

THE BODY LYING IN STATE.

THE DEAD PRESIDENT CARRIED SORROWFULLY TO THE CAPITAL.

The Face of the Dead President Viewed by the People at Elberon—Brief Religious Services in the Franklin Cottage Before the Journey for Washington—The Hearse and Flowers Strung at Princeton—The Funeral Ceremonies at the National Capitol.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 21.—The last act of President Garfield's life and death at Long Branch has been his earliest. The sun rose out of the beach and winnowed the misty east as the morning air cleared the shadows of the shore, directly across the foot of the southeast corner, directly underneath the room in which Mr. Garfield suffered so much and died so bravely. Col. Corbin had sat with the body through the night. By daybreak the body had been attired in the suit which the President wore at the time of his death. As he lay in the state-dressed coffin, his head lay across his breast.

The announcement made yesterday that the President's face would be exposed to the view of the people at 8 o'clock this morning caused hundreds of people to flock to the beach. The hearse was fairly crowded with dusty farmers and their dust-covered families began to arrive. They walked about the hotel piazzas and crowded down to the guard lines surrounding the cottage. By 8 o'clock the road in front of the hotel was filled with carriages of every description, and the Franklin cottage presented a novel scene. All sorts of men were in the crowd, but the women were in large majority. At 8 o'clock the guard of honor from the First Artillery, which has been stationed here, marched to the Franklin cottage, under command of Major Peterson, who was detailed to go to Washington.

Meantime the coffin had been removed to the broad hallway on the western side of the cottage. Two large and beautiful leaves of the cyprus palm, sent by Mr. John Horvay, lay across the foot of the black coffin, typifying heroism. At 8 o'clock two lines of people, one on each side of the door of the cottage, stood in the piazza of the hotel, and the people, in files, filed slowly to the entrance. Within, soldiers stood on guard about the coffin. As the people reached the doors the column was divided into two single files, and thus on each side of the body they passed slowly. The rich and poor man walked shoulder to shoulder, with uncovered heads, to the President's bier. The workmen of the neighborhood, the servants from the hotels, the railroad employes, all filed sadly through with the summer decorations of the hotel grounds.

The sight of the dead President was a shock. It was not recognizable. No one who had known Mr. Garfield's face from his published portraits could see in this dead face the slightest likeness. To those who had been familiar with the fine face and great head of the President, the face of the dead man was a shock. It was not recognizable. THE FUNERAL TRAIN.

People Standing with Bared Heads as it Passed—Flowers Strung at Princeton.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Leaving Long Branch at 10 o'clock, the funeral train proceeded at a speed of about forty miles an hour and arrived at Princeton at 11 o'clock. The train was a spectacle. The rich and poor man walked shoulder to shoulder, with uncovered heads, to the President's bier. The workmen of the neighborhood, the servants from the hotels, the railroad employes, all filed sadly through with the summer decorations of the hotel grounds.

The Procession to the Capitol—Mrs. Garfield's Version for the White House.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—A vast throng of people were assembled about the depot as the funeral train arrived. The immediate approach to the depot were roped off and closed against all save those who had special admission. The military were drawn up along the east side of Sixth street, with the right flank on Pennsylvania avenue. Upon the opposite side of the street nearest to the depot was a long line of carriages, preceded by the hearse, which was drawn up directly at the main entrance to the White House. ADVERSE OPINIONS OF SURGEONS.

The Probability of a Full Discussion when the Record of the Case is Completed.

A number of well-known surgeons of this city were visited yesterday by reporters of THE SUN and asked to give their opinions as to the surgical treatment of the late President, and particularly with reference to the mistake as to the location of the ball, as revealed by the autopsy.

There was found a general disinclination among reputable surgeons to discuss the case in the daily press. This disinclination was expressed by Dr. Lewis A. Sayre, who said: "At the present hour, when the nation is bowed with grief at a sad misfortune, it is hardly the time for medical discussion through the columns of the daily press. The public attendance have made their full report of the case it will be the proper time to criticize their action, as it will then be recorded in an official form. When that time arrives I have no doubt there will be some discussion. I was much interested in the report of the American Academy of Medicine had endorsed the treatment of the President. I supposed at first that it was the New York Academy of Medicine, and was surprised that, as a member, I had not been notified to attend. But the endorsement of the Academy of Medicine, of which I know nothing.

There seems to be a general belief among the surgeons of this city that the President, Dr. Bliss at the very outset of the President's case. A distinguished surgeon said: "A somewhat different method of treatment, and I believe would have better results. I believe in the use of the knife. It was a shameful neglect that the President was not sooner relieved of the wound by the use of the knife. It was a shameful neglect that the President was not sooner relieved of the wound by the use of the knife. OPINION UPON THE AUTOPSY.

General Surprise at the Complete Disproof of the Professional Diagnosis.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The universal topic during the morning was the discoveries of the autopsy. However excusable may have been the error of diagnosis made by the attending surgeons, it is none the less true as a fact that the surgeons who treated the President in entire ignorance of the true character of the injury. To the public at large it is almost incredible that a group of intelligent and experienced surgeons having a large familiarity with gun-shot wounds should have gone on exploring, cleaning, and dressing a burrowing abscess for eight or ten weeks while the patient lay in the hospital, and that the surgeons should have been so ignorant of the true character of the injury. FOREIGN NEWS OF ARRIVAL.

Comments of the European Press upon his Accession to the Office.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The Standard, in an editorial article, says: "To affirm that the accession of Mr. Arthur will lead to the reversal of Gen. Garfield's policy would be a rash proposition. The murder of Gen. Garfield has endeavored to change the course of the Government, but it is not likely that the accession of Mr. Arthur will lead to the reversal of Gen. Garfield's policy.
