

Suit to Break Bispham Will Goes to Trial

Widow and Daughter of Barytone Are Contestants for Part of Estate Left to Married Choir Singer

Studios in Same Building Attorney Tells of Testator's Alleged Intention to Endow Music School

The contest of the will of David S. Bispham, the barytone, came to trial yesterday before Surrogate Foley and a jury. The contestants are Mrs. Caroline Russell Bispham, widow, daughter of the late General Charles S. Russell, from whom the singer long lived apart after many bitter legal proceedings, and Miss Leonie Anne Francesca Carnegie Bispham, a daughter. Another daughter, living in Florence, Italy, has not joined in the contest.

also his residuary estate he bequeathed to Mrs. Henrietta Ten Eyck, referred to in the will as "my friend." Mrs. Ten Eyck, a choir singer, is the wife of former Judge Jay Ten Eyck, of Essex County, N. J., who also was a friend of Mr. Bispham. Mrs. Ten Eyck's share of the estate, it is said, amounts to about $25,000, out of which she was commissioned by the testator to erect a monument to his memory.

George W. Blackwell, counsel for Mrs. Bispham and Miss Carnegie, told the jury that the singer made a will in 1913 leaving all his property to his two daughters and a son, who lost his life as an aviator in the war. In 1918, said the attorney, Mr. Bispham decided to change his will so that if estate was to be devoted to a foundation bearing his name, for the instruction of poor singers.

Mr. Blackwell said that Mr. Bispham and Mrs. Ten Eyck, who had studios in the same building, worked together on a book. They became acquainted in 1909, he said. The attorney laid stress on the fact that the barytone did not change his will as he said he would and that the lawyers who draw up the document were attorneys for Mrs. Ten Eyck as well as for Mr. Bispham.

Commander of R-34 Arrives. His Faith in Dirigible Unshaken

Germany After Leadership of Air, Capt. Wann Warns; Hindu Gynecologist Also Passenger on the Celtic

Captain Archibald H. Wann, commander of the ill-fated dirigible R-34, arrived here yesterday on the White Star liner Celtic from Liverpool, accompanied by his brother, Major James Wann, who was head of the British kite balloon service during the war, and Wing Commander M. G. Christie, C. M. G.; D. S. O.; M. C.; R. A. F.

It was rumored that the three officers were on their way to Washington to make official report on the destruction of the R-34, but none would say that he was here on official mission.

Captain Wann, who still uses a stick in walking, said he was heartbroken over the loss of the great dirigible and that the recent destruction of the Rous had greatly disturbed him. "Nevertheless," he added, "the dirigible has come to stay. Although Great Britain curtailed her appropriations for dirigible construction, this did not mean that she has lost interest in the lighter than air airship. Germany is preparing to take leadership in the air and she must be watched carefully all the time. The trouble just now is that experiment has out-run research. In future all interested in dirigibles should see to it that research keeps pace with experimentation." Dr. Kaderath Das, a prominent Hindu gynecologist of Calcutta, came here especially to read a paper before the Gynecological Congress which is to be held in Washington next week.

Leonard C. Messell, a wealthy hide and leather merchant of India, came to join his wife who is visiting here and to see a child recently born to them in this country.

Newspaper Publishers In Session To-morrow

Labor problems probably will be the most important topics of discussion at the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, which will open to-morrow at the Waldorf. The fact that the international arbitration contracts that have been in force for years between the A. N. P. A. and the printing trades unions expire shortly and may not be renewed, it is believed, receive much attention from the gathering.

Other subjects scheduled for consideration are taxation, postal rates, paper supply problems and advertising rates. Indications are that the convention will be the largest ever held. Included in the program is a dinner at the Commodore to be given in honor of Will H. Hays, former Postmaster General, to-morrow night, at which the speakers will be Dr. John B. Finley of "The New York Times," Senator Medill McCormick, of Illinois, part owner of "The Chicago Tribune," Representative Martin B. Madden, Arthur Brisbane, Senator Capper, of Kansas, and George Ade.

Leaps to Death as Detectives Break In Door of Room

Police Uncertain if Hotel Pennsylvania Guest Was Mau They Sought or if Suicide Was Coincidental

Police of the West Thirtieth Street station received a telegram yesterday from the Chicago Chief of Police calling for the arrest of Randall P. Graham, who was charged with abandoning his wife in Chicago. The telegram said Graham was registered at the Hotel Pennsylvania under the name of Robert Gardiner.

Detective Edward Doyle, accompanied by the house detective, went to the room occupied by Gardiner. They knocked on the door. There was no answer. The two detectives heard a thud and broke through the door. Both rushed to the window, and on an extension below saw the body of the man they sought. A physician from the New York Hospital said the man had died of a fracture of the skull.

A comparison of descriptions of the dead man and the man wanted by the Chicago police showed a discrepancy. Gardiner had registered as from Pittsburgh. The man wanted in Chicago was described as five feet seven inches tall and weighing about 140 pounds. This did not tally with the dead man. A search of the room showed the leather purse containing 1 cent, a pawn ticket for an overcoat and another for a gold-filled watch. The clothing was marked "R. G." The police are now trying to determine whether the man known as Gardiner committed suicide because of his destitute circumstances and at a time when they, by coincidence, were trying to enter his room, or whether he was really Randall P. Graham, wanted in Chicago for abandonment.

William W. Vaughan, Stock Broker, Is Sued for Divorce

Wife of Former Princeton Football Player, Son of Late Henry B. Vaughan, Makes Misconduct Charge

William Wright Vaughan, who in point of height is one of the biggest members of the New York Stock Exchange and who was once on the Princeton football team, was sued for divorce in the Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Simah M. Vaughan. The defendant is a son of the late Henry B. Vaughan, a director of the Corn Exchange Bank and identified with many corporations. He left his son an estate estimated as high as $10,000,000.

change Bank and identified with many corporations. He left his son an estate estimated as high as $10,000,000. Mrs. Vaughan, who bases her suit on the alleged misconduct of her husband with a woman whose name is not mentioned in the complaint, was Miss Simah Moses. Her father, M. H. Moses, is a wealthy wholesale tea merchant. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan were married in 1906 at Sherry's, David Leventritt, then a justice of the Supreme Court, officiating.

Not long before the marriage Mr. Vaughan had been summoned to court by Daisy Studley, a chorus girl, who charged that she had been induced by fraudulent means to sign a document releasing Mr. Vaughan from a promise to marry her. Miss Studley said they had signed a contract to wed and that she had been introduced by Mr. Vaughan as his wife. She also alleged that she signed the release while under the influence of drugs. Mrs. Vaughan denied the story of the chorus girl and the case was thrown out of court.

Mr. Vaughan is senior member of the brokerage firm of Vaughan & Co. He is a member of several clubs. Asked to comment on the suit, he said: "This is just one of the cases in which two parties cannot get along together. I do not like to air my affairs in public."

A page from the BLUE BOOK of BUSINESS

STRONGER than anything we could say is the irrefutable eloquence of fact: One hundred of the leading institutions of national and international standing have bought for their own use over 10,000 Noiseless Typewriters. These typewriters were not purchased all at one time. But after careful comparison with the noisy machines already installed.

It is a fact of which we are justly proud, that by this comparison The Noiseless Typewriter proved its superiority so conclusively, that gradually quiet supplanted noise, until the one hundred institutions listed below had bought an average of more than one hundred Noiseless Typewriters each.

'Such are the concrete terms in which many great institutions have recognized the better working conditions made possible by the quiet office and the better work done by The Noiseless Typewriter.

This list may well be called a page from the "Blue Book of Business."
