms Includes Sleeves Embroidered by Queen Anne

A unique collection of Stuart needlework has been brought to this country by A. S. Davis, the London art collector. It will be exhibited in the Dawson gallery, beginning June 1, at a whole sale price. The collection consists of sixty-one pieces, the heirlooms of old families. One by one, they fell into the hands of the Royal School of Art Needlework, which supported the Queen. They cover the period from the reign of Charles I to William and Mary. The most valuable pieces are a pair of the satin sleeves, embroidered in gold thread, made in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and used by Charles I. It is in a state of perfect preservation. There are purses, caskets, pictures, tapestry, panels and boxes with perfect samples of text stitch and stump work. One of the most interesting pieces is a lace sampler, which was the property of a French nobleman, and was brought to this country by his wife. It has been made by the direct descendants of Oliver Cromwell.

Many of the stitches on these pieces are done in very fine silk thread. So many are crowded into the space of a square inch that it is almost necessary to use a magnifying glass to distinguish them. In some cases women's hair is used for the threads.

The collection represents the work of queens and their attendants. It is the first historically complete record of the needlework of centuries that has been on view in this country.

Seek $2,000,000 for Blind Number of Sightless Obtaining Work Is Increasing Daily

Blind men are being employed in daily increasing numbers at the Bourne Workshop for Blind Men, 338 East Thirty-fifth Street, conducted under the auspices of the League for the Blind, 111 East Fifty-ninth Street.

FIFTH AVENUE AT FORTY-SIXTH

The Summer Restaurants of Hotel Pennsylvania

Up on the roof are the delightful Garden Restaurants which contribute so much, just by their gay and colorful beauty, toward making any meal a holiday meal. At dinner time and supper time there's dancing (except on Sundays)—with unusually good music to dance to—by the famous Pennsylvania Dance Orchestra.

On the Lobby Floor there's a summer garden restaurant too (a new feature for this summer). The big Main Dining Room is wearing summer things and is an altogether pleasant place for a delicious luncheon or dinner. No dancing here, but music for music lovers by the Pennsylvania Concert Orchestra.

If you are fond of good books, and have a reasonable dislike for modern wood pulp editions, come and look over the many delightful sets and single volumes of the authors you love, printed on real linen paper, with fascinating contemporary morocco bindings—18th and early 19th century issues.
