FOR THE CAMPAIGN.

THE WEEKLY SUN will be found a useful auxiliary by all who are earnestly working for the reform of the National Government.

To all those who sympathize with our purpose, we commend the circulation of THE WEEKLY SUN.

Gen. Garfield's Credit Mobilier Record.

I never owned, received, or agreed to receive any stock of the Credit Mobilier or the Union Pacific Railroad.

The facts in regard to Mr. Garfield, as taken by the committee, are that he agreed with Mr. Ames to take ten shares of Credit Mobilier stock, but did not pay for them.

From the New York Times, Feb. 10, 1873.

the word, he would have shelled the Capitol while Congress was in session as readily as Dr. Thompson, following the same doctrine, pitched the Louisiana Legislature into the street.

We advise the people to read carefully these SHERMAN letters. They admit the worst that has been said or thought concerning the consummation of the Electoral Fraud and the conspiracy to subvert the present Constitution by military force.

Serious Charges Against the Public Schools.

According to Mr. RICHARD GRANT WHITE, our public schools are far from what they are so generally supposed to be.

That is Mr. WHITE's opinion, and he expresses it in the Times. Going into particulars, he says that mistresses of households of long experience prefer employing a greenhorn, who can hardly read and cannot write, to enduring the bad manners of a girl from the public schools.

He adds that "of notions of duty, of interest in their work, of a desire to learn it thoroughly, of docility, of that respectful bearing which begets respect, they are as innocent as Hottentots or Yahoos."

In a subsequent order, known as No. 293, issued on Dec. 5, 1867, he defined the proper use of military power in such clear and concise terms that it will always be recognized as the true and proper use of the sword.

As to the public school boy, in the majority of cases he is less respectful, less docile, less in earnest about his work, more of the whole, inferior in principle, in intelligence, and even in manners, to the boy who has been taught merely to read and to write.

As to the public school girl, in the majority of cases she is less respectful, less docile, less in earnest about her work, more of the whole, inferior in principle, in intelligence, and even in manners, to the girl who has been taught merely to read and to write.

This is a very remarkable series of accusations against the schools upon which we spend about four millions annually, and in which all except a small part of the children of the city get their sole education.

Do we not find Mr. WHITE proposing any remedy for the evils which he talks, and therefore infer that he thinks the case beyond the hope of a cure. They are evils inseparable from a system of public instruction.

Mr. WHITE gives no answers to these questions. But he says that "the public schools, as at present conducted in the State of New York, does by no means stand in very high favor with the majority of all ministers of all religions."

One of the most remarkable gatherings of the summer was that of the New England railroad engineers at Rocky Point, on Sunday. These brave and hardy men assembled at Nargamansett Bay on the day of leisure to enjoy the clambake for which the region is famous.

There are few military reunions which draw together so courageous a body of men as these locomotive engineers. The shipping of New England has recently declined in importance, and some of the seaport towns of Maine and Massachusetts, which once were alive with a rich commerce, are now dull and sleepy.

Gen. HANCOCK believed that there were limits to a soldier's obligation of obedience. Gen. SHERMAN held that there were none. Gen. HANCOCK believed that a soldier was not bound to obey an unlawful order; that is, an order which was in progress—that a force of regular troops had been gathered at Washington expressly to serve the purposes of the conspirators.

of opinion as to what constitutes this fraud; yet the two seem to get on very well together, and the engineers report their union as more prosperous than ever.

THE STRANGE SITUATION OF ENGLAND.
London, Aug. 26.—It is probable that there are many noble Lords and country gentlemen enjoying for the first time in their political experience the pleasures of London at the end of August, and there are grandstands and moorings in consequence. Mr. Gladstone has done many things to make himself unpopular with the Tory party, but he has never devised a more effective method of doing so than to allow even his own followers to witness the result of his policy.
