

INTO HARRY BARNETT'S TALK

George Barnett, a colored man, is porter for Mrs. Malloy, a dressmaker at 427 Fifth avenue. A clock yesterday morning he was by the door and heard a strange noise in the pantry. He went into the pantry and found a yellow cat making vigorous but futile efforts to release its head from a red tin pitcher with gilt stripes around it in imitation of an Etruscan vase.

"Poor thing," said Barnett, as the cat gave utterance to its unearthly cry. "The tin got a hammer, and after a little earnest work knocked the bottom out of the pitcher."

"I'll give Tommy some air, anyhow," said Barnett as the yellow cat mewed shrilly and scratched and rolled about the floor.

Then Barnett carried the cat into the yard and tried to release it from its tin cage in the middle of the street. The red tin was made of such vigorous use of it four paws, which were not confined in the pitcher, that Barnett did not consider it safe to continue his charitable exertions longer.

The cat and tin pitcher rattled merrily over the sidewalk. Barnett, who was sitting on the porch, watched the cat and tin pitcher as they went. The cat was very much amused to see the tin pitcher rattling so merrily over the sidewalk. Barnett, who was sitting on the porch, watched the cat and tin pitcher as they went.

George, throw the cat over the fence. The noise will annoy the madame. Barnett took hold of the cat by the tail. "Here comes," he cried, and amid a chorus of "Oh, my!" from the servants, he threw the cat over the fence.

The brown-stone house at 429 Fifth avenue is occupied by Mr. Henry Bergh. Mr. Bergh is president of the National Automobile Club and Crutcher to Annapolis. He was eating his breakfast in the dining room of his house when he was startled by a sound of a gun.

Mr. Bergh went back and finished his breakfast with increased pleasure. Then he sent for Officer Smart of the society, and Smart arrested Barnett. At Jefferson street in Greenwich village Barnett was arrested by Officer Smart.

"I left Annapolis," he said last evening, "on account of the persecution of the French authorities. The French desire the people of Annapolis to realize that, and not the Chinese, are the rulers, and they have made everything as unpleasant as possible for Chinese merchants, officials, and capitalists."

For many months the Chinese element in the country in Asia. The Chinese are the ship-masters, the merchants, the bankers of the country. They are on the best terms with the Chinese element of Annapolis for fifty years.

"No, it isn't a dog at all," said Fish Commission. A dog is a lizard and half-way between the water lizard and the land half. It comes from the Western States, where, among opeures, it is considered superior to the latter. I am uncertain about its etymology of 'mud-puppy,' but suppose it comes from the animal's habits.

"I don't know," said Mr. Bergh, "but I have been able to see a lot of them in the city. They are very common in the city. They are very common in the city. They are very common in the city."

The reporter climbed the spiral stairway to the fifth floor on the corner of South and Brooklyn streets. He was met by a man in a large blue coat, who was the soldier mud-puppy. It is a lizard of a peculiar brown color, with a white spot on its head and back. It is about eleven inches long, one inch wide, and a half inch thick. The legs are very short and thick and very muscular.

"That's all," said Mr. Bergh, "but I have been able to see a lot of them in the city. They are very common in the city. They are very common in the city. They are very common in the city."

The will of William A. Beach was proved for probate. The will was executed on Nov. 18, 1879, and the codicil on Sept. 30, 1881. They give the testator's library to his son, William A. Beach, and the income of the residue of his estate to his wife, Ann B. Beach.

Justice Van Brunt in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday denied the application of John D. Townsend for an order for the examination of Comptroller Grant. The application was made on behalf of Alderman Grant.

Joseph Breen, a telegraph operator, boarded the John Sullivan yesterday morning at 172d street, until May last. He betrayed the farmer's daughter, Georgiana, aged 18, under a promise of marriage. In May he had obtained a variation, and he married her in New York.

Patrick H. McGinn, a manufacturer of oleomargarine in Columbia place, Brooklyn, caused a complaint to be made a week ago against himself for the purpose of testing the law passed by the last Legislature. McGinn was found guilty of the offense.

Women with babies and little girls and boys shed the upper deck of the Floating Hospital of the St. John's Guild yesterday morning for the first excursion of the Hebrew sanctuary. The Stern triplets with their mother, and three-year-old children, formed the most interesting group.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—James Street, an old and well-known engineer on the Lehigh and Susquehanna road, was placed in an insane asylum yesterday.

He was discovered by a physician of Phoebe Paulin, 114 West 11th street, Orange and Newark streets, who was called to the house to attend to a patient. The physician found James Street in a state of insanity.
