

Rubidium, an Outsider, Captures Feature Purse as Easter Racing Season Closes at Bowie

Long Shot Sets Pace and Wins Easily at End

Hephastus Scores Fourth Straight Victory in Taking Dixie Purse From Modo

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 26.—J. W. Bean's Rubidium, a despatched outsider, won the Bowie Claiming Stakes, the feature of the closing of the Eastern racing season, here this afternoon. Rubidium forced the pace from the start and drew away from Lady Emmeline to win by a length and a half at the finish. Dresden was third. The purse was worth only $1,855 to the winner, but the supporters of the four-year-old mare got as good as 9 to 1 for their money.

Nine fairly good horses went to the post in this race, with Super the choice of the public. This one, which has been running some good races in better company, was out for an exercise this afternoon, much to the chagrin of the form players. Jockey Schwartz had the leg up and he let the favorite lag along until it was too late to get up.

Lady Emmeline, also neglected in the betting, was very much the best of the rest, although Dresden came with a rush toward the end. The muddy track was a great help to the outsiders, and the crowd being small and scratches numerous.

Slippery Elm Wins The Sunnyside Stable's Slippery Elm ran a nice race in winning the A Revolver handicap at a mile and seventy yards for three-year-olds. This good player, which has made a fine record at the local track, slipped through on the inside, went wide and won easily with Sandy Bell second and High Bird, Commander Bob or Oriol, which had been disappointed in its last few races, ran true to form and finished fourth.

Brown's Hephastus scored its fourth straight victory in taking the Dixie purse. The two-year-old son of Vulcan raced Modo into submission and drew away to win gallantly. Wessie E closed fast on the inside and beat Mr. Delle for third place. Upsets started with the card, Dick Desdye taking the opener at a fine price. Twelve two-year-olds faced the field in this race, with Citation and Meuse almost even favorites. Citation finished fourth and Meuse wound up in the rack. The winner was slow to move up, but when Jockey Schwartz had him well in hand, he showed his class and finished in front of Excuse Me for the place.

Mexicana Purse for all ages at six and a half furlongs resulted in a well deserved victory for Elemental, which moved up fast and beat The Boy by half a length. Elemental went wide at the end of the race, but he responded gamely when flicked with the whip, and held off the opposition.

The All-American Parade

The line will now form on the right, Where each will kindly wait his turn; Tackles about six feet in height, Or halfbacks who have speed to burn. The thin and tall, the broad and fat, Fullback or center, end or guard, Each one should check his coat and hat Until he gets his union card. Tackles there are and guards galore 'Who surely ought to have a place'; Star halfbacks who can always score While moving at a headlong pace. Our vision cannot meet the strain Of spotting such extended glory. From California to Maine They cover too much territory.

The Harvard System

We have been asked a number of times lately just what the Harvard system is. It has many ramifications. The most important concerns the quarterback. Harvard believes in developing a quarterback who is a keen field general above everything else. The quarterback is a Thinking Machine in the Harvard outline, and he isn't out there to play any leading role in the running game. Percy Haughton figured out some years ago that no man could be knocked about, hammered, tackled and battered constantly and still keep a cool, clear head. Good judgment rarely accompanies a number of lusty thuds against the ground where the head often arrives first. So Harvard decided to let her quarterback be a directing field marshal, just as Foch directed the Allied armies. And it wasn't Foch's job to lead an assault over the top.

Great Idea

This is a great idea. Harvard by training her quarterbacks in proper strategy and then keeping them out of the scrimmage as much as possible, has had good field generals for the last ten years. In fact, Harvard has had in this span a far greater number of good field generals than Yale and Princeton put together, for the simple reason that a man who isn't being constantly bumped and who isn't worn down carrying the ball can think quicker, cleaner and surer.

Springvale Beats Tawasenta Easily In Havana Feature

HEAVILY PLAYED FAVORITE LOST AT ORIENTAL PARK; KENNEDY RIDES 2 WINNERS Special Cable to The Tribune HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 26.—Kentucky stables furnished the majority of the winners at Oriental Park this afternoon. M. Goldblatt, whose horses appear in particularly good shape just now, added another purse to his credit when the two-year-old Tomahoi won the opening event. Tomahoi was an even money favorite and outclassed the field, winning in runaway fashion. Springvale easily disposed of Tawasenta in the second race. The latter was heavily played and was a short price, but could not keep pace with the winner, who showed extreme speed and led the field from the start. Jockey Kennedy won the next two races with Hazel W. and Triumphant. The former had lots to spare at the finish. Triumphant had to stand a long drive to outlast the favorite, who led, which he beat out by a short head. Ina Wood made every post a winning one in the fifth and won with something to spare. In the next six horses finished in a compact bunch and Ina took the official placing to decide the second and third horses. The closing event went to the aged gelding Hoonir. McAdoe, the favorite, outdid some intercollegiate stars in the first turn, which was responsible for the latter's defeat.

Periscope Is Amateur Driven Mare Had Great Record for Three Years of Competition

Among trotters whose activities have been confined to the Grand Circuit, the blue ribbon of excellence should be attached to the harness of Periscope, for this mare has done more in the grand circuit than any other. Not only is her record of 2:02 1/2 one of the very best ones, but she had been trained and driven by an amateur. Periscope was started out from Middletown, N. Y., some years ago and raced a few horses of his own, gradually outgrew the half-mile tracks and took a plunge into the racing grand circuit. There his success has outstripped that of any amateur who ever matched wits with the pick of the professionals. He has put over many good trotters, but Periscope is the badge of his supreme achievement. Mr. Dodge bought Periscope when a baby and started her as a two-year-old in 1918, winning at North Randall, Poughkeepsie, Readington, Syracuse and being second in the junior division of the Kentucky Futurity, won that year by Princess Etawah, for which trotter Murphy recently paid a princely sum.

Clubs to Use The brassie is a first class club, But not so useful for a club. But not for you—and not for me, The creak may often bring a 3, The niblick helps to beat the band, But I am getting sick of sand.

Carpenter has likely seen his best days in the ring. When a man's dream of world conquest is suddenly and effectively blocked, with no hope of breaking through, there is sure to be a big change in morale. Carpenter shot the works against Dempsey. The old flame will hardly burn as brightly for any future test.

Great Ends If one had to name the three greatest ends in America he could make no great mistake in selecting Muller of California, Swanson of Nebraska and Kiley of Notre Dame.

California with Muller and Stephens and Notre Dame with Kiley and Anderson lead the flock in double wing protection, since all four are stars. Chicago has a great end in Crisler and Iowa another in Belding. The most useful end we have seen in the East for all-around work is Snively, of Princeton, a fine defensive end and one of the best forward passers in the game.

Ty Cobb bats .392 in the spring, summer and early fall—and .420 in the later fall and early winter. One month to him is about the same as another when it comes to socking a base hit.

Arguments over "the hardest shot in golf" continue to pile up. But for the duffer it is usually the next one.

Having had six hard races in her two-year-old career, Periscope is now in the campaign of the year following, Mr. Dodge laid Periscope away in 1920, which some folk regarded as a token that she was through. From that time she has been in the hands of her present owner, Mr. Dodge. She had done her much good. She came along all right, but did not please the Lexington railbirds at that, as she did not consider her just what she ought to be when she left the blue grass for the opening at North Randall.

Periscope was started off by winning at North Randall, Toledo and Columbus. In all of these events she had to go fast, and with the $15,000 free-for-all in view at the second North Randall meeting her legs gave her a work-out. The result was that she gathered in the biggest stake of the year.

Followed a victory at Readville, then her first defeat of the season at Hartford, where Grayson had to lower the record of the Charter Oak Stake to beat her in 2:02 1/2. Victories at Syracuse and Columbus came in the order, and at Lexington it again developed that she was the best of the best, as he won both races in which she started. Seven victories and three seconds mark her 1921 campaign, bringing her total of money won to $47,000, a mark reached by few, if any, five-year-olds.

Nawbeck Farm Successful

Figured on the percentage basis, no stock farm has attained as much prominence in colt stakes as Nawbeck, the establishment of the old Yale athlete, A. B. Cox, at Paoli, Pa. From a small and very select band of brood mares comes the bulk of the champions of the year.

This year Helen Dillon, 2:08 1/4, won the two-year-old division of the Kentucky, and her brother, Nelson Dillon, 2:05 1/4 (separately timed in 2:03), was second in the senior stake. Other winners were Nella Dillon, Sister Berta, Miss Berta Dillon and others that carried the fight to the winners and took not a few of the colts stakes themselves. All of these are by Dillon Axworthy, himself a great racing colt in his two-year-old form in 1907.

Joe Serrill, who trains and drives for Mr. Cox, says that of the five yearlings in the training barn at Nawbeck, the one that he is most anxious to see pick one that commands attention is out of Miss Pleerette, hence an own brother to Helen and Nelson Dillon. Others are out of The Zombro Belle and the Restina, and by Dillon Axworthy. There is one that will be watched closely, a colt by Peter Volo, and out of Miss Berta Dillon, giving him an inherited speed average of 2:02 1/4.

Suggestion for Short Tracks

Discussing the shortcomings of racing associations, H. J. Kline, for many years active in the racing business and turf journalism, takes first money with a good one. Like everybody else who pays attention to things as they are, Kline knows the racing business on the run of half-mile tracks is a joke, in spite of the rule against suppression. Kline says: "But what's a rule among friends—the secretary who wants entries and the owner or trainer who has them to give?"

Kline suggests more blank pages in the rule books and that the job of classifying horses be put up to the secretaries, who naturally will try and make the greatest number of contests. This might work out, but a basis to be before the public for many years, and the amount of classification would put the horses about where they belong.

Vic Fleming is having a breathing spell between race seasons. On the Grand Circuit and half-mile tracks he has been putting in this year, and a month hence will be back in the game at Toronto, where the ice race circuit starts. Fleming has developed a very capable trainer and race driver, who has worked with Hayter, Menkes, Lilling, Dondoro, Weinstein, Shapiro and Tannenbaum. Yale positions the nucleus for a powerful aggregation in Jersey City, where the team will appear at the Recreation Billiard Academy, Brooklyn, tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday in a special match of 750 points for a purse of $500.

Both men, recent contenders for the national title at pocket billiards, have been before the public for many years, and are well and favorably known to all followers of the game as being star performers. Recent performances of the two have developed the fact that they are about evenly matched on their present form.

Plainfield Wins at Squash

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Nov. 26.—The Plainfield Club had a clean sweep in today's matches with the Elizabeth College met defeat at the opening of the New Jersey Squash League tournament. The matches were played on the courts of C. B. Tyler and Henry L. Williams, which marked the opening of the season. The results: C. B. Tyler defeated Maxon Kirkland, 15-4, 15-4; Henry L. De Forest defeated G. C. Thomas Jr., 15-7, 15-9; Robert Stevens defeated Stephen Waterbury, 15-1, 15-0.

Williams Loses at Soccer

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Nov. 26.—In the first soccer game of the season Williams College met defeat at the hands of the Scotias, of Bennington, here today, the score being 4 to 2. The contest was staged in a raging snow storm. Williams held its own in the first half, which ended in a 2-2 tie, but the Scotias went to the front in the final period.

Clubs to Use The brassie is a first class club, But not so useful for a club. But not for you—and not for me, The creak may often bring a 3, The niblick helps to beat the band, But I am getting sick of sand.

Carpenter has likely seen his best days in the ring. When a man's dream of world conquest is suddenly and effectively blocked, with no hope of breaking through, there is sure to be a big change in morale. Carpenter shot the works against Dempsey. The old flame will hardly burn as brightly for any future test.

Great Ends If one had to name the three greatest ends in America he could make no great mistake in selecting Muller of California, Swanson of Nebraska and Kiley of Notre Dame.

California with Muller and Stephens and Notre Dame with Kiley and Anderson lead the flock in double wing protection, since all four are stars. Chicago has a great end in Crisler and Iowa another in Belding. The most useful end we have seen in the East for all-around work is Snively, of Princeton, a fine defensive end and one of the best forward passers in the game.

Ty Cobb bats .392 in the spring, summer and early fall—and .420 in the later fall and early winter. One month to him is about the same as another when it comes to socking a base hit.

Arguments over "the hardest shot in golf" continue to pile up. But for the duffer it is usually the next one.

Having had six hard races in her two-year-old career, Periscope is now in the campaign of the year following, Mr. Dodge laid Periscope away in 1920, which some folk regarded as a token that she was through. From that time she has been in the hands of her present owner, Mr. Dodge. She had done her much good. She came along all right, but did not please the Lexington railbirds at that, as she did not consider her just what she ought to be when she left the blue grass for the opening at North Randall.

Periscope was started off by winning at North Randall, Toledo and Columbus. In all of these events she had to go fast, and with the $15,000 free-for-all in view at the second North Randall meeting her legs gave her a work-out. The result was that she gathered in the biggest stake of the year.

Followed a victory at Readville, then her first defeat of the season at Hartford, where Grayson had to lower the record of the Charter Oak Stake to beat her in 2:02 1/2. Victories at Syracuse and Columbus came in the order, and at Lexington it again developed that she was the best of the best, as he won both races in which she started. Seven victories and three seconds mark her 1921 campaign, bringing her total of money won to $47,000, a mark reached by few, if any, five-year-olds.

Nawbeck Farm Successful

Figured on the percentage basis, no stock farm has attained as much prominence in colt stakes as Nawbeck, the establishment of the old Yale athlete, A. B. Cox, at Paoli, Pa. From a small and very select band of brood mares comes the bulk of the champions of the year.

This year Helen Dillon, 2:08 1/4, won the two-year-old division of the Kentucky, and her brother, Nelson Dillon, 2:05 1/4 (separately timed in 2:03), was second in the senior stake. Other winners were Nella Dillon, Sister Berta, Miss Berta Dillon and others that carried the fight to the winners and took not a few of the colts stakes themselves. All of these are by Dillon Axworthy, himself a great racing colt in his two-year-old form in 1907.

Joe Serrill, who trains and drives for Mr. Cox, says that of the five yearlings in the training barn at Nawbeck, the one that he is most anxious to see pick one that commands attention is out of Miss Pleerette, hence an own brother to Helen and Nelson Dillon. Others are out of The Zombro Belle and the Restina, and by Dillon Axworthy. There is one that will be watched closely, a colt by Peter Volo, and out of Miss Berta Dillon, giving him an inherited speed average of 2:02 1/4.

Suggestion for Short Tracks

Discussing the shortcomings of racing associations, H. J. Kline, for many years active in the racing business and turf journalism, takes first money with a good one. Like everybody else who pays attention to things as they are, Kline knows the racing business on the run of half-mile tracks is a joke, in spite of the rule against suppression. Kline says: "But what's a rule among friends—the secretary who wants entries and the owner or trainer who has them to give?"

Kline suggests more blank pages in the rule books and that the job of classifying horses be put up to the secretaries, who naturally will try and make the greatest number of contests. This might work out, but a basis to be before the public for many years, and the amount of classification would put the horses about where they belong.

Vic Fleming is having a breathing spell between race seasons. On the Grand Circuit and half-mile tracks he has been putting in this year, and a month hence will be back in the game at Toronto, where the ice race circuit starts. Fleming has developed a very capable trainer and race driver, who has worked with Hayter, Menkes, Lilling, Dondoro, Weinstein, Shapiro and Tannenbaum. Yale positions the nucleus for a powerful aggregation in Jersey City, where the team will appear at the Recreation Billiard Academy, Brooklyn, tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday in a special match of 750 points for a purse of $500.

Both men, recent contenders for the national title at pocket billiards, have been before the public for many years, and are well and favorably known to all followers of the game as being star performers. Recent performances of the two have developed the fact that they are about evenly matched on their present form.

Plainfield Wins at Squash

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Nov. 26.—The Plainfield Club had a clean sweep in today's matches with the Elizabeth College met defeat at the opening of the New Jersey Squash League tournament. The matches were played on the courts of C. B. Tyler and Henry L. Williams, which marked the opening of the season. The results: C. B. Tyler defeated Maxon Kirkland, 15-4, 15-4; Henry L. De Forest defeated G. C. Thomas Jr., 15-7, 15-9; Robert Stevens defeated Stephen Waterbury, 15-1, 15-0.

Williams Loses at Soccer

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Nov. 26.—In the first soccer game of the season Williams College met defeat at the hands of the Scotias, of Bennington, here today, the score being 4 to 2. The contest was staged in a raging snow storm. Williams held its own in the first half, which ended in a 2-2 tie, but the Scotias went to the front in the final period.

Four Sure Ways to Bring On Slice, A in One Swing; Standing Too Far From Ball Is One of the Main Causes of Trouble

By James M. Barnes Open Golf Champion of the United States

A short while ago I had one of my pupils come to me with this remark: "I want you to show me a few of the most important things to work on. I never expect to play any star game of golf, but I don't want always to
