

Banks of China Stand for Firm National Policy

MANIFESTO ADVISING ASSERTION OF COUNTRY'S INTEGRITY ISSUED TO GUIDE ENVOYS TO ARMS CONFERENCE

Special Rights Denounced

Document Reflects Disposition to Rebel Against Aggressions of Japanese

PEKING, Oct. 9 (By The Associated Press)—The Chinese banking community, the strongest banking group in China, with important connections and influence, has issued a manifesto "for the guidance of the Chinese policy at the Washington conference," in which support is given for the Chinese stand relative to Shanghai.

In its preamble the manifesto states that the conference must aim to secure the permanent peace in the Far East and that decisions contrary to equity, even though taken hastily, must be avoided. It states that the Chinese stand on the Shanghai question is "in which support is given for the Chinese stand relative to Shanghai."

The principle of the preservation of territorial integrity must receive first consideration, and the principle must not be infringed by granting concessions, or conferring preferential or exceptional rights to foreign individuals. This upholds the Chinese stand on the Shanghai question.

Any agreement between two nations affecting territorial integrity, or involving the loss of territory, shall be accepted by the third, it shall be the cardinal rule in all international dealings. This pertains to the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

Opposes Spheres of Influence

Provided the first and second suggestions are accepted by the conference, China will agree to the open door policy, subject to having renunciation of other nations' spheres of influence and special interests. (The Chinese people and government always have regarded concessions and the recognition of certain Japanese rights in southern Manchuria, eastern and inner Mongolia as violating China's sovereignty.)

Chinese bankers are favorably disposed toward international financial cooperation, provided the co-operation is no wise interference with Chinese financial and economic development. (Chinese bankers always have maintained that China's interests are best served by consortiums, working through them whenever foreign loans are necessary.)

Foil Plot to Pass $40,000,000 Bogus U. S. Bills in Europe

BUDAPEST, Oct. 9 (By The Associated Press)—A gang of forgers who planned to float $40,000,000 of counterfeit American currency in the states of Central Europe have been arrested here.

The counterfeiters specialized in a twenty-dollar bill, several hundred of which had been circulated. The forgeries were detected through the fact that all bills bore identical numbers and the additional fact that the paper on which they were printed had more than the normal quantity of silk threads. The bills were said to be remarkably close to perfection in execution.

Members of the gang had 5,000 of the completed bills when they were arrested and materials enough to print a total of 2,000,000 bills.

They are believed to have had accomplices among the Budapest police and to have had agents in Bulgaria, Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania. The police believe a large quantity of the forged banknotes were sent to Belgrade and Sofia.

young men, but no country has more than France the right to remain armed as long as her security is unassured.

Saved World in 1914

"If France during forty years had not known the wisdom and necessity of maintaining an army today, even though taken hastily, must be avoided. It states that the Chinese stand on the Shanghai question is 'in which support is given for the Chinese stand relative to Shanghai.'"

Denying that France was entertaining hidden dreams of war and thoughts of imperialism, the Premier said that France was a nation of moderation and would remain the government's ground. He defended the government's course in making collections from Germany on the war bill to date, and expressed the hope that the government of Chancellor Wirth would continue to hold Germany faithful to her obligations. If another Premier of France could do better, Briand said, he would immediately resign his place. But until this had been shown, he would keep his hand on the tiller.

France was morally strong, the Premier continued, and was ready to face the future. He expressed the hope for present difficulties were being sought, he said. He expressed the confidence in the future of the country, and concluded:

"It is necessary to the world of tomorrow that a victorious France should also be a France of peace."

Gore Hopeful That His Sight May Be Regained

Specialist Also Is Optimistic After Visit; Doubts Atrophy of Optic Nerve

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Former Senator Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma, now a resident of Washington, and known throughout the country while he was in the Senate as "the blind Senator," expressed hope tonight of recovering his sight after forty years of blindness.

Dr. Samuel L. Harris, of Boston, the specialist who is treating Mr. Gore, was here today to see his patient. He expressed himself as much pleased with the progress of the case and as hopeful that Mr. Gore would have his sight restored. His hopefulness is due to the fact Mr. Gore's eye, which is under treatment, is becoming more and more sensitive to light. The eye has been replaced with a glass eye.

Mr. Gore talked cheerfully about the prospects for recovery of sight. "Dr. Harris was here today," he said. "He looked at my eye and gave me treatment. He was evidently well pleased and so expressed himself, and he seems to think sight will be restored. Dr. Harris has been treating me for about three weeks. This is one of several visits he has made me, and he will continue to give treatment."

Mr. Gore said other physicians had proceeded on the theory that the optic nerve was atrophied, but Dr. Harris did not believe so, and believed the crystalline lens was affected and could be cured by restoring circulation.

Restrain Parley Within Limits, Expert Advises

Lord Percy Cites Mistakes of Councils Which Tried to Find Solutions for Many Varied Problems

U. S. Must Control Agenda

World, Tired of General Discussions, Demands Definite Conclusions

By Lord Eustace Percy, M. P. (Former Officer of the British Embassy at Washington)

Special Cable to The Tribune

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The most important thing for the approaching Washington conference to avoid is the fundamental mistake which has characterized too many recent international meetings. This mistake is the subtle one of taking too broad a view and attempting to do too much.

At the end of the World War the nations were obsessed by a very natural and very noble desire to institute a new world order, and the results have been what they always have been when statesmen tried to build everything except foundations.

Every one knows the history of the first wretched weeks of the Paris conference, when statesmen flattered by subject to subject without either definite agenda or accurate knowledge of expert work already accomplished on various problems.

Thousand Common Problems

All the nations to be represented at the Washington conference are involved in a thousand common problems of reconstruction. It would be easy for the conference to lose itself in broad discussions of multifarious subjects. It is essential that the conferees should resist this temptation and have restricted definite agenda.

The agenda are in the hands of the United States and I hope she will keep control of them. America could not have chosen two subjects of more urgent common interest than disarmament and the Pacific. But even within these limits the conference cannot hope to institute a permanent international regime for the limitation of armaments or to determine the social future of millions of human beings in China and Siberia.

What we can do is to take up certain keenly felt problems of the Far East, for which an early solution is desired. We must move in the region of ascertained facts, not doubtful predictions. Outside of such limits it is, of course, inevitable that all the statesmen who visit Washington will wish to take advantage of an opportunity afforded by their presence to discuss other questions.

Definite Conclusions Demanded

It would be fatal to attempt before the end of the Paris conference conversations that may be held, but the conference itself will be a success or a failure in the eyes of public opinion to the extent that it can produce definite conclusions on a restricted program.

the disillusionment will be very dangerous. Great schemes for the future will not supply the place of those modest but imperative demands. The only way to international friendship and international peace is through the proved ability of nations to solve their particular problems in a practical way. Practical conclusions reached after heated discussions generate far more real friendships than declarations of principle drafted in an atmosphere of amiable platitudes.

Liner Zealand Arrives With 1,303 Passengers

The Red Star liner Zealand arrived last night from Antwerp, Cherbourg and Southampton with 130 saloons, 144 second and 1,020 steerage passengers. The steamer carried 1,033 bags of mail. She left Quarantine at 4:34 p. m., and her large mail consignment, which was taken off in the upper bay, will be distributed this morning.

Charles E. Moore, who went overseas for the first time from San Francisco in 1918, returned to his home in the service. After the armistice he left the A. E. F. and went into Germany, where he took charge of the work of caring for Russian and Polish prisoners.

Among others on board were the Misses Thelma and Gloria Morgan, daughters of Harry H. Morgan, American High Commissioner and Consul General at Brussels. The young women had been visiting their parents for several months.

Britain May Erase War Clauses in Tokio Treaty

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The entire form of the Anglo-Japanese alliance probably will be altered to eliminate its military aspects, with the result that perhaps America and even China may approve the pact. The Sunday Times says today in discussing the November conference in Washington. The editorial article expresses the hope that there will be no question of Great Britain being forced to choose between America and Japan, saying that it is hoped she may be the means of uniting the two nations in a common policy. Under no circumstances, says the newspaper, could an alliance lead Great Britain to risk hostilities with the United States.

Relief League Head Tells of Many Cases Waiting for Place in New Home

The number of cases of tuberculosis now being reported to the New York Consumptive Relief League is 100 per cent greater than before the war, it was pointed out by Samuel Deutsch, president of the league, at the monthly meeting in the McAlpin Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Increase in Tuberculosis Here 100 P. C. Since War

There was a considerable decrease in tubercular cases reported while the war was on," said Mr. Deutsch. "This may have been due to the fact that more people went to private sanatoriums as a result of the general wave of prosperity. However, the actual number appealing to us now is 100 per cent greater than before the war, and more than that when compared with the period of war."

Watterson Too Feeble To Be Guest at Reunion

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 9.—Colonel Henry Watterson, veteran journalist, former editor of "The Louisville Courier Journal" and during the Civil War publisher of "The Chattanooga Rebel," has written the following letter from New York to the committee in charge of the forthcoming reunion of the United Confederate Veterans to be held here:

"Perhaps it is as well that I may not again look upon the thin gray line that seem to disappear forever from the scene of this world, for it might be too great a strain upon an old man's tenuous sensibilities.

"My love to the old boys. It cannot be long when we shall meet on that beautiful shore, and when we meet be sure the homie blue flag will be flying at the fore, and the bands will be playing 'Dixie' on parade, while the pretty girls will be distributing 'The Chattanooga Rebel' to groups of ragged, red-nosed angels who have not forgotten the rebel yell. Sincerely, "HENRY WATTERSON."

Leidoux Back From Capital Sees Better Labor Situation Here Than When He Left

Urban Leidoux returned yesterday from the trip he took to Washington with a number of unemployed men, and went to St. Mark's Chapel, in East Tenth Street, to see how the work was going there.

He was sorry to see, he said, that with cooler weather coming on there still were men who had no roof to cover them, but he thought the situation was better than when he went to Washington. A disappointing feature of it was, he said, that there still was no shelter for the unemployed at churches here except at St. Mark's Chapel.

In Washington, he said, he established a club and employment agency for the unemployed, which the Volunteers of America are operating. He was to return to Washington soon, he said.

Ammonia Blows Off Lid

The cap of a 500-gallon ammonia tank in the Bush Terminal basement at 10 West Forty-second Street, blew off after 1 o'clock this morning, filling the lower floors of the building with gas and almost asphyxiating Edward J. O'Brien, an engineer, who was in the basement at the time.
