Hospital Heads Assert Radium Relieves Cancer

Herbert Parsons and Dr. C. E. Field Tell of Favorable Results, Especially in the Disease's Primary Stage Disagree With Dr. Deaver

Hold Outlook for Final Conquest of Malady Is Brightened by New Treatment

Herbert Parsons, president of the Memorial Hospital, and Dr. C. Everett Field, director of the Radium Institute, yesterday entered the controversy precipitated among medical men by the recent assertion of Dr. John B. Deaver, of Philadelphia, president of the American College of Surgeons, that radium as a remedy for the relief and cure of cancer had failed.

According to Mr. Parsons the attending staff of the Memorial Hospital, drawn from the faculty of Cornell University Medical College, unanimously disagree with the conclusions of Dr. Deaver.

Dr. Deaver's statement that radium was not effective in hundreds of cases, said Mr. Parsons, "and while our medical staff cannot announce any cures until more time has elapsed, it is significant that a great number of cases, after several years' treatment, have recurred of the disease. Memorial Hospital has under treatment several thousand cancer patients, many of whom are being treated by the new method.

"The claim of our hospital is that in many cases radium offers the best possible relief; that in other cases it is either ineffective or unwise, and that by the proper use of radium, either separately or in conjunction with other methods, the field for relief of cancer sufferers is broadened and the outlook for the final conquest of the disease is bright.

"As representing an institution using in its treatment of cancer more radium than any other public institution in the world, we deprecate any general statements appearing from time to time to the effect that the use of radium is unprofessional, improper, ineffective, unwise or dangerous as a therapeutic agent.

"Unwarranted condemnation of the use of radium in the treatment of cancer, based on data not thoroughly investigated, is misleading to the public and serves no good purpose. When doubt is cast upon the efficacy of the method, it not only causes mental disturbance in the patient, but interferes with proper treatment and with the best efforts of our physicians and surgeons.

"In his defense of the use of radium in the treatment of the disease Dr. Field pointed out that more than 500 working days throughout the world were devoted to the collection of grams of radium, valued at $13,000,000.

"I have never heard of a single one of these quantities giving up its radium, losing its activity, or the results it was attaining," said Dr. Field, "though the knife and the surgeon's scalpel must still hold a first place in cancer treatment. The investigations reported by all the reputable societies of Europe and America put radium on an equal basis.

"Radium is still in its early days of experiment and its hopefulness, and reports concerning it are not to be regarded. At present our belief is that cancer in its primary stages may be cured by surgery plus radium. To deny either the use of treatment its rightful place puts the patient at a disadvantage and is therefore unwise and ignorant."

"While not claiming that radium cures all types of cancer, Dr. Field said that in the past ten years it had permanently improved from 90 to 95 per cent of operable cases and had similarly improved 20 per cent of deep-seated conditions over the knife.

"The most important recognized application of radium therapeutically to-day is in the treatment of cancer," Dr. Field called attention to the importance of National Cancer Week, which began yesterday under the auspices of the American Society for the Control of Cancer. Many cases of cancer would be prevented, he said, if the public were aware of the symptoms. During the week 100,000 pieces of literature dealing with the disease will be distributed throughout the city, under the direction of Mrs. Samuel Adams Clark, chairman of the extension committee, and scores of lectures will be delivered on the subject by noted scientists and physicians.

Archbishop Indorses Campaign A letter from Archbishop Hayes also calling attention to the importance of cancer week and to the health exhibition which will be held from November 8 to 19 was read in every church of the diocese yesterday. The Archbishop said that he considered the campaign for the prevention of cancer of such importance that it should be mentioned in every pulpit.

"A nation-wide movement is under way to help arrest the fell disease of cancer," the Archbishop wrote. "Several prominent Catholic physicians have appealed to me to urge our Catholic people to take advantage of the literature that will be placed at our church doors with regard to the control of cancer.

"The Archbishop urges every one to take advantage of the opportunities for better health.

A meeting will be held at the New York College of Medicine, 17 West Forty-third Street, Wednesday evening when the merits of surgery and radium in the treatment of cancer will be discussed. The speakers will include Dr. William H. Wagoner, associate director of the Crocker Cancer Research Laboratory of Columbia University; Dr. Douglas A. Quick, of the radium department of Memorial Hospital; and Dr. Joseph A. Blake, Dr. Howard C. Taylor, and Dr. Edward L. Keyes jr.

Women Begin Fight for Equal Rights in South

Their Party to Urge Federal Amendment to Protect Sex in Alabama and Louisiana

Form Consumers' Committee and Declare Proposal Before Congress Would Result in Price Advances

Announcement was made yesterday of the formation of a Consumers' Committee of Women, characterized as non-partisan and non-political, to oppose by a campaign of education the adoption of the American valuation plan of the Fordney tariff bill. Branch committees of the committee will be formed in other cities of the country to organize sentiment against the plan.

"The committee will base its opposition to the bill on the contention that retail prices of goods sold to women would be tremendously increased if it were adopted. Kid gloves which at present can be bought for a pair would cost $50 a pair, and other articles of wear and usefulness would go up from 25 to 100 per cent.

"No legislation of greater interest to the women of the country than the American valuation plan of the Fordney tariff bill has recently come before either house of Congress," says a statement issued by the committee. "We are the great purchasers and ultimate consumers of the nation. Women buy 92 per cent of all goods sold annually in America, and it is our duty to discover whether this plan will tend to lower or increase prices to the ultimate consumer.

"We have closely and carefully examined the bill and have a view to its effects of the Fordney tariff bill. Our examination has satisfied us that this bill is bound to result in greatly increased prices to the consumer on almost every article of common use and purchase. We therefore issue this call to the women of America to join us in opposing the plan.

"The real purpose and effects of the American valuation plan may become generally known and pressure brought upon members of both houses of Congress for the elimination of that plan from the Fordney bill.

"Nothing in this tariff bill seems to have been exempted from the profit-making process, and the groups which expect to benefit by it.

"A more unfortunate time for price increases could scarcely have been selected. Such increases will not only inevitably prolong the existing business depression, aggravate the unemployment situation and disrupt American industry, but will also tend to drive women of this country to do their utmost for the prevention of these unfortunate results. Convinced that we are performing a high public duty in opposing this plan, we are therefore organizing ourselves and to bring pressure to bear upon Congress for the elimination of the American valuation plan from the pending tariff legislation."

Mrs. Henry Moskowitz is secretary of the committee, and its members are Mrs. George H. Luchins, Mrs. Alfred S. August, Mrs. Henry S. Coffin, Mrs. Abraham I. Elkus, Dean Virginia Gilder-Sleeve, Mrs. William H. Good, Mrs. Leonard H. Hans, Mrs. William Henry Hays, Mrs. Raymond V. Ingersoll, Mrs. Pierre Jay, Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Miss Florida Lester, Mrs. Florence M. Marshall, Mrs. William Fellows Morgan, Mrs. George Haven Putnam, Mrs. Allen Appleton Robbins, Mrs. H. P. Russell, Mrs. Albert S. Scheraga, Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, Miss Ethel Stebbins, Mrs. Jesse Isidor Straus, Mrs. Joseph R. Swan, Mrs. C. E. Tiffany, Mrs. George N. Van Namee, Mrs. W. H. Watkins and Mrs. Frederick H. Whittin.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, head of the World Zionist Congress, is expected a few days later on the same steamer, Arthur James Balfour, former British Premier, who is coming to attend the disarmament conference in Washington, and Dr. Chaim Weizmann, who is attending the Zionistists at the Hotel Astor on November 13, and it was intimated that Mr. Balfour will address the delegates at the conference.

The conference yesterday was held at the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society Building, at Lafayette and Seventh Streets, and was presided over by Judge Jacob M. S. Berman, 400 Rev. Hirsch Masliansky, who has just returned from a trip through Palestine, reported on conditions there. Reports of the conference considered the finances of the international organization and were submitted.

Among those participating in the meeting were Leo G. Cohan, general secretary of organization; Morris Rothenberg and Abraham Goldberg of the administrative committee; Peter J. Lasker, Mrs. Florence M. Marshall, Metropolitan Museum of Art. Admission free. Morning. Admission free. New York Historical Society. Admission free. Vaux-Corland Park Museum. Admission free. Zoological Park. Admission free. Luncheon of the China Society of America. Bankers' Club, 120 Broadway, 12:30 p. m. Lecture by Stuart L. Tyson on "The Bible and the History of the Jews." Science and Art Society, 400 Madison Avenue, 8 o'clock.

Other members were Dr. Boyce Thompson, president of the Roosevelt Memorial Association; Franklin D. Roosevelt, former Assistant Secretary of the Interior; George Justice Crosey, Lewis J. Clark, Samuel Greer, Harry H. Schlaefli, F. H. La Guardia, President of the Board of Aldermen; Herman Hagedorn, executive director of the Roosevelt Memorial Association.

Thousands Visit Roosevelt's Grave and Bestow Flowers OYSTER BAY, L. I., Oct. 30.—When dusk came to-night the grave of Colonel William H. Roosevelt in Young's Memorial Cemetery was covered with flowers. During the day there were more than a thousand visitors to the cemetery and several scores brought bouquets and wreaths.

Three sightseeing automobiles crowded with Japanese visited the grave during the afternoon. The majority of them were members of the Tokio Club, of the Brooklyn Rotary Club, Hotel Hirota and Prince Asaka, who were making a tour of this country. Walking to the grave, they placed a huge wreath near the headstone and the other members of the party stood uncovered.

Vassar Shop to Open To-day To Swell Endowment Fund The Vassar Shop, operated entirely by Vassar graduates and girls now attending, will be opened to-day at 348 Madison Avenue. Everything sold in the shop will be made by Vassar girls, either now at school or engaged in business.

The shop will be managed by a committee made up of Miss Margaret Hooker, Miss Mary Preider, Mrs. S. O. Affeld, Mrs. Wilson Fitch Smith and Mrs. Charles G. Lewis. The shop door will be a picture of Matthew Vassar, founder of the college. The shop will be carried on in connection with the Vassar endowment fund campaign.

New Scandinavian Students Entertained by Foundation The American Scandinavian Foundation, of which Hamilton Holt is president, gave a tea in the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday afternoon in honor of the twenty-three young men and women who arrived recently from Denmark, Sweden and Norway to attend American colleges under the provision of the foundation's endowment fund.

Niels Poulsen, a Scandinavian who made his fortune in America, created the foundation ten years ago. It provides for the annual exchange of American and Scandinavian students.

Official Ousted Month Ago Dies From Worry

Wagner, Former Assistant to Tufts, in Cambridge, Mass., Grieved Over Latter's Trial

Mr. Tufts said to-day that although Mr. Wagner had been in poor health since last summer he believed his end had been hastened by the ordeal of the trial before the Supreme Court which resulted in Tufts's removal.

"Mr. Wagner worried over the outcome of my trial," the former District Attorney said. "He handled the International Service Company case involuntarily in the charges against me and told me that he felt the course given me in connection with it was due to his handling of it.

"In removing Mr. Tufts the Supreme Court ruled that his conduct in this case was open to suspicion. The charge against him was that he conspired to extort money from the International Service Company by making and inducing threats of criminal prosecution.

Christopher C. Shriver, Baltimore Banker, Dies

Head of Metropolitan Savings Bank Among First to Introduce Public Accountancy

BALTIMORE, Oct. 30.—Christopher C. Shriver, one of the best known men in the financial circles of Baltimore, died early to-day at his home here. He had been ill several weeks.

Mr. Shriver had been an official of the Metropolitan Savings Bank since its foundation in 1867. He was elected secretary-treasurer at the first meeting of the directors and had been its president since 1915. He was one of the first bank officers to introduce certified public accountancy.
