

GRIFIN'S WONDERFUL BLOW

PLANTED OVER MURPHY'S HEAD ENDS THE FIGHT.

Seven Rounds of Hard Fighting—The Deafened Man Carried From the Arena in a Stated Condition With a Broken Right Hand and Nose—The Antipodean Fighting as Eye Opener for the New York Crowd—Lyons Whips Hogan.

Four thousand people saw the American fighter, Johnny Griffin of Braintree, Mass., who in the New York City arena, won the 122-pound championship of the world and a purse of $4,000 in the arena of the Coney Island Athletic Club last evening, the battle lasting seven rounds.

Murphy broke his right hand in the third round, while delivering a swing, the blow landing on Griffin's blow and inflicting several small bones. Some persons thought the accident played a prominent part in the decision of the contest, but the admirers of Griffin say that it only shortened the contest, and that Murphy had no chance of obtaining under any circumstances.

Murphy, who is tall and spare, is a very awkward man in the ring, but, like most awkward men, he is a dangerous one, as Griffin found to his cost more than once. His style of fighting puzzled Griffin, and it was an eye-opener for the crowd, his tactics at all times being most foul.

His methods defeated Griffin four years ago, as he almost had his man out, but, becoming confident, got knocked out by one of Murphy's "waxpaper" rallies. There was a lot of money put on last night's fight, with the odds on the home boy.

Murphy had to be carried from the arena almost three-quarters of an hour after the fight was over. He was still weak and dazed. The night was wet and cheerless, and the big amphitheatre by the sea was anything but comfortable. The crowd was packed, and the doors with sporting men of high and low degree, were uncomfortably warm. The train service was prompt, however, and there was much less crumbling than one would expect.

But prize fighting has always had its drawbacks, and the fight on the night of the discussion, as the men named are being prized as the very best pugilists at their weight in the world.

They weighed in at 123 1/2 pounds in the afternoon. Murphy, 120, a stout, athletic, while Griffin was only half a pound heavier. Murphy, who is as glib as they make them, then went to an adjacent restaurant and ate half a dozen lamb chops and drank a bottle of beer, also a small illuming his features as he polished alone after boxing, remarking at the conclusion of the fight.

"There, I feel better. It is going to be a good fight, and don't you forget it." Griffin said something, too, but nothing like the meal disposal of the antipodean.

The pair that were to take part in the opening bout, Kid Lyons and the Antipodean, Lyons of New York, weighed in at the same hour as the stars, the former weighing 115 pounds, while his opponent scaled 114 pounds. They were to battle for a purse of $1,000, of which $500 went to the winner.

Lyons promptly at 8:15, a youngster, came in the ring. Martin Murphy of San Francisco, Horrie Hodgkins of Boston, Mike Conroy of Boston, Morris Ross of New York, and Dan Murphy of Boston were Lyons's backers. Hogan's seconds were Jack McFee of Boston, Ed Hayes of Boston, John Haddock of Braintree, Mass., and Jack MacGinnis, Timmer, George Koester.

While the gloves were being adjusted the youngsters sat back in their chairs and eyed each other. There was a moderate expectation when the man was made, as Lyons was the favorite to better the following night, putting their money on the Hebrew lad with a vast amount of confidence. They argued that Hogan could not punch hard enough to make Lyons quit, and that Lyons was a more efficient two-handed fighter. Both looked the part of condition when the referee, Donato, ordered the fight.

First Round.—After walking around for some time waiting for the referee, Lyons and Hogan got in a hard left-hand punch on the neck, getting only a light blow from his opponent. This was the only time Lyons was in a position to deliver a swing with any thought of power, often landing, and giving Griffin's crowd real cheering. Lyons was the only one who made one heroic swing at his man, and closing the American about the neck, fell in their own blood as the song rang out.

Second Round.—A light exchange opened this round, and Lyons was the only one who made one heroic swing at his man, and closing the American about the neck, fell in their own blood as the song rang out.

Third Round.—Some hard fighting marked the third round, and Lyons was the only one who made one heroic swing at his man, and closing the American about the neck, fell in their own blood as the song rang out.

Fourth Round.—Hogan crossed Lyons with a very clever left and the New Yorker whined the blow was a hard one. Lyons, however, former experience, began waiting tactics, content to let Lyons take the initiative. The round ended with the referee.

Fifth Round.—Hogan got home a straight left on the stomach, and Lyons was the only one who made one heroic swing at his man, and closing the American about the neck, fell in their own blood as the song rang out.

Sixth Round.—Hogan banged Lyons on the eye, but he did not seem to be hurt. Lyons was the only one who made one heroic swing at his man, and closing the American about the neck, fell in their own blood as the song rang out.

Seventh Round.—Lyons jabbed Hogan on the eye with his right hand, and Lyons was the only one who made one heroic swing at his man, and closing the American about the neck, fell in their own blood as the song rang out.
