

FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1893.

Subscription by Mail Post-Paid. DAILY, PER ANNUM, $10.00. WEEKLY, PER ANNUM, $3.00.

From friends who favor us with manuscripts for publication we have received articles returned, they must in all cases send stamp for postage.

DEMOCRACY'S DECLARED PRINCIPLES.

Adopted from the National Democratic Platform of 1892, in which the Victory was Won.

- I. Home rule; individual liberty; resistance to centralization. II. No Force bill; no Federal interference in State elections. III. Economy in appropriations; no profligate expenditures.

That Hundred Million Gold Fable.

The authorities at Washington have at last discovered, what The Sun has been telling them all along, that no act has ever been passed by Congress creating a fund for the redemption of the legal tender in gold.

The Man that Blushes for Our Flag.

The passage here quoted is from an editorial article in the New York Evening Post, a newspaper run by a naturalized American citizen of Irish extraction.

The Distribution of the Offices.

The important nominations sent to the Senate yesterday by Mr. CLEVELAND are all interesting, for one reason or another.

The Spanish Elections.

In the general election which has just taken place in Spain, the supporters of Prime Minister SAGASTA obtained an estimated majority of 175.

The President and the Congress.

In ordinary fairness to President CLEVELAND we have a word to say about a notion which some of the more foolish of his friends are sedulously inculcating.

Accidentally Knocked Down by a Panther.

From the San Francisco Chronicle. LUCAS, Feb. 25.—On the anniversary of his birth, Alexander Lucas, a prominent landowner and stockman of Anderson Valley, this county, was accidentally knocked down by a panther.

Not Changing with the Changing Wind.

From the Post-Examiner. President Cleveland is an incoherent writer with a love for big vague words, with shifting, uncertain meanings.

Who Will Be Brigadier-General?

Washington, March 9.—The failure of the Senate in the Fifty-second Congress to act upon the nomination of Col. Elwell R. Otis to be Brigadier-General reopens the old triangular dispute in which Gen. Carr, Col. Carlin, and Col. Otis figured, and also, and more especially, back of them, Mr. Elkins, Gen. Schofield, and Mr. Prentiss.

Improvement the Next Time.

From the Boston Daily Globe. "At my next inauguration," Mr. Cleveland said dryly to some of the managers of the affair of Saturday, "I shall order these things differently and appoint my own Committee of Arrangements."

Short-hand Language.

From the New York Tribune. "One day," he proudly announced, "I was entered a guest for a dinner at the Upper Broadway. "Much," he said, "was said with a silver pipe."

Jeune Premier (at the amateur theatricals).

From the Post. "Jeune Premier, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light?"

pressed by him in the letter accepting his first nomination for President in 1884:

"It is to be remembered that the office of President is not an office in its nature. The laws enacted by the legislative branch of the Government, the Chief Justice is bound faithfully to enforce, and when the wisdom of the political party which selects one of its members as a nominee for that office has outlined its policy and declared its principles, it seems to me that nothing is to be done but to follow it."

It is the Fifty-third, or perhaps, the Fifty-fourth Congress, and not Mr. GROVER CLEVELAND, that will either redeem or fail to redeem the pledges made to the nation by the Democratic party at Chicago last summer.

The Man that Blushes for Our Flag.

The passage here quoted is from an editorial article in the New York Evening Post, a newspaper run by a naturalized American citizen of Irish extraction.

What's This?

One by one the Democrats come out of their former darkness to be led up to the party signpost erected for their guidance by the late electoral triumph.

Accidentally Knocked Down by a Panther.

From the San Francisco Chronicle. LUCAS, Feb. 25.—On the anniversary of his birth, Alexander Lucas, a prominent landowner and stockman of Anderson Valley, this county, was accidentally knocked down by a panther.

Not Changing with the Changing Wind.

From the Post-Examiner. President Cleveland is an incoherent writer with a love for big vague words, with shifting, uncertain meanings.

Who Will Be Brigadier-General?

Washington, March 9.—The failure of the Senate in the Fifty-second Congress to act upon the nomination of Col. Elwell R. Otis to be Brigadier-General reopens the old triangular dispute in which Gen. Carr, Col. Carlin, and Col. Otis figured, and also, and more especially, back of them, Mr. Elkins, Gen. Schofield, and Mr. Prentiss.

Improvement the Next Time.

From the Boston Daily Globe. "At my next inauguration," Mr. Cleveland said dryly to some of the managers of the affair of Saturday, "I shall order these things differently and appoint my own Committee of Arrangements."

Short-hand Language.

From the New York Tribune. "One day," he proudly announced, "I was entered a guest for a dinner at the Upper Broadway. "Much," he said, "was said with a silver pipe."

Jeune Premier (at the amateur theatricals).

From the Post. "Jeune Premier, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light?"

ent is unfortunate neither for the New Jersey Judiciary nor for the ex-Governor. He now occupies a post well suited to his tastes and talents, and where he can be very useful to the State.

Harmony between CLEVELAND and HILL is excellent; but let no rooster-headed philosopher crow a Mugwump victory on the strength of the Senator's visit to the White House. The senior Senator of the Empire State was as fully bound to call upon the President elected by his party as he was to enter the Senate and take his oath of office; and no one appreciates the dignity or obligations of his honors better than Senator HILL.

The largest number of Jews ever brought together at any one time in this country were to be seen in and near the Carnegie Music Hall Tuesday evening at the meeting to protest against the ratification of the Russian-American extradition treaty.

It is not surprising that the advocates of home rule for Cuba had a chance of making themselves heard, inasmuch as the Cortes which is now being controlled by Liberals and in which there is a strong leaning toward republicanism, and even of federalism, feeling.

What's This?

One by one the Democrats come out of their former darkness to be led up to the party signpost erected for their guidance by the late electoral triumph.

It is not surprising that the advocates of home rule for Cuba had a chance of making themselves heard, inasmuch as the Cortes which is now being controlled by Liberals and in which there is a strong leaning toward republicanism, and even of federalism, feeling.

Accidentally Knocked Down by a Panther.

From the San Francisco Chronicle. LUCAS, Feb. 25.—On the anniversary of his birth, Alexander Lucas, a prominent landowner and stockman of Anderson Valley, this county, was accidentally knocked down by a panther.

Not Changing with the Changing Wind.

From the Post-Examiner. President Cleveland is an incoherent writer with a love for big vague words, with shifting, uncertain meanings.

Who Will Be Brigadier-General?

Washington, March 9.—The failure of the Senate in the Fifty-second Congress to act upon the nomination of Col. Elwell R. Otis to be Brigadier-General reopens the old triangular dispute in which Gen. Carr, Col. Carlin, and Col. Otis figured, and also, and more especially, back of them, Mr. Elkins, Gen. Schofield, and Mr. Prentiss.

Improvement the Next Time.

From the Boston Daily Globe. "At my next inauguration," Mr. Cleveland said dryly to some of the managers of the affair of Saturday, "I shall order these things differently and appoint my own Committee of Arrangements."

Short-hand Language.

From the New York Tribune. "One day," he proudly announced, "I was entered a guest for a dinner at the Upper Broadway. "Much," he said, "was said with a silver pipe."

Jeune Premier (at the amateur theatricals).

From the Post. "Jeune Premier, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light?"

HOKK SMITH'S RIVAL HAPPY.

His Own Account of an Interview with Mr. Cleveland at Lakewood. WASHINGTON, March 9.—One of the most notable figures to be found straggling around the Metropolitan Hotel, the great resort of the Georgia contingent, is a wiry, sharp-eyed little fellow named Benjamin M. Blackburn.

When the late Presidential canvass opened there was a paper started in Atlanta under the name of the Evening Herald, with Blackburn as its editor. The Herald was fighting for the nomination of David B. Hill, while the Journal, of which Hoke Smith was editor, was playing around for a Western man with whom to beat the Constitution's candidate.

It is not surprising that the advocates of home rule for Cuba had a chance of making themselves heard, inasmuch as the Cortes which is now being controlled by Liberals and in which there is a strong leaning toward republicanism, and even of federalism, feeling.

What's This?

One by one the Democrats come out of their former darkness to be led up to the party signpost erected for their guidance by the late electoral triumph.

Accidentally Knocked Down by a Panther.

From the San Francisco Chronicle. LUCAS, Feb. 25.—On the anniversary of his birth, Alexander Lucas, a prominent landowner and stockman of Anderson Valley, this county, was accidentally knocked down by a panther.

Not Changing with the Changing Wind.

From the Post-Examiner. President Cleveland is an incoherent writer with a love for big vague words, with shifting, uncertain meanings.

Who Will Be Brigadier-General?

Washington, March 9.—The failure of the Senate in the Fifty-second Congress to act upon the nomination of Col. Elwell R. Otis to be Brigadier-General reopens the old triangular dispute in which Gen. Carr, Col. Carlin, and Col. Otis figured, and also, and more especially, back of them, Mr. Elkins, Gen. Schofield, and Mr. Prentiss.

Improvement the Next Time.

From the Boston Daily Globe. "At my next inauguration," Mr. Cleveland said dryly to some of the managers of the affair of Saturday, "I shall order these things differently and appoint my own Committee of Arrangements."

Short-hand Language.

From the New York Tribune. "One day," he proudly announced, "I was entered a guest for a dinner at the Upper Broadway. "Much," he said, "was said with a silver pipe."

Jeune Premier (at the amateur theatricals).

From the Post. "Jeune Premier, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light?"

WHO WILL BE BRIGADIER-GENERAL?

New Elements Introduced into an Old Problem. WASHINGTON, March 9.—The failure of the Senate in the Fifty-second Congress to act upon the nomination of Col. Elwell R. Otis to be Brigadier-General reopens the old triangular dispute in which Gen. Carr, Col. Carlin, and Col. Otis figured, and also, and more especially, back of them, Mr. Elkins, Gen. Schofield, and Mr. Prentiss.

When the late Presidential canvass opened there was a paper started in Atlanta under the name of the Evening Herald, with Blackburn as its editor. The Herald was fighting for the nomination of David B. Hill, while the Journal, of which Hoke Smith was editor, was playing around for a Western man with whom to beat the Constitution's candidate.

It is not surprising that the advocates of home rule for Cuba had a chance of making themselves heard, inasmuch as the Cortes which is now being controlled by Liberals and in which there is a strong leaning toward republicanism, and even of federalism, feeling.

What's This?

One by one the Democrats come out of their former darkness to be led up to the party signpost erected for their guidance by the late electoral triumph.

Accidentally Knocked Down by a Panther.

From the San Francisco Chronicle. LUCAS, Feb. 25.—On the anniversary of his birth, Alexander Lucas, a prominent landowner and stockman of Anderson Valley, this county, was accidentally knocked down by a panther.

Not Changing with the Changing Wind.

From the Post-Examiner. President Cleveland is an incoherent writer with a love for big vague words, with shifting, uncertain meanings.

Who Will Be Brigadier-General?

Washington, March 9.—The failure of the Senate in the Fifty-second Congress to act upon the nomination of Col. Elwell R. Otis to be Brigadier-General reopens the old triangular dispute in which Gen. Carr, Col. Carlin, and Col. Otis figured, and also, and more especially, back of them, Mr. Elkins, Gen. Schofield, and Mr. Prentiss.

Improvement the Next Time.

From the Boston Daily Globe. "At my next inauguration," Mr. Cleveland said dryly to some of the managers of the affair of Saturday, "I shall order these things differently and appoint my own Committee of Arrangements."

Short-hand Language.

From the New York Tribune. "One day," he proudly announced, "I was entered a guest for a dinner at the Upper Broadway. "Much," he said, "was said with a silver pipe."

Jeune Premier (at the amateur theatricals).

From the Post. "Jeune Premier, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light?"

SUNSHINE.

It is proposed to mark with a monument the grave of John W. Brown, who was killed at the battle of Chancellorsville in 1862 at Hazel Grove, Wis., and was buried there. The matter is in charge of a committee of whom Prof. Edward L. Curtis of 61 Trumbull street, New Haven, Conn., is the secretary.

It is not surprising that the advocates of home rule for Cuba had a chance of making themselves heard, inasmuch as the Cortes which is now being controlled by Liberals and in which there is a strong leaning toward republicanism, and even of federalism, feeling.

What's This?

One by one the Democrats come out of their former darkness to be led up to the party signpost erected for their guidance by the late electoral triumph.

Accidentally Knocked Down by a Panther.

From the San Francisco Chronicle. LUCAS, Feb. 25.—On the anniversary of his birth, Alexander Lucas, a prominent landowner and stockman of Anderson Valley, this county, was accidentally knocked down by a panther.

Not Changing with the Changing Wind.

From the Post-Examiner. President Cleveland is an incoherent writer with a love for big vague words, with shifting, uncertain meanings.

Who Will Be Brigadier-General?

Washington, March 9.—The failure of the Senate in the Fifty-second Congress to act upon the nomination of Col. Elwell R. Otis to be Brigadier-General reopens the old triangular dispute in which Gen. Carr, Col. Carlin, and Col. Otis figured, and also, and more especially, back of them, Mr. Elkins, Gen. Schofield, and Mr. Prentiss.

Improvement the Next Time.

From the Boston Daily Globe. "At my next inauguration," Mr. Cleveland said dryly to some of the managers of the affair of Saturday, "I shall order these things differently and appoint my own Committee of Arrangements."

Short-hand Language.

From the New York Tribune. "One day," he proudly announced, "I was entered a guest for a dinner at the Upper Broadway. "Much," he said, "was said with a silver pipe."

Jeune Premier (at the amateur theatricals).

From the Post. "Jeune Premier, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light?"

SUNSHINE.

It is proposed to mark with a monument the grave of John W. Brown, who was killed at the battle of Chancellorsville in 1862 at Hazel Grove, Wis., and was buried there. The matter is in charge of a committee of whom Prof. Edward L. Curtis of 61 Trumbull street, New Haven, Conn., is the secretary.

It is not surprising that the advocates of home rule for Cuba had a chance of making themselves heard, inasmuch as the Cortes which is now being controlled by Liberals and in which there is a strong leaning toward republicanism, and even of federalism, feeling.

What's This?

One by one the Democrats come out of their former darkness to be led up to the party signpost erected for their guidance by the late electoral triumph.

Accidentally Knocked Down by a Panther.

From the San Francisco Chronicle. LUCAS, Feb. 25.—On the anniversary of his birth, Alexander Lucas, a prominent landowner and stockman of Anderson Valley, this county, was accidentally knocked down by a panther.

Not Changing with the Changing Wind.

From the Post-Examiner. President Cleveland is an incoherent writer with a love for big vague words, with shifting, uncertain meanings.

Who Will Be Brigadier-General?

Washington, March 9.—The failure of the Senate in the Fifty-second Congress to act upon the nomination of Col. Elwell R. Otis to be Brigadier-General reopens the old triangular dispute in which Gen. Carr, Col. Carlin, and Col. Otis figured, and also, and more especially, back of them, Mr. Elkins, Gen. Schofield, and Mr. Prentiss.

Improvement the Next Time.

From the Boston Daily Globe. "At my next inauguration," Mr. Cleveland said dryly to some of the managers of the affair of Saturday, "I shall order these things differently and appoint my own Committee of Arrangements."

Short-hand Language.

From the New York Tribune. "One day," he proudly announced, "I was entered a guest for a dinner at the Upper Broadway. "Much," he said, "was said with a silver pipe."

Jeune Premier (at the amateur theatricals).

From the Post. "Jeune Premier, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light? I say, old man, have you got the stage light?"