THE PRIMARY ELECTIONS BILL.

teported in Both Mouses to He Reprinted and Recommitted.

ALBANY, March 9.- The proposed Primary Elections bill was reported to the Senate and Assembly to-day to be reprinted and recommitted. This was made necessary by a number of amendments which have been made. Most of these are matters of phraseology and arrangement of sections, and do not affect the purport of the bill. One amendment however which vas introduced at the suggestion of William Hotchkiss, one of the independents who has been working on the bill, threw the other indeendents into a state of mind.

The bill provides generally that representation in conventions shall be apportioned among the districts by the Police Board as nearly as practicable according to the party vote cast for Governor. The amendment provides that, in case the boundaries of a district have been changed since the election of a Governor, the changed since the election of a Governor, the basis of representation shall be the vote in the last election of a State offleer, or, if changed since that, the apportionment shall be made by the general committee of the party.

When Senator Pavey saw this he threw up both hands. He said it would give the County of the Committee, in conjunction with the Police Hoard, absolute power to fix the representation. The Police Board could change all the districts this year or any year, and thus throw the whole apportionment of delegates into the hands of the machine. He impressed this view on the other independents, including Mr. Hotchkiss, and they agreed that the provision would have to be eliminated. Mr. Hotchkiss's idea in inserting the provision was to meet every possible contingency. The independents are convinced, however, that the phrase "as nearly as practiserting the provision was to meet every possible contingency. The independents are convinced, however, that the phrase "as nearly as practicable" covers the ground, and would permit review by the courts if necessary.

Two other changes have been made looking toward greater secrecy. As the bill now stands, when an elector registers and declares his wish to enroll with a party, he can answer orally, or, at his option, file with the Board of Inspectors the declaration provided in case an elector is challenged, and they are then obliged to make the enrolment without further question and without showing his declaration. A clause preventing the disclosure of the party with which an elector shall enroll or the number of electors enrolled with the party, has also been added. The purpose in this is to prevent one party from showing a larger enrolment than another, and thus influencing voters who want to be on the winning side.

There will be a public hearing on the bill tomorrow, and it is expected that it will be in final shape some time next week.

THE STATE CANALS.

Opposition to Their Proposed Sale to the Federal Government. ALBANY, March 9.-The Senate Judiciary Committee gave another hearing to-day on Senator Pavey's resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution to permit the sale of the capals to the Federal Government. The advocates of the measure, including several of the oremost engineers of the country, were heard last week. The hearing to-day was given up chiefly to its opponents. Among them were former Assemblyman George Clinton of Buffalo, ex-Mayor Edson of New York, Alfred Romer of the Produce Exchange, Erastus Wiman, Alexander R. Smith, William E. Cleary, Capt. M. De Puy, and George W. Raymond of Buffalo. They took the ground that the project for Federal control would defer action on the lines of canal improvement as begun under the $9,000,000 haw.

In reply Gen. E. C. O'Brien, former President of the Dock Board, said that everybody knew that the procesed further expenditure of $7,000,000 on the canals would not be acted on $7,000,000 on the canals would not be acted on by the Legislature this year.

Mr. Cleary declared that a bill with that end in view had been prepared yesterday by the Canal Executive Committee of Commercial Organizations and would be introduced this week. He added that Gov. Black would not oppose in spite of the coming investigation of the expenditures already made.

More Land Purchased for the International

ALBANY, March 9.-The State Fisheries, Game and Forest Commissioners to-day completed the purchase of two additional parcels of land on the St. Lawrence River for the new International Park. The land consists of thirty-five acres at Kring's Point, four miles north of Alexacres at Kring's Point, four miles north of Alexandria Bay, and ten acres, comprising Cedar Island, lying lifteen miles north of Alexandria Bay. The former cost $2,300, and the latter was secured on private terms. This makes seven senarate plots purchased for the park under the $30,000 appropriation granted by the last Legislature, consisting of about 130 acres. The Commission will begin a friendly suit against the Huffalo Fish Company, as a test case to determine the constitutionality of the law which permits the possession and sale during the closed season in this State of pike and pickerel caught in other States.

Young Woman Arrested for Masquerading as a Man.

TROY, March 9 .- Detective Krensky at an early hour this morning arrested Sadie Finnegan of Platteburg for masquerading as a man and acting in a boisterous manner. The young woman wore a stylish white fedora, a fashion ably cut suit and a long overcoat. She had ably cut suit and along overcoat. She had been, it is said, an attendant at a prize fight carlier in the evening, and when the detective found her in front of the Post Office she was decidedly hilarious. She was with a young man, and both exhibited pugilistic tendencies. She was locked up, but subsequently released on hail. Later she was arraigned before Magistrate Donohue and remanded for another hearing. She is extremely preposeesing and is said to come from an excellent family.

Wrung Personal Taxes from Sanks.

CHICAGO, March 9 .- South Town Collector Ernst made a tour of the banks yesterday to enforce the payment of personal property taxes. ROY GEHRIG KILLS HIMSELF AND WOUNDS WILLIAM B. DAVIS.

They Were Chume, and Hed Gone to Millers ville, Pa., to Call on Two Normal School Girls-Gehrig Smitten with a Girl He Had Seen Only Once - Sheets Davis in Bed.

LANCASTER, Pa., March 9.-William B. Davis, St. Clair, Schupikill county, lies in a critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital, this city, with three pistol wounds in his body, one of which, near the temple, is probably mortal, The person who shot him, 10-year-old Roy Gehrig, whose father is a rich agent of a brew ing firm and whose home was at Milton, Pa., is dead by his own hand in the village of Millers ville, a few miles west of here, the seat of the well-known Millersville State Normal School. for the love of one of whose young women stu dents the double crime was committed. Gehrig, after having tried desperately to murder his young friend, and evidently thinking he had done so, placed the revolver beside his own ear and sent a bullet into his brain dying within a few minutes of the time when his companion summoned aid from the clerk of the village inn, where the double tragedy occurred, Gebrig and Davis were students at a business college in Philadelphia. One day last week Davis told his chum that it would be a good scheme for them to run up to Lancaster county and make a trip to Millersville, where a young woman friend of his was a student. He said the young woman and himself had been schoolmates at their home in St. Clair. Gehrig readily fell in with the proposition, and on last Saturday the young fellows, who were insepsaturday the young tellows, who were inseparable companions during the few months of their college career, arrived in Lancaster on an early evening train and boarded a trolley car for the Normal School at Millersville.

There young Davis inquired for his old schoolmate, Miss Annie Holmes, a member of the juntor class of the Normal, who presented her schoolmate to her friend, Miss Alice Cummings, a member of the senior class. The introduction of young Gehrig, which followed, was succeeded by a pl asant conversation of half an hour, and then the young men left.

of young Gehrig, which followed, was succeeded by a plasant conversation of half an hour, and then the young men left.

Young Gehrig, after he returned to Philadelphia with his college mate, could talk of little else than the charms of Miss Cummings, with whom ne confessed himself greatly smitten. Yesterday in Philadelphia Gehrig prevaited upon Davis to again go to Lancaster, so that they could go out to Millersville and renew the acquaintance of the young women. Davis had no money, but Gebrig said that didn't matter, as he had enough for both.

They arrived in the city early last evening and went to Millersville, where they stopped at the "Black Horse," the most pretentious inn of the place, which is not far away from the stately Normal School. They were assigned to one room, Gehrig paying for the night's ledging, but postponing payment for breakfast, remarking that there would be time enough for that in the morning.

that there would be time enough for that in the morning.

Each of the boys wrote a letter before they went to bed. They took them to the village Post Office, but Gehrig did not mail his. Nothing was heard of them during the night. Neither drank anything while at the hotel. This morning Barkeener Hess arcse about 6 o clock and went at once to the barroom. He had been working about for a half hour when he heard three reports of a pistol in rapid succession. They came from the room occunied by the two young men. Hess started to run upstairs, but he met Davis coming down covered with blood. He said:

"My chum shot me."

Davis sank into a chair in the barroom. Just he met Davis coming down covered with blood. He said:

"My chum shot me."

Davis sank into a chair in the barroom. Just then a fourth shot was heard upstairs. When Hess and other men rushed up to the room they found Gehrig dead on the floor, his hand still clutching the revolver with which he had sought his friend's death and then killed himself.

After Davis had submitted to a surgeon's care he told to the Coroner's jury the facts of the meeting with the young women of the normal school, and the visit to renew the acquaintance. When he came to the story of the double shooting he said that after be and Gebrig had gone to bed the latter seemed to be very restless. Davis awoke about half past 6 o clock this morning and saw his friend walking about the room. He attempted to get out of bed, and had one foot on the floor when Gehrig, who looked very wild, came toward the bed with a revolver which he began firing, three balls hitting him. He threw up his hands, and that was how a bullet struck him in the wrist. Another cut through his lip and passed out of the check, and still another ranged along the temple and is embedded in his head. Gehrig did not say a word during the shooting. Davis made his way to the door, through which he managed to get before his companion had another opportunity to shoot, and he made his way to the barroom. Davis avers that he cannot tell what reason Gehrig had for shooting, as they were on the best of terms, and there was no jealousy.

This letter was found fon the floor close to where Gehrig's body lay:

"We are dead in love with Alice Cummings and Annie Holmes, Not being able to see them, and they keeping away from us, we resolved to take our life. My name is Roy Gehrig, Milton, Pa., and the little fellow is William Davis, St. Clair. Please notify our parents at once. We would like to be cremated, so notify our parents at once. We would like to be cremated, so notify our parents at once."

Davis told Tips Eur reporter, and repeated to the Coroner, that there was no such compact between Holmes say their acquaintance with Gehrig dates only from last Saturday, the only time they ever any him, and that there was never the slightest bit of love making or flirtation between them.

The Coroner's jury decided that it was a case of suicide and attempted murder, but made no attempt to fathom the motives of the crime.

Cure Him, so He Tried to Cut it Off.

John Menalis of 237 East Eighty-eighth street, an artist who works for the Christian Herald and other papers, has suffered for months past from insomnia, which has apparently affected his mind. He conceived the idea that a lock of his wife's hair, if carried in his pocket, would cure his sleeplessness; so time and again, Mrs. Menalis says, he has attacked her and attempted to cut off some of her hair with knives, scissors or raxors.

In his attempts he has dragged her about by the hair, and the constant foar of attack and the strain on her nerves has almost destroyed her health, His last attack occurred shortly after midnight yesterday morning, and the whole house was aroused by the woman's cries for help. Neighbors found him dragging her about the room, and a policeman was summoned, who had Monalis sent to the Presbyterian Hospital, He was apparently as well as ever later in the day, so he was discharged from the hospital.

ALBANY, March S. Senators Raines, Cantor, and Lexow had a rather lively mix-up in the Senate this afternoon, in the course of which such indulged in pretty strong language. The occasion of the row was a bill of Senator Cantor's authorizing the Court of Claims to pass spon the claim of Horace E. Deming for services connect to a sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee appointed to investigate the administration of the civil service of the State in 1894. Senator Raines called attention to the fact that this committee had not been appowered to engage counsel, and said that Mr. Deming had volunteered to act in that capacity

Senator Lexow spoke in support of the bill.
