

United Verde Wins $2,500 Handicap at New Orleans Track; Bunga Buck Finishes Second

Neddam Takes Nip and Tuck Purse Handily

Governor Threatens to Stop Racing Unless Political Grafters Are Ousted

From a Special Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 21.—United Verde, the four-year-old brown colt from the stables of Senator Clark, won the Business Men's Racing Association Handicap at the Fair Grounds here this afternoon, defeating a fine field over the one-mile route for the purse, which had an added value of $2,500. Bunga Buck was second and Bygone Days third. The track was heavy and the time particularly slow—1:41 4/5.

Nine went to the post in the feature, with United Verde being held at 13 to 10, while Bunga Buck was second choice. There was considerable money for the Sunnyland Stable's Slippery Elm, but this one did not perform up to his usual standard.

The $1,000 Nip and Tuck Purse, the secondary feature, resulted in a victory for M. Gerishel's brown gelding Neddam, which led Mercury and Tabless d'Honneur to the wire in that order.

A warning from Governor John Parker was issued to the local racing association this afternoon, when that official said that unless professional politicians were dropped from the pay rolls of the racing association he would pull out of business. He said that the Fair Grounds race track was a haven of rest for political grafters.

Term Ice Trots Past Records Show Williams A Kindergarten For Champions

Toronto Racing on Ice Is Closely Observed by Horsemen Generally

By Frank S. Cooke

Ice racing season, which reaches its pinnacle this week on the half-mile track at Mount Clemens, is closely watched by horsemen generally because it serves as a kindergarten for future champions. While the sport during the two meetings at Toronto was about the best ever seen at Dufferin Park, the fact remains that nothing sensational developed. The horses raced hard and often, but none among the winners seems to stand out as did Roy Grattan, Louis Grattan, Ed Direct, Jimmy McKernan and The Red in their years. It appears to be up to the Mount Clemens meeting to show up the real heat-car, which lends more than ordinary interest to the affairs of this week.

If racing conditions are good at the Bath City oval there will be plenty of speed unworked, for some of the horses that have been in training there since last fall have not had a start since and are believed to have the necessary lick to repel the invaders from the other side of the river.

In all, eleven horses won fourteen of the races at Toronto, and were repeated, the trotter Loleta and the pacers Jim Todd Jr. and Helen Patpen. Others that won one race are Bella Watta, Billy Bishop, Esta G., May G., Katie Hal, Bland, Relia, Basso and Robert Direct. The most discussed mile was by the now four-year-old Robert Direct, for which Nat Ray paid a fancy price.

Robert Direct Faces Well

This youngster certainly is handy on any kind of a track, and in him Ray may have another with which he can top the money winning pacers on the big line, as he did with Jimmy McKernan last year. Robert Direct paced his best heat in 2:14 3/4, the fact that at Toronto having been in 2:13 3/4, by Katie Hal. Billy Bishop went in 2:15 and Esta G. in 2:15 1/2.

At the recent meeting of the Michigan Fair Association the head of the agricultural commission launched an attack on "fixed races," of which he hinted there were too many. What he meant by the refusal of the committee to join hands and the sent improvement in plans for attracting the general public to the average track, the trotting sport is a marvel for endurance, but this claim of fixed races is too much.

Taken all the way through the sport is fair. If it were crooked there would be more men connected with it jingling their keys than there are. Fixed races was a habit in the past, but it passed with the high-wheeled sulky and the gradual dissolution of the old guard. Races that are trotted the way they are today, in fact, none can be recalled by the writer, who has seen about as many as the next fellow.

A Fixed Race?

This agitation, which fell flat when the fair managers had their say, recalls the story of a fixed race that did not work out. It was in the old days of the Glenville track at Cleveland, and was told by the late George W. Wadsworth, a leading driver at that time. They fixed one all right and bet their money, but the man named Splan, who was starting a horse called Nobby, if memory serves well.

When they got away Splan took the track and nobody could get to him. The horse went to the end of the far track and came back, and the man who snatched his horse to a gallop and ran into him. Turner was unseated, bounded on the other horse and fell into the water, and Splan, who was left out of consideration a young man named Splan, who was starting a horse called Nobby, if memory serves well.

Past Records Show Williams Is Most Consistent "Finisher"

William A. Larned Alone Was Better in This Respect; Public Seems to Have Idea That Tennis Champion of 1914 and 1916 Is Erratic Player

By Fred Hawthorne

Generally, in speaking of Richard Norris Williams 2d, former national champion, in referring to his game, brilliant but erratic lawn tennis, critics are likely to deal at length with his unevenness of play and to remark that no man ever knows whether Williams is going to play superior tennis or the variety that is considerably below championship caliber. In fact, we stress the utter unreliability of the champion of 1914 and 1916 and I think the public has this same idea, namely, that Williams is one of the most erratic tournament players we ever had.

A careful study of past records of the national ranking list, will do much to dissipate this belief; more than that, it will show Williams to be the most consistent "finisher" in the "ten" ranks since and with the exception of William A. Larned, who won the national singles honors six times.

Larned was ranked in the No. 1 position in 1901, 1902, 1903, 1907, 1909, 1910 and 1911, and was at No. 2 in 1894, 1895, 1896, 1897 and 1898. He was placed at No. 3 in 1899, 1900, 1901 and 1905; at No. 5 in 1903 and at No. 6 in 1902. This is a record for consistency that has never before been equaled in the history of the game, and probably never will be in these days of frequent competition and high tension tennis.

Did Not Play Frequently

But it is well to remember, in considering Larned's amazing record, that he did not play in tournaments as frequently as Williams has done in the last nine years. He usually confined his efforts to the more important court meetings, whereas Williams has played consistently for long seasons on both the grass and the hard courts, and in tennis tournaments that a player competes in increases his chances of lowering his ultimate ranking by just that much.

Dick Williams made his first appearance in big tournament play in the country in 1912, on his return from Europe, where he had learned his game. That year, and in 1913, 1914 and 1915, he was ranked at No. 2. In 1916 he was placed at No. 1. In 1917 there was no ranking made and in 1918 Williams was over-seas with the A. E. F. In 1919 he was at No. 6, at No. 3 in 1920 and at No. 6 in 1921.

Here is a record of four seasons, on first, one third and two sixths in eight years, that is, in 1912, 1913, 1914, 1915, 1916, 1917, 1918, and 1919. In those years, 1914, 1915, 1916, 1917, 1918, and 1919, he was ranked at No. 2. In 1916 he was placed at No. 1. In 1917 there was no ranking made and in 1918 Williams was over-seas with the A. E. F. In 1919 he was at No. 6, at No. 3 in 1920 and at No. 6 in 1921.

West Side Tennis Club Defers Vote On Women's Rights

Little Accomplished at Meeting; Action Postponed Until Next Month

The net result of the annual meeting of the West Side Tennis Club at Delmonico on Friday night was about 99.44-100 per cent negative, even though there were more than three hours of more or less acrid debate among the members, largely over the question of the right of the women members to share the courts and the clubhouse equally with the men.

After both sides had exhausted their oratorical powers, pro and con, it was decided to thrash the matter out all over again at an adjourned meeting at Delmonico on Friday, February 17. The matter of appropriating $300,000 for proposed building plans at the Forest Hills club was also put over until the adjourned meeting. The club members did vote to acquire about an acre of present grounds, upon which it is proposed to build additional courts.

Great was the air of mystery surrounding the meeting on Friday night. The women members, and there were many of them present, were perfectly agreeable to the proposition of holding an "open" meeting, but the masculine members decided it was the part of wisdom to exclude the public from the gathering, and so the newspaper men who had gathered at the meeting place were gently but firmly informed that they were persona non grata, or words to that effect.

Women Put Up Strong Fight

That there was considerable "pep" to the arguments advanced on either side was evident by the sounds that permeated through the thick walls of the meeting room. It was reported that the women put up such a surprisingly spirited fight for their rights that the men arrayed against them were more than satisfied to let the matter go over into another meeting. Before adjourning, however, all present were urged to secrecy as to what had transpired behind the closed doors.

The prevailing expression on the faces of those who attended the meeting, as they left the room conveyed the message: "Don't ask me to speak; my lips are cracked."

The issue between the opposing sides is clear-cut and the ultimate decision as to whether the women members are, or are not, to be admitted to the West Side Tennis Club on an equal basis with the men, must be of the same nature; no middle course is possible.

Would Pay Equal Dues

At the annual meeting of the women members last Tuesday, the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved, That the women members of the West Side Tennis Club be allowed membership at all, and in order to equal dues with men, in order that they may enjoy equal playing privileges."

Those opposed are firm in their conviction that the women members should continue to occupy a minor position in the club's activities, indeed, the prevailing opinion seems to be that the women are fortunate enough to be allowed membership at all, and that their desire to be placed on an equal basis with the men comes under the head of "revolutionary tactics."

The Title Hunters No. 6—Other Champions

Billiards—Jake Schaefer. Sprinting—Charles Paddock. Court Tennis—Jay Gould. Football prospects.

Schaefer vs. Hoppe

No one could dabble in title-hunting statistics for 1922 without considering the case of Jake Schaefer and Willie Hoppe, not only billiard headlines, but also leading possessors of a lot of widespread human interest up and down the highway.

Hoppe is going out to prove that the man who wrote "They don't come back" had a number of bats in his belly at the moment and is now entitled to another year.

Listed as one of the Supermen of Sport just a year ago, his defeat late in the closing stages of the old year came as one of the stunning surprises of the campaign.

Hoppe, Ty Cobb and Jay Gould had been listed at the top of the Durable Sons who outclass the field. Ty, after seventeen years, was still only two basehits from the top again. Jay Gould stuck to the peak. But Hoppe fell.

And now against a brilliant young champion the veteran is on the trail to prove that one tournament doesn't prove a complete case.

Matched against Schaefer again, there would be so little difference that any opinion would be an off-side guess. But Hoppe is far from being any competitive has-been.

Jay Gould's Outlook

'Court tennis isn't a game that is closely allied with any popular fervor.

It isn't a pastime for the multitude at large, so far as general interest goes.

But it is one of the oldest and greatest of competitions, and in Jay Gould it has a champion who takes his place among the wonders of all time.

We know of no other amateur champion who has outclassed both the best professionals and amateurs along his right of way.

He has been supreme for a decade, world champion by a wider margin than any fellow wearer of the purple toga.

And 1922 merely looks to be another winning year, with Jay Gould clinging on as the last of the super-champions.

Paddock vs. Doc Time

Paddock, sprint champion, will make a final wobble at ticking off 100 yards in 9-2.5 seconds.

If any one is to move his feet with this much swiftness, Paddock is the man.

The Californian worked his way into nine records last year and that may stand as the summit of his greatness.

But many of his supporters believe that he can slip off another fraction or two with the right break.

Taking away additional fractions, when one gets down to 9-3.5 for the 100, or 20-4.5 for the 220, is hardly

Football Prospects

Of the stronger elevens this last season Penn State and the Navy will both be hard hit.

The loss of Glen Killinger alone is a heavy blow to any machine, and at least four more join Killinger in retirement.

The Navy loses a flock of talent, while both Lafayette and W. J. will be jolted.

Princeton loses Keck, Louie, Garrity and Wittmer, but as most of these at one time or another were out of harness anyway, the blow will not be so crushing as it might seem.

Yale and Cornell should be among the strong machines of the East.

Yale returns fine material that will be well seasoned by another campaign. Any backfield that has Jordan, O'Hearn, Mallory, Neidinger, Wight and Beckett doesn't have to worry, with most of the line material intact.

Harvard is lucky enough to have Buell and Owen back, and that means half a team without going further.

In the West

The Western shake-up will be even more pronounced than the Eastern.

Iowa and Notre Dame, the two crack teams of the Middle West, lose a shoal of stars.

Notre Dame loses thirteen first-string men, including her five leading stars—no, not even a Knute Rockne can hope to build up as strong a team by the next campaign.

Iowa loses heavily and so does Ohio State.

Machines to be feared are Michigan, Chicago and Wisconsin, which at this frosty date have much the brighter outlook.

Michigan especially will have a lot of speed and power on hand when the roll call is heard.

Centre and Georgia Tech both lose stars, but both return enough talent to be around the Southern crest again.

Georgia, Auburn, Vanderbilt and Sewanee are four other machines that retain most of their strength and will be potent factors in the Southern laurel hunt.

Average football strength in the South should be extremely high.

College Rankings

The battle among leading institutions for all-around supremacy will be keen again.

The Navy and Cornell, or Cornell and the Navy, were two chief claimants last year with crew, football, track and field and other sports considered.

The Navy is again favored with the best crew prospects of the year, though she loses a powerful athletic class with this next graduation exit.

Yale with her crew, football and track and field prospects should take high place. With the Navy slightly favored on the water, Yale, Cornell, Harvard and Princeton, among others, will be close enough up to round out the best waterway program of many decades.
