American Feat of Arms Patented by Du Moulin

Noted French Artist Arrives to Install Diorama of the Battle of Chateau Thierry

Among passengers arriving Saturday on the steamship France were M. Felix Danbe and a corps of assistants, whose mission to this country is to install the diorama of the battle of Chateau Thierry, recently completed by M. Louis du Moulin, an officer of the Legion of Honor and official painter for the French government.

With the assistance of Major General G. C. Marshall, of General Pershing's staff, Brigadier General W. S. Lattin, Colonel Storer, and other officers, who furnished him with necessary data for the diorama, M. du Moulin has depicted with accuracy one of the most thrilling of American military actions. Generals Pershing, Foch and Petain are supporters of the project.

Minority Zionists Plan Separate Palestine Aid

Pittsburgh Conference Urged to Find Broad Economic Program of Development

PITTSBURGH, July 3.—The future role of the minority group of the Zionist organization of America in Palestine development and in American and international Zion affairs was discussed this afternoon at the opening session, in the William Penn Hotel, of the Palestine Development Association. The associates comprise that group of Zionists, headed by Justice Louis M. Brandeis, of the Supreme Court, and Judge Julian M. Mack, of Chicago, which was defeated last month in Cleveland at the annual convention of the Zionist organization of America.

One hundred and thirty-seven persons, leaders in American Jewry, are attending the conference. Prominent among them, besides Judge Brandeis and Judge Mack, are Jacob D. Hays, of New York; Professor Felix Frankfurter, of Harvard University, and Rabbi A. H. Silver, of Cleveland.

Judge Mack was elected chairman of the conference, and Judge Brandeis, of the Cleveland convention, said that only such support should be given Palestine as to make its residents self-reliant, self-supporting and self-respecting.

Prof. Frankfurter and Robert Szold, the latter of New York, proposed a "wholehearted" economic organization to aid in Palestine development. A broad economic program was declared by the former to be the best solution of muddled conditions in the Holy Land.

Messages of greeting were sent to Sir Herbert Samuel, High Commissioner of Palestine, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress. The conference will continue to-morrow.

John F. Wallace, Noted Engineer, Dies Suddenly

First Chief Executive of Panama Canal Construction Also Held Many Important Rail Posts

Built Chicago Terminals

Did Notable Work in Connection With Mississippi River Improvement

WASHINGTON, July 3.—John Findlay Wallace, first chief engineer of the Panama Canal and actual head of the working force that created it, one of the best known civil engineers in the world, died suddenly here to-night. He was sixty-seven years old.

Mr. Wallace was born at Fall River, Mass., his father having been David Wallace, an eminent Scotch Presbyterian minister. After completing his high school course at Fall River, Mr. Wallace attended Monmouth, Ill., College, and later took the civil engineering course at Wooster in 1882. He was a student at Armour Institute, Chicago.

In 1875 he had made a reputation for his work in improving the upper Mississippi River and Rock Island Rapids as assistant United States engineer on upper Mississippi improvement, and became chief engineer of the Peoria & Farmington Railroad. In 1878 he assumed the same position with the Central Iowa Railway. In 1881 he became construction engineer and general manager of the Chicago, Madison & Northern Railroad. He was engineer of the Illinois Central Railroad Company from 1891 to 1904. He was made first American engineer in charge of the World's Fair railway terminals at Chicago in 1892, also the new passenger terminal for the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, one of the most notable railway structures in the country.

Mr. Wallace conducted extensive surveys and examinations and created the first construction organization for the Panama Canal. He was chairman of the Chicago Railway Terminal Commission and engineering consultant to large corporations.

Mr. Wallace was past president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Railway Engineering Association, Western Society of Engineers and a member of the Institute of Civil Engineers of Great Britain. He was a member of the Union League Club, the Automobile Club of America, Bankers and Engineers, Sleepy Hollow Country Club, New York, the Metropolitan Club, the Y. M. C. A., the Union League of Chicago and the South Shore Country Club of Chicago. Mr. Wallace's home in New York was at 30 West End Avenue.

J. S. Mitchell, Well Known Sporting Writer, Dies

Former Holder of World's Record for Hammer Throw; Author of Several Books

James Sarsfield Mitchell, former holder of the world's record for the hammer throw and a well known sport writer, died in Roosevelt Hospital yesterday from heart disease. He had been in the hospital for almost three months. His home was at 256 West 122d Street.

He was born in Tipperary, Ireland, in 1868, and came to America at the age of twenty. He was the champion of the hammer throw of Ireland before he left his native country.

In his first appearance in the United States, Mr. Mitchell, competing for the New York Athletic Club, threw the hammer 118 feet 11 inches. The weight was later found to be two pounds over the required 16-pound hammer, and in another competition a few weeks later he hurled the regulation hammer 225 feet 10 inches, establishing a world's record. He improved this mark almost annually until in 1896 it stood at 145 feet 4 inches. In 1901 he lost his crown to John Flanagan.

He was a member of the sporting staff of the New York Herald and the author of several works on rowing and polo. He was a member of the New York Athletic Club. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.
