

WM. H. KEMBLE'S SENTENCE.

ONE YEAR AT HARD LABOR IN THE PENITENTIARY AND $1,000 FINE.

The same sentence passed on each of the confederates—Kemble declaring that he is not guilty—The Convict's Defense—In Prison.

HARRISBURG, April 26.—If Judge Pearson's sentence is carried into effect the Republicans will have to fight the coming campaign without the help of some of their workers. To-day William H. Kemble, Chas. B. Sator, Emilie J. Petroff, Jesse B. Crawford, and William F. Bumberger fled into the court house and were placed in solitary confinement and at hard labor in the Eastern Penitentiary for one year. They will also pay a fine of $1,000 each.

This was the day fixed upon by Judge Pearson for a final disposition of the bribery case. The same sentence passed on each of the confederates—Kemble declaring that he is not guilty—The Convict's Defense—In Prison.

When District Attorney Hollinger arose and asked that sentence might be pronounced there was a stir, and all in the court room pushed forward, eager to catch every word.

The excitement was pushed, and perfect quiet returned when Judge Pearson asked if the defendants were all present.

"You are each charged," he said, "with corruptly soliciting members of the General Assembly and endeavoring to induce them to vote for the passage of a bill under consideration. Four of you have pleaded guilty and one has been convicted after an impartial trial. It is greatly to be regretted that for years this practice was carried throughout the whole country that bribery in the Legislature was the greatest crime of the age."

Then the judge added that, however criminal the proceeding might be, it was not the duty of the public treasury to be plundered by the Legislature. He then pronounced the sentence on each of the defendants.

It is understood that Kemble in the court room the surprise would not be a single exception, was astonished. The prisoners were dismayed. A few minutes later the judge pronounced the sentence on each of the defendants.

There was nothing more to be done. Sheriff Seelye was the first to leave the court room. The prisoners followed into the library, where they had a brief conference with their counsel.

PHIL RYAN AT WEST POINT.

THE MODERN HENRY HAVENS UNDER ARREST FOR FALSE SWEARING.

Brought to New York and Lodged in Ludlow Street Jail—Warm Discussion in the Senate Over the Negro in the Army—Senator Allison's Proposed Amendment.

Detective L. A. Newcome, who has been almost living in Highland Falls during the Whitaker inquiry, dropped into Phil Ryan's saloon yesterday afternoon, and asked for a cup of tea. Phil Ryan was in front of the bar, and recognized his visitor as having something to do with the court; therefore he asked after the court, and learned that there was nothing new about it.

"I'm going to get you to come to New York with me," the detective announced, handing Ryan an official-looking paper.

Ryan either could not read or felt unable to. He asked the detective to read it to him, and the detective read that Ryan was wanted for testifying falsely before the Court of Inquiry in West Point—a properly constituted tribunal—to the effect that no cadets had been in his house on the night of the shooting.

Ryan was taken to the Ludlow street jail, where he was lodged in a cell. He was then taken to the court, where he was arraigned on the charge of perjury.

The case against Ryan is a very interesting one. It involves the question of the rights of a citizen to be tried by a jury of his peers.

Ryan's defense is based on the fact that he was never in West Point at the time of the shooting. He claims that he was in New York at the time.

The case is expected to be tried in the next few days. It is one of the most important cases of the year.

AT HOME IN NEW QUARTERS.

THE SEVENTH REGIMENT FORMALLY TAKING POSSESSION.

Escorted from the Old Armory to the New—Baldy and the Old Armory to the New—The Early Days of the Militia.

The Seventh Regiment took formal possession of its new armory, yesterday. The morning was a fine one, and the regiment took up the line of march, the sun shone brightly, and its coming out was accepted as a harbinger of prosperity in the new quarters.

Throughout the morning the armory over Tompkins Market presented a scene of orderly confusion. A change of base, removing the specter of war time. The furniture and fixtures were left for the Sixty-ninth, which succeeds the Seventh in the old armory.

WILLIAM P. KELLOGG'S SEAT.

DEMOCRATIC SENATORS DENYING THAT THERE WAS A BARGAIN.

Senator Jones's Argument in Favor of Judge Spofford's Claim—Mr. Blaine Cuts the Alleged Bargain an Honorable Understanding.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The morning hour having expired in the Senate, the resolutions declaring Henry D. Spofford entitled to the seat now occupied by Mr. Kellogg were taken up. Mr. Jones (Dem.) supported the resolutions in a legal argument which held that the Constitution guaranteed a republican form of government to each State, and that, inasmuch as the so-called Legislature which elected Kellogg had no more legal existence than a mob, its action could not be held as binding.

He said that the answer made by the Republicans to conclusive arguments that Kellogg was not legally elected, and therefore should not sit in the Senate, was that the case had been passed upon and settled. "The doctrine of res adjudicata," said he, "has never held a place in legislative bodies. It may be to the advantage of the principles of res adjudicata shall be applied to prevent endless private litigation, but it is not for the public interest that a usurper should be left in office in Congress."

Mr. Kellogg's seat was then taken up by Mr. Jones. He argued that the Constitution guaranteed a republican form of government to each State, and that, inasmuch as the so-called Legislature which elected Kellogg had no more legal existence than a mob, its action could not be held as binding.
