No. 18

Mrs. August Belmont Jr. The former Alice deGouria, whose late husband, August Belmont jr., son of the millionaire New York banker, who died over three years ago, graciously consents to pose for our movie-man in this picturesque costume she affected at the three-day Chinese fete held near her Long Island home at Bayshore last week for the benefit of the South Side Hospital. Mrs. Belmont is the mother of four daughters and one son.

ELSIE MEETS A COWBOY. Elsie Janis and her "Gang" strike Banff on their trans-continental trip over the Canadian Pacific, and in the seven-minute stopover she kidnaps a Canadian mountie and a cowboy for photographic purposes. Here is the popular comedienne greeting Keith Steel, a typical Banff cowboy, who was sorely tempted to kidnap Elsie and hold her for ransom.

Left—"HERE KITTY, KITTY, NICE KITTY!" Miss Gertrude Sheehan's pet feline, Spots, an honest-to-goodness leopard kitten, and a recent arrival at the Hotel McAlpin from Columbia, South America, snapped straining at its leash in an effort to shake paws with Underwood's camera man. According to the Lady, her "Tiger" hasn't scratched yet.

"SO THIS IS NEW YORKSKI?" Just arrived at Ellis Island—a picturesque pair of freckle-faced Russian youngsters, snapped as they stand guard over the family luggage in the temporary absence of their parents.
