

PETER B. SWEENEY'S RETURN.

HE COMES BACK TO NEW YORK TO RESUME HIS LAW PRACTICE.

Extreme of emotion is manifested in what Mr. Sweeney did in Paris. It is accompanied by his wife and son. Mr. Sweeney's intentions and prospects in his native city.

For the last twelve years he has been a resident of Paris. He lived with his family in modest apartments not far from the Arc de Triomphe. While there he has received many distinguished Americans.

He has been a great reader while in Paris, and a close observer of public events. An ardent student of the French republic, he has been seen from the bombardment of Alexandria.

Mr. Sweeney is a native of New York. His father for years kept a well-known hotel in Hoboken. Mr. Sweeney received a liberal education.

Mr. Sweeney returned to New York in 1873. He was elected District Attorney. His preference was the office of Superior Judge of the County of New York.

Mr. Sweeney returned to New York in 1873. He was elected District Attorney. His preference was the office of Superior Judge of the County of New York.

Mr. Sweeney returned to New York in 1873. He was elected District Attorney. His preference was the office of Superior Judge of the County of New York.

DEFENDING HENRY GOODWIN.

The Erratic Career of an Inventor which Ended in a Murder.

BOSTON, Dec. 29.—The defence in the trial of Henry K. Goodwin for the murder of Albert D. Swan put in some interesting testimony at Salem today. Col. Sweeney, in opening the case for the prisoner, spoke of his father's erratic business career, and continued: "They had grown up together in Lawrence. The deceased was a young man of capital; the prisoner a young man of extraordinary inventive talent."

Associated with Mr. Swan was Mr. Wait, and Goodwin had a partnership with Mr. Wait. Mr. Wait had received a patent on an invention similar to his own. Then he first began to suspect Swan, and charged him with trying to rob him of his inventions.

Mr. Sweeney's testimony was that Goodwin was a man of high intelligence and of high character. He was a man of high intelligence and of high character.

Mr. Sweeney's testimony was that Goodwin was a man of high intelligence and of high character. He was a man of high intelligence and of high character.

Mr. Sweeney's testimony was that Goodwin was a man of high intelligence and of high character. He was a man of high intelligence and of high character.

Mr. Sweeney's testimony was that Goodwin was a man of high intelligence and of high character. He was a man of high intelligence and of high character.

Mr. Sweeney's testimony was that Goodwin was a man of high intelligence and of high character. He was a man of high intelligence and of high character.

PHIL KIERIAN'S WIVES EASILY

GOING TO AFRICA WITH 1023 PLEASANTLY BEHIND HIM.

Telegraphing to his Wilmington Girl and Girl to Holliston that he Defected Ten Years Ago, and is now in Africa. Margie—He Will be Married in the Spring.

The Six district is bounded by Division Street, Grand street, Jackson street, South street, East River, Stanton, Clinton, Rivington, and Norfolk streets. The strongest workers were sent into the stronghold of the County Democrats.

Each one of the workers promised faithfully to turn over to Phil a majority, and things were done accordingly. Phil was a man of high intelligence and of high character.

Phil was a man of high intelligence and of high character. He was a man of high intelligence and of high character.

Phil was a man of high intelligence and of high character. He was a man of high intelligence and of high character.

Phil was a man of high intelligence and of high character. He was a man of high intelligence and of high character.

Phil was a man of high intelligence and of high character. He was a man of high intelligence and of high character.

Phil was a man of high intelligence and of high character. He was a man of high intelligence and of high character.

GLADSTONE'S BIRTHDAY.

He Received Hundreds of Congratulations Upon Reaching his 70th Year.

HAWARDEN, Dec. 26.—Today is the seventy-sixth anniversary of the birth of William E. Gladstone. During the morning he received 400 letters congratulating him on having attained his seventy-sixth year.

Mr. Gladstone has requested the press associations to convey to his friends his thanks for the many hundreds of congratulatory letters which he has received.

Mr. Gladstone has requested the press associations to convey to his friends his thanks for the many hundreds of congratulatory letters which he has received.

Mr. Gladstone has requested the press associations to convey to his friends his thanks for the many hundreds of congratulatory letters which he has received.

Mr. Gladstone has requested the press associations to convey to his friends his thanks for the many hundreds of congratulatory letters which he has received.

Mr. Gladstone has requested the press associations to convey to his friends his thanks for the many hundreds of congratulatory letters which he has received.

Mr. Gladstone has requested the press associations to convey to his friends his thanks for the many hundreds of congratulatory letters which he has received.

Mr. Gladstone has requested the press associations to convey to his friends his thanks for the many hundreds of congratulatory letters which he has received.

DISCONTENTED ENGINEERS.

TALK OF A DEMAND FOR EIGHT HOURS OF A GENERAL STRIKE.

The Elevated Railroad Train Dispatchers On Cause of the "Frenzied" Eleven Hours' Work. They Demand a Strike.

The locomotive engineers employed on the elevated railroad have for a long time complained about the uncertainty of their hours and of petty annoyances and stringent regulations which, they say, have been put upon them by the train dispatchers.

The engineers and firemen employed on the elevated railroad have for a long time complained about the uncertainty of their hours and of petty annoyances and stringent regulations which, they say, have been put upon them by the train dispatchers.

The engineers and firemen employed on the elevated railroad have for a long time complained about the uncertainty of their hours and of petty annoyances and stringent regulations which, they say, have been put upon them by the train dispatchers.

The engineers and firemen employed on the elevated railroad have for a long time complained about the uncertainty of their hours and of petty annoyances and stringent regulations which, they say, have been put upon them by the train dispatchers.

The engineers and firemen employed on the elevated railroad have for a long time complained about the uncertainty of their hours and of petty annoyances and stringent regulations which, they say, have been put upon them by the train dispatchers.

The engineers and firemen employed on the elevated railroad have for a long time complained about the uncertainty of their hours and of petty annoyances and stringent regulations which, they say, have been put upon them by the train dispatchers.

The engineers and firemen employed on the elevated railroad have for a long time complained about the uncertainty of their hours and of petty annoyances and stringent regulations which, they say, have been put upon them by the train dispatchers.

THE LEGISLATIVE PRINTING.

Labor Organizations Protest Against Work, Parents & Co.

ALBANY, Dec. 29.—A largely attended meeting was held in the Comptroller's office today to consider the letting of contracts for legislative printing. So much complaint has been made from various departments of the manner in which the contract of Wood, Parsons & Co. has been carried out, that protests have been made against allowing that firm to have work under any circumstances.

The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools. The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools.

The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools. The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools.

The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools. The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools.

The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools. The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools.

The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools. The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools.

The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools. The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools.

The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools. The Comptroller has received a letter from the Board of Education, asking for a reduction in the price of the books used in the schools.

THE HIGHWAYMAN'S DEATH

STORY OF THE MAN WHOSE PROPERTY WAS FOUND ON A DEAD BODY.

BOSTON, Dec. 29.—On a farm about three miles from Bedford a Suser reported this evening found a man killed on the railroad on the 9th inst. The man was a Swede, about 40 years of age, with light hair and complexion. He can make himself understood in English very well, for a man who left his native country only a few months ago. He told a story which differs in some respects from that written to Dr. Jones by Mr. Skeiton, with whom Larsen is now living.

The man says he walked from New York city on Monday, the 7th inst., to the apartment where he sought employment. He failed to get work, and the next day he started on foot for Bedford, intending to find his cousin, Nils Martenson, at Bedford, where Larsen himself was employed for a few weeks last spring.

He followed the railroad, and about an hour after sunset was plodding along in the darkness in search of employment. He can make himself understood in English very well, for a man who left his native country only a few months ago. He told a story which differs in some respects from that written to Dr. Jones by Mr. Skeiton, with whom Larsen is now living.

He followed the railroad, and about an hour after sunset was plodding along in the darkness in search of employment. He can make himself understood in English very well, for a man who left his native country only a few months ago. He told a story which differs in some respects from that written to Dr. Jones by Mr. Skeiton, with whom Larsen is now living.

He followed the railroad, and about an hour after sunset was plodding along in the darkness in search of employment. He can make himself understood in English very well, for a man who left his native country only a few months ago. He told a story which differs in some respects from that written to Dr. Jones by Mr. Skeiton, with whom Larsen is now living.

He followed the railroad, and about an hour after sunset was plodding along in the darkness in search of employment. He can make himself understood in English very well, for a man who left his native country only a few months ago. He told a story which differs in some respects from that written to Dr. Jones by Mr. Skeiton, with whom Larsen is now living.

He followed the railroad, and about an hour after sunset was plodding along in the darkness in search of employment. He can make himself understood in English very well, for a man who left his native country only a few months ago. He told a story which differs in some respects from that written to Dr. Jones by Mr. Skeiton, with whom Larsen is now living.

He followed the railroad, and about an hour after sunset was plodding along in the darkness in search of employment. He can make himself understood in English very well, for a man who left his native country only a few months ago. He told a story which differs in some respects from that written to Dr. Jones by Mr. Skeiton, with whom Larsen is now living.