

DOING HONOR TO MR. TILDEN.

THE VENERABLE STATESMAN WAITED UPON AT GREYSTONE.

An expression from the Democratic National Committee in the person of Mr. Tilden...

The Democratic National Convention made a part of the party platform the following: With profound regret we have been apprised by the venerable statesman through whose person was struck that blow at the vital principle of republics...

The committee of one member from every State decided to present the resolution to Mr. Tilden on Sept. 3 and selected Gov. Abbott of New Jersey to make the presentation speech.

On Tuesday last Gov. Tilden wrote Gov. Abbott that he was not physically able to receive the committee, and asked that they would communicate with him by letter.

The committee's headquarters were at the National Committee's headquarters yesterday morning, and the resolution was read by Mississippian John S. Barbour of Virginia.

Edmund Wilson of Maine, Senator B. F. Jones of Louisiana, A. O. Bacon of Georgia, Frederick O. Prince of Massachusetts, A. W. Sullivan of New Hampshire, William C. Whitney of New York, ex-Gov. Brown of Tennessee...

Mr. Tilden's reply to the committee was that he was not physically able to receive the committee, and asked that they would communicate with him by letter.

The committee returned to New York about 5 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and the resolution was read by Mr. Tilden.

The committee returned to New York about 5 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and the resolution was read by Mr. Tilden.

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

Democratic Talk of Virginia and Vermont.

A short conference was held at the Democratic National Committee's headquarters yesterday between the Campaign Committee and several prominent Democrats.

The members of the Campaign Committee were Frederick O. Prince of Massachusetts, John S. Barbour of Virginia, Edward Wilson of Maine, ex-Senator Wallace of Pennsylvania, and A. W. Sullivan of New Hampshire.

The conference discussed the propriety of making a hard fight in Maine at the election of Governor, and the possibility of a strong effort to be made in that State.

The Republican State Committee will meet tomorrow at 10 o'clock in the morning, and will direct the campaign until election day.

Inspector Byrnes learned through the Importers and Traders' National Bank of August 22, that Francis Frisbee, exchange agent of the First National Bank of Portland, Ore., was a defaulter and was supposed to be on his way to this city with his wife.

The great party that laid the foundation for our country, and which has served so well, but follows a line of precedent as free as the air, and is free to be followed by the people of the Philippines when in these resolute it recognizes their exalted talents, courage and nobility to principle.

The committee returned to New York about 5 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and the resolution was read by Mr. Tilden.

The committee returned to New York about 5 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and the resolution was read by Mr. Tilden.

The committee returned to New York about 5 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and the resolution was read by Mr. Tilden.

BOTH SUING FOR DIVORCE.

MR. AND MRS. UHLMANN GIVE REASONS FOR WISHING TO LIVE APART.

Simon Uhlmann, a wealthy hop dealer at 60 Bond street, began a suit in the Court of Common Pleas on Feb. 20, for a limited divorce from his wife Carrie, charging that she had previously been abandoned by him.

Mr. Uhlmann says that his wife has frequently threatened her life and rushed toward her in a threatening manner. His habits, she asserts, have been very irregular, and for her protection she had been obliged to leave the house.

Mr. Uhlmann denies his wife's charges of ill-treatment, and says that she left the hotel without his consent, and was absent on a business trip.

Mr. Uhlmann asserts that his wife frequently insulted and abused him, and insisted she had a right to beat him.

The unexpected pleasure of seeing his wife again made him feel happy indeed, but you cannot believe how much he has to say about her.

On Oct. 19, 1883, she wrote: Tell me, my dear, would you care to see me again?

At last I have found the death of my wife. How glad I am to be free of her. Some time since my wife was indisposed to go.

Mr. Pratt told a reporter yesterday that he believed Mr. Elliott, whom her husband accused of the assault, is innocent.

Mr. Pratt told a reporter yesterday that he believed Mr. Elliott, whom her husband accused of the assault, is innocent.

MORE OF SAM LOWDEN.

Testimony of a Friend Was a Pretty Shocking Story of a Fellow.

Superintendent Frank said of Mr. Samuel Lowden's affairs yesterday: "Among the creditors of Mr. Lowden whose names have not been published are George Stone & Son, plasterers, $2,000; John J. Roberts, plasterer, $1,800; Z. S. Ayers, iron, between $2,000 and $3,000.

Among Mr. Lowden's personal friends who got caught was Mr. William Campbell, the waiter at the Hotel Royal, who had a great attachment to West Forty-first and Forty-second streets.

Mr. Uhlmann says that his wife has frequently threatened her life and rushed toward her in a threatening manner.

Mr. Uhlmann denies his wife's charges of ill-treatment, and says that she left the hotel without his consent, and was absent on a business trip.

Mr. Uhlmann asserts that his wife frequently insulted and abused him, and insisted she had a right to beat him.

The unexpected pleasure of seeing his wife again made him feel happy indeed, but you cannot believe how much he has to say about her.

On Oct. 19, 1883, she wrote: Tell me, my dear, would you care to see me again?

At last I have found the death of my wife. How glad I am to be free of her. Some time since my wife was indisposed to go.

Mr. Pratt told a reporter yesterday that he believed Mr. Elliott, whom her husband accused of the assault, is innocent.

BEBEVINING'S STORY OF IT.

HER PICTURESQUE AND AMAZING TRUST IN YOUNG DE WOLFE.

Not shaken even by an astonishing succession of late that would have upset almost anybody else Under the Sun.

Bébé Vining was very much depressed all day yesterday, and at 4 o'clock a friend of hers, who is also an actress, came in a carriage and took her and her sister Jennie away to her house in the country.

Mr. Uhlmann says that his wife has frequently threatened her life and rushed toward her in a threatening manner.

Mr. Uhlmann denies his wife's charges of ill-treatment, and says that she left the hotel without his consent, and was absent on a business trip.

Mr. Uhlmann asserts that his wife frequently insulted and abused him, and insisted she had a right to beat him.

The unexpected pleasure of seeing his wife again made him feel happy indeed, but you cannot believe how much he has to say about her.

On Oct. 19, 1883, she wrote: Tell me, my dear, would you care to see me again?

At last I have found the death of my wife. How glad I am to be free of her. Some time since my wife was indisposed to go.

Mr. Pratt told a reporter yesterday that he believed Mr. Elliott, whom her husband accused of the assault, is innocent.

BLAIN'S $100,000 MANION.

Photographs of It Taken to be Distributed to the New England States.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Large-sized photographs of James Blain's hundred thousand dollar palace in this city have been taken, and are now being distributed throughout Maine and the New England States.

Mr. Uhlmann says that his wife has frequently threatened her life and rushed toward her in a threatening manner.

Mr. Uhlmann denies his wife's charges of ill-treatment, and says that she left the hotel without his consent, and was absent on a business trip.

Mr. Uhlmann asserts that his wife frequently insulted and abused him, and insisted she had a right to beat him.

The unexpected pleasure of seeing his wife again made him feel happy indeed, but you cannot believe how much he has to say about her.

On Oct. 19, 1883, she wrote: Tell me, my dear, would you care to see me again?

At last I have found the death of my wife. How glad I am to be free of her. Some time since my wife was indisposed to go.

Mr. Pratt told a reporter yesterday that he believed Mr. Elliott, whom her husband accused of the assault, is innocent.

Mr. Pratt told a reporter yesterday that he believed Mr. Elliott, whom her husband accused of the assault, is innocent.

HIS YOUNG WIFE'S SUICIDE.

MRS. MARINI TAKES POISON IN HER HUSBAND'S PRESENCE.

Dr. Eliseo Marini, an Italian physician, has lived four months with his wife, Maria, at 117 Fourth Avenue, and were married only four months ago, and were apparently happy.

Mr. Uhlmann says that his wife has frequently threatened her life and rushed toward her in a threatening manner.

Mr. Uhlmann denies his wife's charges of ill-treatment, and says that she left the hotel without his consent, and was absent on a business trip.

Mr. Uhlmann asserts that his wife frequently insulted and abused him, and insisted she had a right to beat him.

The unexpected pleasure of seeing his wife again made him feel happy indeed, but you cannot believe how much he has to say about her.

On Oct. 19, 1883, she wrote: Tell me, my dear, would you care to see me again?

At last I have found the death of my wife. How glad I am to be free of her. Some time since my wife was indisposed to go.

Mr. Pratt told a reporter yesterday that he believed Mr. Elliott, whom her husband accused of the assault, is innocent.

Mr. Pratt told a reporter yesterday that he believed Mr. Elliott, whom her husband accused of the assault, is innocent.

Continuation of news items and advertisements at the bottom of the page.