

THURSDAY, JUNE 23, 1892.

The Democratic National Convention...

The Democratic National Convention continued its routine work of effecting a permanent organization...

There was a great crush in the Convention hall at the opening of the evening session...

A motion to substitute the tariff plank as reported in the minority report...

The presentation of candidates' names being then in order, Gov. ABRIET of New Jersey took the platform to propose the name of GROVER CLEVELAND...

The Hon. WILLIAM O. DE WITT of New York presented Mr. HILL's name...

One great, unalterable, and joyous fact is the treatment which the Mugwumps and boiters from Syracuse encountered...

They were very beautiful, and with the exception of BOWDOW GRACE, who is no singing chicken, they were mostly very young...

Who killed Cock Robin? "I," said Little-killer WITNEY. "I killed the— little fool with my fascinating smile and the shrug of my gentlemanly shoulders...

After the Chicago Convention has completely broken up, there will be a hull in the political excitement for a few days...

It is a fight, and human nature loves a fight. It is a race, and the coldest spirits are stimulated by such competition.

balancing the scales, but according to their partisan sympathies. They will take sides like other men, and like other men, they will be agitated by hopes and fears for four months to come.

This partisan sentiment is one of the noblest and most salutary sentiments in human nature. It is the same spirit from which proceeds patriotism, and which leads men to sacrifice themselves for their country...

This is a period of decaying religious faith, or illusions, as the agnostics say, but political devotion is as strong as ever.

Such a popular spirit affords a glorious inspiration for a newspaper, and THE SUN enters upon this campaign of 1892 stirred and elevated as by a voice from above.

The visit of Prince BISMARCK to Vienna for the purpose of being present at the marriage of his son, Count HERBERT BISMARCK...

One great, unalterable, and joyous fact is the treatment which the Mugwumps and boiters from Syracuse encountered when they met the Democracy face to face in the town of Chicago.

They were very beautiful, and with the exception of BOWDOW GRACE, who is no singing chicken, they were mostly very young.

Who killed Cock Robin? "I," said Little-killer WITNEY. "I killed the— little fool with my fascinating smile and the shrug of my gentlemanly shoulders, both staid and port. And I'm glad I did it!"

After the Chicago Convention has completely broken up, there will be a hull in the political excitement for a few days, while the delegates are returning home and recuperating from the trials of week's existence in Chicago.

It is a fight, and human nature loves a fight. It is a race, and the coldest spirits are stimulated by such competition.

German unity and Italian unity had both been attained at the expense of Austria; and it was evident that BISMARCK had been almost as efficient in the one transaction as in the other.

This partisan sentiment is one of the noblest and most salutary sentiments in human nature. It is the same spirit from which proceeds patriotism, and which leads men to sacrifice themselves for their country...

This is a period of decaying religious faith, or illusions, as the agnostics say, but political devotion is as strong as ever.

Such a popular spirit affords a glorious inspiration for a newspaper, and THE SUN enters upon this campaign of 1892 stirred and elevated as by a voice from above.

The visit of Prince BISMARCK to Vienna for the purpose of being present at the marriage of his son, Count HERBERT BISMARCK...

One great, unalterable, and joyous fact is the treatment which the Mugwumps and boiters from Syracuse encountered when they met the Democracy face to face in the town of Chicago.

They were very beautiful, and with the exception of BOWDOW GRACE, who is no singing chicken, they were mostly very young.

Who killed Cock Robin? "I," said Little-killer WITNEY. "I killed the— little fool with my fascinating smile and the shrug of my gentlemanly shoulders, both staid and port. And I'm glad I did it!"

After the Chicago Convention has completely broken up, there will be a hull in the political excitement for a few days, while the delegates are returning home and recuperating from the trials of week's existence in Chicago.

It is a fight, and human nature loves a fight. It is a race, and the coldest spirits are stimulated by such competition.

already are filled with strong discontent is evident. The consequences of this dissatisfaction, though perhaps still remote, are likely to culminate in the political severance of these dependencies from the British empire.

A despatch from Washington contains this statement: "Little now is heard of the successor to the late Supreme Court Justice BRADLEY. The report is that the choice lies between Secretary TRACY and Attorney-General MILLER."

The President could not do better than to appoint one of these men. That one is BENJAMIN F. TRACY.

Such a popular spirit affords a glorious inspiration for a newspaper, and THE SUN enters upon this campaign of 1892 stirred and elevated as by a voice from above.

The visit of Prince BISMARCK to Vienna for the purpose of being present at the marriage of his son, Count HERBERT BISMARCK...

One great, unalterable, and joyous fact is the treatment which the Mugwumps and boiters from Syracuse encountered when they met the Democracy face to face in the town of Chicago.

They were very beautiful, and with the exception of BOWDOW GRACE, who is no singing chicken, they were mostly very young.

Who killed Cock Robin? "I," said Little-killer WITNEY. "I killed the— little fool with my fascinating smile and the shrug of my gentlemanly shoulders, both staid and port. And I'm glad I did it!"

After the Chicago Convention has completely broken up, there will be a hull in the political excitement for a few days, while the delegates are returning home and recuperating from the trials of week's existence in Chicago.

It is a fight, and human nature loves a fight. It is a race, and the coldest spirits are stimulated by such competition.

It is a fight, and human nature loves a fight. It is a race, and the coldest spirits are stimulated by such competition.

yet given views the right to scourge their husbands at discretion, but it would be altogether better for such husbands as HENCKOVITZ if this boon were granted to their wives.

An esteemed correspondent favors us with the following inquiry: "A writer in today's Sun says that HENCKOVITZ is nominated by delegates from States by an agency...

Our correspondent believes that his mind will not be so easily won. Certain States are surely Republican, certain others surely Democratic.

A witness and very vulgar cartoon caricaturing Mr. BLAINE appears on the first page of the number of Puck which was issued yesterday, dated June 22.

Some of the friends of the Hon. BENJAMIN HARRISON have appeared unconsciously to the risibles of a generation that knows BENJAMIN, by including in their biographical sketches of him some remarks which he made in 1892 in celebration of civil service reform.

We are pleased with the news from London that the grooms, farkers, coachmen, footmen, and other members of the Servants' Union are preparing to assert their rights.

Some Old Stories. To the Editor of THE SUN:—I read with great interest in your issue of last Sunday the article entitled "Priceless Old Madeira," and particularly that portion therein in which Major Slaymaker...

A most depressing and doleful condition of affairs appears to exist in Siam, the wonderful Land of the Sacred White Elephant. Muang Keo, the King of Siam, and the Siamese call it Englishmen are very largely interested in this country, so near to British Burma and the Malay possessions of Great Britain.

This year will mark an important epoch in the history of the South African Republic for the introduction of railroads is now to make its resources more accessible.

There was a time when men looked the truth in the face, and lived in the truth, enjoying it, always. (Chalmers, "The Christian's Duty," p. 11.)

There was a time when men looked the truth in the face, and lived in the truth, enjoying it, always. (Chalmers, "The Christian's Duty," p. 11.)

A Project of Overseas Transportation for Ships from Lake Huron to Toronto.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Canada is contemplating a railroad scheme which to Americans is hardly of less interest and consequence than to her own people. The Ontario ship railway, which has been more or less talked of for several years, has now been revived under circumstances that point to its being pushed with all the vigor that could be desired.

The Ontario ship railway will be about sixty-six miles long, and will run from Collingwood, on Georgian Bay, to the mouth of a small river west of Toronto.

There has long been a proposition to cut a canal from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario, so as to secure a shorter path for the Northwest Passage, and the contemplated substitution of a ship railway is put on the ground that it would cost less for construction and maintenance.

This last, of course, is the first and fundamental question, and is practically to lift a vessel and carry it 2,000 feet above the water by machinery, deposit her on a cradle, and then haul her up a flight of about sixty miles by locomotive engines, and lower her into the water, leaving her as good as new.

But it certainly is not a deal of enterprise in Canada's part to be undertaking engineering work of this kind. The Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario are connected by a comparatively easy route, and cutting a canal, of course there would be no need of the machinery and stored it up.

To the Editor of THE SUN:—I read with great interest in your issue of last Sunday the article entitled "Priceless Old Madeira," and particularly that portion therein in which Major Slaymaker...

A most depressing and doleful condition of affairs appears to exist in Siam, the wonderful Land of the Sacred White Elephant. Muang Keo, the King of Siam, and the Siamese call it Englishmen are very largely interested in this country, so near to British Burma and the Malay possessions of Great Britain.

This year will mark an important epoch in the history of the South African Republic for the introduction of railroads is now to make its resources more accessible.

There was a time when men looked the truth in the face, and lived in the truth, enjoying it, always. (Chalmers, "The Christian's Duty," p. 11.)

IN A CHICAGO BRIDE PATH. A Woman Nearly Killed by a Violent Storm.

From Chicago News. Mrs. B. F. Ferguson of 530 West Jackson street, wife of the well-known lumberman, was nearly killed by a violent storm on Tuesday night. About 10 o'clock on Tuesday night a heavy rain fell, and a strong wind from the southwest struck the city.

For more than 100 yards the unequal fight was fought, the plucky woman beating off the furious animal with her hands and feet. Finally, mad with fury, he leaped into the air and struck her with his forefeet, driving them to the ground.

She was nearly killed by a violent storm on Tuesday night. About 10 o'clock on Tuesday night a heavy rain fell, and a strong wind from the southwest struck the city.

She was nearly killed by a violent storm on Tuesday night. About 10 o'clock on Tuesday night a heavy rain fell, and a strong wind from the southwest struck the city.

She was nearly killed by a violent storm on Tuesday night. About 10 o'clock on Tuesday night a heavy rain fell, and a strong wind from the southwest struck the city.

She was nearly killed by a violent storm on Tuesday night. About 10 o'clock on Tuesday night a heavy rain fell, and a strong wind from the southwest struck the city.

She was nearly killed by a violent storm on Tuesday night. About 10 o'clock on Tuesday night a heavy rain fell, and a strong wind from the southwest struck the city.

She was nearly killed by a violent storm on Tuesday night. About 10 o'clock on Tuesday night a heavy rain fell, and a strong wind from the southwest struck the city.

She was nearly killed by a violent storm on Tuesday night. About 10 o'clock on Tuesday night a heavy rain fell, and a strong wind from the southwest struck the city.