

CHAMBERLAIN OPPOSES THE HOME RULE BILL

THE HOME RULE BILL PAYS THE WAY, HE SAYS, TO DISUNION.

No Declares that the Imperial Parliament would have no genuine supremacy and that in the event of war it would be hampered by the eighty Irish members.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—In the House of Commons today the Right Hon. John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, was questioned in regard to the decision of the Supreme Court of Judicature in Ireland, to the effect that the Chief Secretary was wrong in his instructions to the police not to arrest Sheriff's officers in the service of writs of ejectment at night.

John Redmond, the Parnellite leader, brought up the case of John Daly, serving a life sentence under conviction of having engaged in dynamite conspiracy. Home Secretary Asquith replied to Mr. Redmond that he had made the fullest and closest inquiry into Daly's case, and did not propose to reopen the question, unless new facts should be produced justifying such action.

The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain then resumed debate on the Home Rule bill, the House being full, but not crowded. Mr. Chamberlain declared that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain insisted that no finality was possible until Ireland had accepted the bill. He said that the bill involved risk to the existence of the United Kingdom. He hesitated to think of what the country's position would be in the event of a "Suppose."

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be made by the emergency of Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

ACCUSED BY GIRL PUPILS.

PRINCIPAL ELSTON OF A HOBOKEN SCHOOL SUSPENDED.

Charges Brought by the President of the Board of Education Made by Miss Leonard, a Pupil of the School, in a Letter to the Principal.

Principal William E. Elston of Hoboken School 5 in Hoboken was suspended yesterday afternoon by President Edward Russ of the Board of Education, pending the investigation of charges made against him by Miss Leonard, a teacher in the school.

One of the charges in Miss Leonard's letter was that Elston had been guilty of a gross violation of the public schools that when a pupil is to be punished he or she must be sent by the teacher to the principal. The principal occasionally takes charge of a class, and he has a private room in which the candidates for punishment are received.

Miss Leonard naturally supposed that Mr. Elston had scolded her and thought nothing more of the matter. When Mrs. Elston, however, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had hugged and fondled her. She was old enough to know that his conduct was not proper. The girl's mother was surprised, but fearing that if she complained the affair would gain publicity, decided that she would say nothing about it.

A few days ago Mamie Diah, a well-developed girl, twelve years of age, was brought to school by Miss Leonard to Principal Elston. She had been arrested for stealing. When she returned to the class room she told Miss Leonard that Mr. Elston had taken her on his knee and examined her stockings, and that he had fondled her.

Miss Leonard said she could hardly believe that Mr. Elston was taking more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

Elston was taken more of a fatherly interest in the child, and that Mamie might have exaggerated the story of his conduct. On Thursday afternoon, however, when Katie Rogers, a thirteen-year-old girl, was brought to school by Miss Leonard, she told her mother that Mr. Elston had taken liberties with her. Miss Leonard decided to call on the principal and to make formal charges. Miss Leonard did so. President Russ summoned before him yesterday afternoon the principal, Elston, and also Mr. Elston. On hearing the statements of the children he suspended the principal.

CHIMINALS BEFORE THE COURTS.

Most Carefully Gathered Evidence May Fall to Conquer.

One of the duties which devolve upon the Police Department of this city is the securing of evidence in criminal prosecutions. The determination of the crime and the arrest of the criminal are the only steps in the work of securing the public, and the final move, the obtaining of evidence which will fasten the crime upon the perpetrator and secure his punishment, is almost as important as those preceding it.

The seeking of witnesses and of facts bearing upon a criminal prosecution has always been considered the special duty of the Detective Bureau, and whenever the ward detectives have found themselves stumped in the effort to find necessary evidence, the presumably more skilled and experienced detectives who have been trained by Mr. Hyman have been called upon. This work is frequently the most difficult of the police, and it is a task of comparison with it the discovery of crime and criminals is often very simple. The detective never knows when the evidence is complete. His search may be most patient and the results may appear very satisfactory, yet when the criminal is brought up for trial the defence lawyer will consider the meagre details of the case, and the result will be a verdict of acquittal. The detective never knows when the evidence is complete. His search may be most patient and the results may appear very satisfactory, yet when the criminal is brought up for trial the defence lawyer will consider the meagre details of the case, and the result will be a verdict of acquittal.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

The other day Inspector McLaughlin, who now has charge of the Detective Bureau, sat in his office and reviewed the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention. He had arrested the alleged offender in the case of a young man who had been called to his attention.

J. S. CONOVER & CO.,

28 and 30 West 23d St.

Open Fireplaces: A fine and large assortment of Brass, Bronze, and Iron in new and elegant designs.

Mantels in all woods, native and foreign, from our own special designs.

Title of every foreign make in rich enamel colorings, and patterns for Floors, Wainscoting, Facings, and Bathrooms.

Our new factory with extensive facilities enables us to produce the finest class of work at greatly reduced cost.

Foundry and Factory: 526, 528, and 530 West 25th St.

Obituary: Andrew Jackson Crosey, one of the oldest residents of New Utrecht, died at his home yesterday in his 77th year.

Obituary: Near-Admiral Augustus Ludlow (Case), U. S. Navy, died yesterday morning in Washington. He was born in 1815 and placed on the retired list in 1870.

Obituary: Six-Police Commissioner Oliver B. Lorch died last night at his home, 30 Aberdeen street, in his 61st year.

Obituary: The wife of Public Printer Palmer died in Washington last evening after an illness of two weeks.

Obituary: Susan Haber, who died on Thursday at the residence of her son, 141 West 12th street, was born in Bavaria in 1811.

Obituary: The death was announced yesterday of George J. Kraft, importer of fancy paper at 85 Broadway.

Obituary: Henry de Groot Hastings, youngest son of the Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Hastings, President of the Board of Christian Education, died at his home in Brooklyn, died on Thursday.

Obituary: The Hon. Henry Newhall, a well-known member of the Legislature, died at his home in New York yesterday.

Obituary: A Former Auditor of the Packing Company charged with Embezzlement. Edward G. Ponton of Mount Vernon was arrested at his home last evening by Court Officer Conroy of the Jefferson Market Police.

Obituary: Two Men Fatally Hurt in a Wreck. Brazil, Ind., Feb. 17.—A wreck occurred on the Chicago and Indiana Coal Road north of this city this morning.

Obituary: Damages for Personal Injuries. Johnny Haraskowitz recovered a verdict yesterday in the Superior Court before Judge McAdam and a jury of $5,000 damages.

Obituary: High Hats are Banned on the Produce Exchange. You mustn't hit a high hat on the Produce Exchange any more.

Obituary: Exchange any more. Yesterday Alfred C. A. Rogers, a prominent member of the Produce Exchange, was taken off by a roll of tape thrown by some inconsiderate member.

A MANIAC WOMAN'S FRENZY.

MRS. HENRY'S DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO KILL MRS. KELLY.

The Neighed, Sickness and Heat for Her Neighbor, and When They Were Alone She Threw Her Down, Dug at Her Eyes and Face, Pulled Out Her Hair, and at Last Jumped Upon Her, Breaking Her Ribbs.

Kingsport, Feb. 17.—There is a row of two-story cottages facing the Hudson, about two miles north of Kingston. The little settlement known as Kingsport, and a part of the cottages are occupied by employees in the brickyards along the bank of the river.

One of the cottages, which stands a little back from the road and some distance from any of the rest, is occupied by Mrs. Mary A. Kelly, a poor widow. Two hundred feet down the hill from Mrs. Kelly's cottage is the cottage of Mrs. Elizabeth Henry, also a widow. Mrs. Kelly is a little, slight woman, 60 years old, while Mrs. Henry is ten years her junior and weighs 200 pounds.

On Tuesday morning last a son of Mrs. Henry's ran into Mrs. Kelly's kitchen and told her that his mother was very sick. It was about 8 o'clock, but Mrs. Kelly dropped her breakfast dishes and hurried over to see if she could do anything for her mother. Mrs. Henry's son said he had found his mother lying on the floor when he got up, and he was afraid that she was dying.

Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress. The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter? Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick."

Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying. Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress. The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter?

Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick." Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying. Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress.

The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter? Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick."

Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying. Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress.

The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter? Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick."

Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying. Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress.

The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter? Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick."

Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying. Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress.

The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter? Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick."

Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying. Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress.

The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter? Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick."

Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying. Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress.

The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter? Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick."

ALMOST MASS SORES.

So Painful No Rest at Night, Doctors No Help. Cured Speedily and Completely by Cuticura.

late in the fall of 1890 I was afflicted with salt rheum of the face. My face, head, and neck were almost a complete mass of sores, and some other parts of my body were afflicted. I had been treated by many doctors, but nothing had been accomplished.

On Tuesday morning last a son of Mrs. Henry's ran into Mrs. Kelly's kitchen and told her that his mother was very sick. It was about 8 o'clock, but Mrs. Kelly dropped her breakfast dishes and hurried over to see if she could do anything for her mother.

Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress. The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter?

Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick." Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying.

Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress. The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter?

Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick." Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying.

Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress. The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter?

Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick." Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying.

Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress. The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter?

Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick." Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying.

Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress. The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter?

Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick." Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying.

Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress. The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter?

Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick." Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying.

Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress. The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter?

Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick." Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying.

Mrs. Kelly found Mrs. Henry lying on the bed with nothing on but her night dress. The man who had called on Mrs. Kelly, and who was evidently a neighbor, asked Mrs. Kelly what seems to be the matter?

Mrs. Kelly replied, "My mother is very sick." Mrs. Kelly said that she had found her mother lying on the floor when she got up, and he was afraid that she was dying.

THE NAVAL REVIEW.

Four, and Perhaps Five, New Vessels to be Made Ready for the Display.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Contrary to expectations, Admiral Gherard, with his four vessels—the Baltimore, San Francisco, Charleston, and Yorktown—will not be detained in the West Indies pending the settlement of the Hawaiian negotiations, but is ordered to complete his cruise on the roads and proceed to the naval rendezvous early in April.

This afternoon orders were sent to the Admiral at Barbadoes, where he arrived yesterday, to leave St. Thomas, after coaling his ships, for Fort Monroe, and to be there by the middle of next week.

Disappointment was felt by those interested in the review over the action of the House Naval Affairs Committee in leaving out of the annual bill, which was reported last Friday, the $300,000 asked for by Secretary Tracy to float the ships now nearly ready for completion.

Committee members for the reception of the foreigners, Mr. Herbert, the chairman of the committee, explains that this was not due to any opposition of the members to making the appropriation, but to the action of the Appropriations Committee in not including the money in the bill.

Mr. Herbert said that the bill is not a precedent that the Senate will insert the amount asked for, and that the House will accept it finally, though there is bound to be some opposition to such an appropriation by Mr. Holman, Mr. Bailey of Texas, and other members of the House, who believe that the money should be appropriated for the benefit of the foreigners.

Secretary Tracy's estimate shows that not one cent is asked for this year to complete the fleet, and that it is necessary to make the new ships and for equipments and outfitting.

It is very doubtful whether the department can make the showing it expected to make in the coming fiscal year, and many are inclined to think the whole affair will be a fizzle.

Many of the ships that were promised during the last session of Congress, and which by the time of the assembling of the fleets in Hampton Roads, and those that will be there in the fall, are not yet ready for service.

The Secretary's report is being hurried along, and will probably be got ready in time to be presented to the Senate. The little Hancock will be made ready at the Brooklyn yard, and the Machias, at Bath, Me., is being pushed to completion. Work has been sent to the builders of the Detroit and Montgomery, at Baltimore, that they must hurry their completion.

It is very doubtful whether the department can make the showing it expected to make in the coming fiscal year, and many are inclined to think the whole affair will be a fizzle.

Many of the ships that were promised during the last session of Congress, and which by the time of the assembling of the fleets in Hampton Roads, and those that will be there in the fall, are not yet ready for service.

The Secretary's report is being hurried along, and will probably be got ready in time to be presented to the Senate. The little Hancock will be made ready at the Brooklyn yard, and the Machias, at Bath, Me., is being pushed to completion.

Work has been sent to the builders of the Detroit and Montgomery, at Baltimore, that they must hurry their completion. It is very doubtful whether the department can make the showing it expected to make in the coming fiscal year, and many are inclined to think the whole affair will be a fizzle.

Many of the ships that were promised during the last session of Congress, and which by the time of the assembling of the fleets in Hampton Roads, and those that will be there in the fall, are not yet ready for service.

The Secretary's report is being hurried along, and will probably be got ready in time to be presented to the Senate. The little Hancock will be made ready at the Brooklyn yard, and the Machias, at Bath, Me., is being pushed to completion.

Work has been sent to the builders of the Detroit and Montgomery, at Baltimore, that they must hurry their completion. It is very doubtful whether the department can make the showing it expected to make in the coming fiscal year, and many are inclined to think the whole affair will be a fizzle.

Many of the ships that were promised during the last session of Congress, and which by the time of