At that hour daylight saving ends, for the winter at least, and thereafter all the clocks of the state will strike as nearly in unison as their individual peculiarities permit.

Transfusion Used In Fight for Life

Relatives of Mrs. Lawes, Who Killed Self, Deny Jealousy Caused Act

A pint of blood, transfused from the veins of a young interne to those of Miss Mildred Hanan, daughter of the late Alfred P. Hanan, wealthy shoe manufacturer, may be the means, it was said last night at Long Island College Hospital, Brookl. n., of saving the life of Miss Hanan, who was shot and gravely wounded early yesterday morning by Mrs. Grace Lawes, who had been her friend for years.

Mrs. Lawes lies dead by her own hand in the morgue of the Kings County Hospital, Brookl. n. She shot herself through the roof of the mouth a moment after she had wounded Miss Hanan on the steps of the apartment house at 35 Schermerhorn Street.

Dr. Harvey Fiat, of the hospital staff, gave his blood to Miss Hanan after physicians said she could not live without a transfusion. At her bedside last night her mother, Mrs. Clara Hanan; her father, Alfred P. Hanan; her grandfather, William Moulden, and John S. Hanan, who was with her when Mrs. Lawes shot her, watched eagerly for the expected turn for the better.

Miss Hanan was wounded twice by two shots fired by Mrs. Lawes from an automatic pistol she took from a handbag when Miss Hanan and Dorothy Gutschalk, a friend of both, were in the apartment house at 35 Schermerhorn Street.

Motive for Act a Mystery One bullet passed through her arm, and another through her chest and passed downward, passing through the right breast and lodging in the right lung.

Three weeks ago, according to friends of both, Miss Hanan and Mrs. Lawes, who was her guest at the Hanan home at 35 Schermerhorn Street, quarreled so bitterly that Mrs. Hanan felt it necessary to ask Mrs. Lawes to leave the house. What the quarrel was about none would say.

Stock Record Of Enright's Friend Bared

Allan A. Ryan, financier and special deputy police commissioner, who had presented $12,000 to Commissioner of Police Enright as "profits" of a "fictitious stock transaction," was summoned to the headquarters of the Meyer legislative investigating committee yesterday with the records of his firm, Allan A. Ryan & Co., respecting the trading accounts of Edward P. Hughes.

Deals Arouse Inquiry

Hughes was a police inspector in charge of the detective bureau at the time of the Herman Rosenthal murder, but was a police captain when he retired in 1918. He is reputed to be one of Commissioner Enright's most intimate friends, having been best man at Mr. Enright's wedding. He is now head of a detective agency.

Ryan Forced to Wait Neither Senator Schuyler M. Meyer, chairman of the committee, nor Elton R. Brown, chief counsel to the body, was at the offices at 38 Park Row when Mr. Enright appeared with a bundle of documents in his arm, and the financier had to wait about fifteen minutes before one of the committee's aids received the papers.

Senator Meyer intimated yesterday that the committee was by no means satisfied with the statement that there is a possibility of the financier's being called to the witness stand and being requested to go over the deal in detail. Hughes also may be asked to take the stand as well as some of the other millionaire special deputy police commissioners, such as Coleman du Pont and Dr. John A. Harris.

Formal Recount to Be Asked Monday; Shalleck Gets Two Death Threats

Vincent S. Lippe, counsel for James J. Hines, yesterday informed the Board of Elections that enough frauds had been discovered in an examination of less than half of the election districts in Manhattan to show that the Democratic nomination for Borough President had been stolen from Hines. He also announced that he would cease his preliminary examination of the ballots and apply to Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel on Monday for a formal recount.

The recount, if granted—assuming the frauds alleged by Lippe prove to be thorough-wide—will show Hines nominated by an estimated majority of 12,692 votes over Julius Miller, Charles F. Murphy's candidate, who, on the face of the returns, was nominated by a majority of 8,511.

Treaty Sent To the Senate; Quick Action Is Forecast

2 Reservations Adopted; Congress to Authorize Naming of U.S. Member on Reparations Board

Nationals' Rights To Be Protected

Harding Will Accept the Changes; Troops to Be Returned Home From Rhine Without Delay

By Carter Field

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Adoption of two reservations to the new German peace treaty by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today, and their prompt acceptance as unobjectionable by the Administration, cleared the path for prompt ratification. The committee reported favorably the German, Austrian and Hungarian treaties, and Chairman Lodge of the committee served notice that he would call them up for action to-morrow.

Other Treaties to Follow

Ratification of the treaties with the Central Powers, The Tribune correspondent was informed to-day, would be followed at once by the negotiation of treaties with Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, clearing up all the questions which were left in the air by the failure of this country to ratify the Versailles Treaty, and which were not concluded in the treaties with the Central Powers.

Thus will be written into treaties the principle which the Harding Administration has been insisting on—that the mandates were ceded by Germany to these five powers, of which the United States is one, and that the rights of the United States to a one-fifth interest must be recognized.

Treaties to Insure Open Door

It would also insure the maintenance of the open door not only in Mesopotamia, but in the Pacific islands, which compose the "C" mandates, providing equal opportunities for Americans in the Caroline and Marshall islands, including Yap, which were awarded to Japan as mandates.
