

TRANCE SLEEPER AWAKE

LATEST PHASE OF THE BIRMINGHAM HOSPITAL FRODOG'S CARE

He Now Comprehends All That is Said to Him, but Has Lost the Power of Speech—The Physicians Believe That His Will Go to Pieces Again...

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 9.—George Seymour, the trance sleeper, is now wide awake, but he has lost the power of speech. He seems to comprehend all that is said to him, but his faltering answers consist of a negative or affirmative shake of the head...

He looked at the reporter with a vacant expression, and the head, with apparent effort, moved from side to side.

For reply he opened and closed his fingers, but he had no feeling in the arm he answered in the negative in his slow way.

He looked at the reporter with a vacant expression, and the head, with apparent effort, moved from side to side.

BEAT HIM WITH THE SPADE

MRS. BLACKMAN OF BRIDGEPORT DISCIPLINES MR. FOWLER

Answered by His Superior That the Mad Chickens in Her Coop—Fowler's Men Interfered and She Was Two Back—All Hands Go to the Law to Get Revenge

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 9.—Armed with a spade, Mrs. Mary L. Blackman, a rich, middle-aged woman, living on North avenue, this city, today chased and John Fowler, a neighbor, from her premises, at nearly every step dealing him a blow with the spade. Fowler went on Mrs. Blackman's premises to drive back several chickens which he says, had strayed away and been taken possession of by Mrs. Blackman. He was getting the fowls. Fowler received a severe beating, which would have been more severe but for the timely arrival of Isaac Fowler, his son, who stopped hostilities.

This afternoon Mrs. Blackman and Isaac Fowler were arrested, and their cases will be disposed of in the police court to-morrow morning.

Neighbors on all sides witnessed the affair, and sentiment is divided. Mrs. Blackman is separated from her husband, Fowler is nearly 70 years old. He lives on Laurel avenue, just across the corner from Mrs. Blackman's home.

He is a chicken fancier. The rooster and two chickens which he missed five days ago, he had in his special pride. In his search for them he happened to pass a coop in the rear of Mrs. Blackman's grounds. His attention was attracted by the peculiar caw of a rooster in the coop.

The cluck of a hen also sounded familiar to his ears. He looked further and was satisfied that the fowls locked in the coop were the ones he had missed. He called upon Mrs. Blackman this morning and told her she had three of his fowls. He wanted to know what damage they had done, if any, offering to pay for it.

You horrid old man, Mrs. Blackman replied. They are not your chickens. I got the eggs and they were hatched right here on my premises, and the chickens in that coop came from the very eggs I bought and paid for.

Mr. Fowler endeavored to convince Mrs. Blackman that she had made a mistake. Mrs. Blackman became excited. At last she picked up a garden spade and struck Mr. Fowler across the shoulder with the flat side of it.

Mr. Fowler retreated as gracefully as possible. Mrs. Blackman followed him, explaining that she had never blown on the head and body with the spade. Both talked loudly.

Mr. Fowler called the attention of the neighbors, and a crowd gathered. None of the spectators interfered and cheered the woman on. She followed Mr. Fowler and he ran around the corner. By that time Mrs. Blackman had raised the spade as if to strike Mr. Fowler on the head, but she was stopped.

Mr. Fowler did not descend, but was still scolding her. Mrs. Blackman was a short, plump, elderly woman. She was dressed in a black dress and a black hat. She was armed with a garden spade and a stick.

Mr. Fowler was a tall, thin man. He was dressed in a suit and a hat. He was armed with a stick. He was shouting and cursing at Mrs. Blackman.

Mrs. Blackman says the Fowler will have to suffer for the indignities heaped upon her if it is not the best of her fortune. She has engaged attorneys for the criminal prosecution, which was begun to-night.

POLYDOR BARNES KILLED

Fell Between Two Cars While Trying to Board a Moving Train

JAMAICA, L. I., Aug. 9.—Polydore Barnes, a well-known citizen, was killed by a moving train near the west end of the platform early this morning. Mr. Barnes lived on Chichester avenue. He was a little late for the train and attempted to board it while the cars were moving. Spectators say that he reached for the hand rail of the platform of the forward car, mistaking it, fell between the two cars composing the train. The truck of the second car passed over his legs. The train was stopped and he was removed to the freight house. He was attended by Dr. H. M. Anger. He lived for about an hour and a half before he died in his arms.

Mr. Barnes had a book and job printing business at 27 Frankfort street, New York. He was 64 years old, and was a native of St. John's, New Brunswick. He had been in this city for two months' trip to his native place and Europe. He was to leave Wednesday, and to-day he was on his way to his home.

Mr. Barnes leaves a widow and six children. He was a well-known citizen and was highly respected in his community.

EXORCISED DEVIL

The Coroner's Jury Said He Was Justified in Shooting O'Keefe

An inquest was held yesterday by Coroner Fitzpatrick and a jury in the case of Cornelius O'Keefe, a laborer, 27 years old, of 227 East 103d street, who was shot dead by Policeman Thomas H. Devine of the East 104th street station on the night of July 31. Devine at the time said he had shot O'Keefe in self-defense.

O'Keefe was shot while he was in a mob of men who were interfering with him and his wife while he was taking a prisoner to the station house. The testimony yesterday was a repetition of the testimony given at the inquest in the Harlem Police Court.

Other witnesses testified to the fact that O'Keefe was a peaceful man who was not armed. He was shot in the back of the head and died almost instantly.

The jury returned a verdict exonerating the policeman. They found that O'Keefe was a dangerous man and that Devine was justified in shooting him.

WANDERING HENRY COLBY

His Mother Finds Him with the Children's Society in Brooklyn

A ragged, hungry 13-year-old boy was picked up in Brooklyn on the night of Aug. 6 and placed in charge of the Children's Society. He said he had been wandering about the city for some time.

His mother, Mrs. Mary Colby, of 127 East 103d street, was informed of her son's whereabouts and went to Brooklyn to find him. She found him at the Children's Society and was overjoyed to see him.

FOUND HER HUSBAND A CORPSE

The Body of a Man Taken from the River Near Fort Jervis is Identified by His Wife

PORT JERVIS, Aug. 9.—A week ago the dead body of a man was fished out of the Neversink River near this place. It was held for identification and finally buried in St. Mary's cemetery yesterday. Mr. Andrew Koch and Mrs. Annie Wagner were the witnesses.

Wagner of Lansford, N. Y., arrived in town and caused the body to be examined. As the lid of the coffin was opened, the wife recognized the corpse. Mr. Wagner recognized it as her husband.

The inquirer was a stationary engineer. A few weeks ago he lost his job when the brewery in which he was employed changed hands, grew larger and took place in another building.

The Catholic Benevolent League of Lansford, Pa., has been decomposed for removal and was buried in the cemetery here.

SELECT BOARD

Another War Against Alleged Speculation in Freight Rates

LANSING, Mich., Aug. 9.—Mr. T. H. Tibbles of Pender has filed a petition with the State Board of Transportation charging all railroads doing business in Nebraska with wholesale extortion in freight rates. The various companies have made separate replies, and the board will hear the case this week, or from time to time thereafter, as the parties submit replies.

Mr. Tibbles' petition is decidedly vague. He falls to say wherein the railroads charge extortionate rates, but makes a sweeping declaration that all freight rates on the schedules in Nebraska are exorbitant, unfair, unreasonable, and unlawful, and in justice to the people should be taken possession of by the State.

The Union Pacific, in its reply, confines itself to the assertion that the Federal Government is just at present in charge of its lines, and is not subject to State regulation.

The petition is the latest in a series of more and more recent ones, and the question of freight rates. For more than ten years they have been making efforts, through one party or another, to get what they call relief. Dozens of State officers have been elected on no other plea than their avowed determination to see that this rate question was settled with more fairness.
