

The Graphic's Own SPORT COLUMN

No. 2—Allien Rigglin
Brighton Beach close-ups from a sixteen-second movie of pretty Allien Rigglin, Olympic fancy diving champion and fifteen-year-old Brooklyn swimming and diving mermaid, who holds the 400-yard national and 220-yard metropolitan junior swimming championships.
Movie by Jack Sussman

"Gee, but the old ocean cer—"

"tainly looks good to me—"

"I get lots of fun out of my"

"dancing in the Metropolitan"

"Ballet Class, but it doesn't"

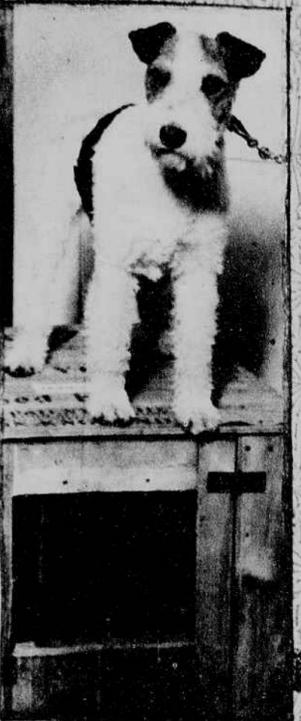

"score like swimming does."

COLUMBIA'S VARSITY CREW takes to the Harlem River for the first time this season, where Jim Rice, the Blue and White's veteran coach, is rapidly whipping it into shape for a winning year. Paul Thompson

Left—DECORATED BY ALL THE ALLIES, Samuel Glucksman, a sergeant of the Sixth Marines, a hero of the World War, who has been decorated by every Allied government for his distinguished service, visits Director Forbes of the Veterans' Bureau in Washington. The devil-dog captured twenty Germans single-handed in an engagement at Blanc Mont.
Wide World

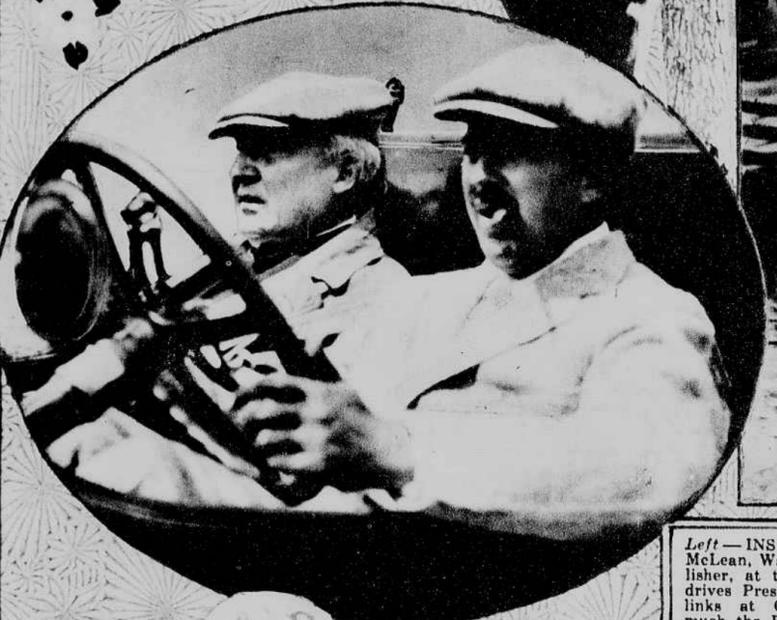

WORTH MOST HIS WEIGHT IN GOLD. Champion Deykin Surprise, a $6,000 wire-haired fox terrier, arrives in New York on the Aquitania. The snappy-looking canine was purchased in England by Stanley J. Halle, of New York.
International

AN AIKEN RAILBIRD. You'll recognize Ohio's ex-Governor and the snowed-under Presidential candidate of last election in this snap made at the Aiken, S. C., horse show recently. You remember his name—or don't you?
Underwood

Left—INSEPARABLES. Edward B. McLean, Washington's millionaire publisher, at the wheel of his roadster, drives President Harding to the golf links at Ormond, Fla. Note how much the President looks like Edison in this informal snap.
Underwood

SEPARATED ON THEIR HONEYMOON. Viscount Lascelles and his bride, the former Princess Mary, pictured on the Dover quay as they are about to board the cross-Channel steamer, the first stage of their honeymoon trip to Italy. Friend husband, judging from this rainy day photo, doesn't seem just as gallant as a bridegroom should be—but perhaps the King's daughter has refused his arm, just to show the Doverites her independence.
Central News

"PLAY BALL!" Three-year-old Dan Comerford, son of the Dodgers' trainer, all dressed up in his mascot's uniform, at the Brooklyn training camp, Jacksonville, Fla., where Dan has been getting a line on how the big leaguer's in his dad's care are shaping up.
Underwood

MIKE COLLINS, the man at the helm of the Irish Free State, snapped in a pensive mood as he awaits his turn to speak at a recent Dublin meeting held in the interests of the Anglo-Irish Peace Treaty.
P. 4 A.

ACHILLES' HEELS had nothing on these—the latest Chinese-French footwear freak, pictured here "adorning" the pedal extremities of Mrs. Claude Grahame-White (the former Ethel Levy, one-time wife of George Cohan), wife of the aviator. Let's hope we'll not take up an ancient custom that China has discarded.
Underwood