WHEN TWO STIFF PLAYERS MET.

Morrissey and Seovel, one with two Jacks and the other with a Hobdial Pinch. From the Troy Observer.

The passing of the Crystal Palace, gone, but not forgotten. Erected in 1798. Razed only a few days ago.

Many good stories are told of big games played in the Crystal. One of the best of the great poker game in which the late John Morrissey and Col. Jim Seovel were the two important players.

The next day he did the same as Seovel, but the player who followed him opened it for $120, the bid was $100, and he was out.

"I'm in so much, I might as well stay," he remarked, as he picked up the deck. "How do you like it?"

"I've got you beat," chirped John, as he dealt out the required number. "I'll play the pot, but I'll give you the man who held the pair straight."

"That's a good thing," said Morrissey, looking at the cards. "I don't need it at all." "I'll give you the man who held the pair straight."

"I'll give you the man who held the pair straight," said Morrissey, "and I'll give you the man who held the pair straight."

RICH SLAVES OF RED MEN.

THE FREEDMEN OF THE CHEROKEES RECEIVE $400,000. From the Chicago Record.

GUTHRIE, Okla., April 18.—The most interesting news in the Territory, and one of the wonders of the year, is Hayden, where the Government has been paying off the Cherokee freedmen.

When the Cherokee Nation liberated its slaves during the war, it was a treaty with the Government, and the Government has been paying off the freedmen.

Hayden is twelve miles from the railroad, and the gathering was all housed in tents, for there was no time to make permanent dwellings if there had been an intention.

There were many new white hairs in the heads of the freedmen, and the Government has been paying off the freedmen.

WILD BIRDS' EGGS FOR FOOD.

Crows' Eggs for Breakfast—English Culture and Holland's Egg-and-Rice Tivvies. From the Spectator.

Among the presents sent to Prince Bismarck on his 83d birthday were 100 crows' eggs. "A luxury difficult to procure so early in the season."

The eggs were probably crows' eggs, not wild birds' eggs, for crows' eggs are not only eaten by ploughboys in Germany, but are also eaten by the poor in Holland.

THE HUNTER AND THE LION.

A Beautiful Story of How a Man May Meet Death in an Unexpected Place. From the Saturday Review.

He is a young doctor and a surgeon on board one of the small gunboats placed on a great African lake. Fresh colored still, though slightly tanned by exposure to the lake winds.

With merry Irish eyes of blue-ear, a square jaw, and an obstinate chin, a long upper lip, a little whisker, and a thick, bushy, curly, wiry black beard.
