

The Sun. FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1901. London Office of THE SUN, 10, Abchurch Lane, London, E.C. 4. All communications should be addressed to FRANK B. WHITFIELD, Editor, 10, Abchurch Lane, London, E.C. 4.

ties. They have sent these resolutions to the illustrious statesman and peace-maker, Col. BILL BROWN of the Daily News, and from the columns of Col. BILL BROWN'S journal we reproduce them:

THE POLITICAL CRISIS IN ITALY. A thunderbolt from a clear sky would not be more unexpected than was the news that Signor CAISIRI had been beaten in the Italian Chamber of Deputies and had been forced to resign.

The proposition to make JOHN SWANBOLT the referee in the impending razor war between the irate and infuriated Italian-speaking and German-speaking barbers of New York, 500 on one side and 4,000 on the other, appears unjust to the gentleman, and therefore not to be approved.

The man to settle the whole business, to straighten out the rough edges and turn down the sharp corners of the controversy, is Col. BILL BROWN, the great Peace-maker.

The Fortifications Bill in the Senate. The Fortifications Bill used to be one of the latest of the supply bills reported to the House, but at the present session it came from the committee ahead of all the rest.

While frugality, when properly exercised in legislation, is commendable, to postpone or to delay needed provisions for the national defence is not economy, but folly.

The War of the Barbars. We are sorry to observe signs of an estrangement between the Italian-speaking barbers and the German-speaking barbers of this town.

The Germ of Diphtheria. A recent despatch from Middletown mentions the prevalence of an unusually malignant type of diphtheria in certain parts of Connecticut.

Mr. JULIAN HAWTHORNE AVER'S in a communication addressed to the Twentieth Century, a community called the Onedia was formed upon the doctrine of FOURIER and established itself in these United States.

carrying on the work of coast defence. If the Senate wishes to add more, the House may wisely agree; but the Senate should not sacrifice needed work under systems long ago sanctioned to carry out its own purpose.

A Claptrap Measure. Mr. BOSCHKE has introduced into the Senate at Albany a bill directing our Board of Education to set apart two rooms in each of at least fifteen of the public school buildings.

The measure, of course, is a mere piece of claptrap, and we are surprised that Senator BOSCHKE, whom we have regarded as a man of common sense, should be willing to have his name associated with it.

Whatever is wrong. This seems to be the view of the Mugwump newspapers about almost everything that happens in New York; and they supplement the saying by adding that whatever is wrong in municipal affairs is due to Tammany Hall.

Before this Mugwump criticism was printed, the principal law officer of this city had written and sent to one of his assistants at Albany the following letter:

On the same evening, at a meeting held pursuant to a previous call, the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall passed a resolution requesting the Democratic Senators and Assemblymen from this city "to oppose the passage of the several bills now pending in the Legislature, which are intended to increase the salaries of certain officials and employees of the city Government, and which, if passed, would unnecessarily add to the expenses of the municipality."

It is a matter of taste, and the taste of the majority always seems something unpleasant and even revolting in putting men to death. A hangman is not a hero in the eyes of all parts of the world, and in almost all ages he has been infamous.

invoking community in which no man had a wife of his own, and no woman any husband, but all belonged to all. This community was attempted at Onedia, in Madison county, and, in spite of the religious fanaticism and the faith in human perfection which it professed, it had to be wound up after a few years, and it has never found a successor.

Disagreement Between the Two Houses. HARTFORD, Feb. 5.—The House of Representatives this morning, after the transaction of routine business, took up for consideration the same resolution of the Senate concerning the Committee of Conference.

Mr. GREENE of Norwich, Chairman of the Committee on Canvass and a member of the Joint Conference Committee, objected to the word "late" in the resolution. Messrs. Root of Waterville and Healy of Windsor Locks (Dem.) objected to striking out the word, as it would lead to further delay.

Representative GREENE, the Republican leader in the House, moved to strike out the word "late" and to insert the word "early" in the bill.

The Growing Prevalence of Arthur P. Gorman as a Possible Candidate. From the Greenwich Daily News. WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Within the past two weeks another great change has taken place in law-making circles in regard to the proper man for the head of the Democratic party.

Some of the Cleveland Convention. From the Albany Daily Republican. The writings of a contemporary author are awaited by English-speaking people with keener anticipation than the pen productions of Robert Louis Stevenson.

Large and valuable libraries were sold in London on Tuesday last. The sale was held in the rooms of the many English novelists of the day.

The Enlargement of Plattsburgh Barracks and the New Post at Swanton. WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The passage by both Houses of the bill appropriating $300,000 for the enlargement of the barracks at Plattsburgh may possibly prove a more important measure than some even of its supporters have supposed.

Such a bill usually has little chance of being passed in the short session, unless by grace of committee and of Congress it can be introduced in the Army Appropriation or other general supply bill, to which it bears some relation. This particular measure had fortunately been successful in the House at the last session, and after one check in the Senate this winter it was rushed through by unanimous consent.

As a preparation for the execution of the harmonious political and military policy in the event of any future war, the Army Appropriation bill contains the provision for the enlargement of the barracks at Plattsburgh and the new post at Swanton.

The importance of the Champlain defenses has been attested by at least two wars. In fact, the region illustrates the truth that the line of strategic operation are repeated generation after generation, and often under widely different circumstances and in spite of changes in the art of war.

In the war of the Revolution Lake Champlain was at once made a scene of hostilities, and the capture of Fort Ticonderoga by Ethan Allen was effected only three weeks after the battle of Brandywine.

In his annual report Gen. Schofield announced that "it is proposed to maintain at appropriate points, which have been carefully selected, a permanent force of regular troops of all arms on the northern frontier, and that the wisdom of providing, without unnecessary delay, for the additional accommodations required for these permanent garrisons will, it is believed, be manifest to all."

Work is now being pushed on the next Christmas numbers of the magazines and periodicals. The poets, writers and story writers have all done their part of the work, and the editors are now engaged in the illustrations.

This will show the folly of the habit of "mehling," made famous and popular by the late John T. Raymond. At the private view of the water color exhibition at the Academy on Friday night a man of taste and poverty stood before a lovely picture and looked upon it with a longing gaze.

A friend of Fred Church's met that famous artist at the water color private view the other night. "Hello!" said he, "make me a water color." "Hello!" said he, "make me a water color."

A minor part of our new press case broken, and as the blacksmith here had no drill, I had the kidnapers and the rest of the tools borrowed the tools captured from the burglars.

It was awfully flattering. He said my check was the color of his favorite rose. "He told me he liked yellow roses best," returned the genial Estelle.

WHAT WE ARE ALL TALKING ABOUT. A youngish man walked up and down an east-side street one evening recently, smoking a cigar, the odor of which was not that of the east side. To a casual observer he would have been asked for a light, which he would have been asked to walk up and down, and finally, passing the first man under a lamp post, they eyes met and they hailed one another.

Frederic Villiers professes to have fallen in love with the winter climate of New York, and that he is going to spend his winter here. He is a young man, and he is a young man, and he is a young man.

The young medical student who gave the prescription to Miss Helen Potts of the Comstock school has had an eventful career. Although a young man not yet 25 he has four years ago as a clerk for Havemeyer & Elders, the great sugar concern, and he has since served six months.

Mrs. Sarah Bernhard edifies any passenger who has arrived at this port since the foundation of the Government in the matter of trunks she brought in. Nearly everybody remembers the arrival of Mr. Adams in the fall of 1858.

Cigars must be kept in a more or less moist atmosphere, else they will dry out and crumble apart. Some years ago a genius who knew that the atmosphere of a cigar should be kept in a more or less moist atmosphere, else they will dry out and crumble apart.

Boarding-five flights up is the sign in the doorway of a Third Avenue tenement house. In which there is no elevator. Whether they will make terms for meals by the week, or by the month, or by the year, is not a little thing like five flights of stairs does not answer.

Woodcock H. Cutler, the Long Island poet, is spending the winter in town. He boards at the Ashland House, and is a great favorite as our country poets are not very numerous.
