

New York Tribune

Graphic Section

Part Seven
Eight Pages

December 24
1922

MERRY MARY. An interesting picture of Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, almost completely buried in her Christmas shopping—many of the gifts going to her co-workers in the production of her latest photoplay, "Tess of the Storm Country." Mary did her holiday wrapping both early and securely as an aid to the Hollywood mail handlers—did you? w. w.

"MERRY CHRISTMAS, HUH!" All I got was a bottle of milk in one sock and a rattle in the other—I just can't help but yawn, this Merry Christmas stuff makes me tired." w. w.

THE PRESIDENT CASTS HIS VOTE for a Tribune man. President Harding pictured depositing his ballot in the annual election of officers of the National Press Club at the capital. The Chief Executive, himself an active member of the club, voted for Carter Field, Washington correspondent of The New York Tribune, the winning presidential candidate. Underwood

Left—A. WHITE CHRISTMAS in the Redlands section of California—an especially appealing camera study of a foot-print trail across the silvery, moonlit snows. Pictorial Press

Right—CHRISTMAS IN PEKIN. Bringing in by camel train the holiday coal supply of China's largest city from the mines in the hills fourteen miles west of the city—a picturesque scene in marked contrast to the modern coal transportation methods of our own civilization. Underwood

"UNTO YOU IS BORN THIS DAY." Nine splendid little surpliced carollers from the famous boys' choir of St. Thomas's, on Fifth Avenue, pictured doing their Christmas best. Kadel & Herbert

Left—GUBERNATORIAL MINERS. New overalls, hats and gloves were supplied the dozen or more Governors who recently explored a coal mine as part of their conference at White Sulphur Springs. This trio from left to right—Governor Campbell of Arizona, Governor Davis of Idaho and Governor Townsend of Delaware. International

Right—NATURE DECORATES HER OWN. Dame Nature, aided by the Chicago Fire Department, trimmed this huge Christmas tree erected for the holiday season in the center of a fountain basin of the South Shore park system. The spray froze on every bough, and the tree, especially illuminated at night, is an eye-filling spectacle. Underwood

