

NEW NURSES REMOVED TO THE FLORIDA CAMPS.

The spread of typhoid fever impels the Government to accept aid hitherto rejected. Society will probably send a hospital also situated here.

Chief Surgeon here will accept Red Cross nurses for typhoid patients if we provide special hospital and nurses work under army physician.

Shortly after the receipt of this telegram the second was received. It read: "Red Cross nurses need here at once. Can you supply?"

Although the Red Cross has repeatedly offered to supply nurses, the Government has rejected up to a week ago, when the outbreak of typhoid at Tampa caused the army surgeons to avail themselves of the services of four Red Cross nurses there.

When the Cuban campaign was planned the Red Cross also offered to equip a hospital for the Government. The offer was accepted. They were enabled to do this through the generosity of Henry M. Flagler, who offered to erect on his property at Miami suitable buildings, bearing all the expense himself.

One of the most serious cases at the Long Island College Hospital is that of William Redd who suffered from typhoid fever. He was shot in the brain. His entire right side is paralyzed. Dr. Shaw said yesterday that while the case was very severe, he expected Redd to pull through.

DID NOT KNOW COL. ROBERTS.

Sentry at Willits Point He Id Up an Officer Who Was Not in Uniform.

Discipline at Willits Point is very stringent nowadays, as secret work is in progress on the fortifications. Two engineer corps officers and a member of Congress ran aground yesterday in the person of a sentry of the Twenty-second Regiment and a Corporal of the guard of the same regiment, and their patience was considerably exercised before they got through the lines.

A peculiarity of the post is that visitors are permitted to land at the dock but may not proceed past a sign, about fifty feet from the wharf. Neither of the officers was in uniform, but as Col. Roberts has frequently reviewed the troops here, and as Major Adams' men are now working on the harbor improvements, it was not surprising that they had no doubt about being admitted, but it happened that the Twenty-second men, instead of the Engineer Corps, were on post, which complicated matters.

While waiting to go to the front several men of the Fourth Missouri of literary inclination have turned their spare time and attention to the publishing of the Camp Alger Bulletin.

Private H. J. Watterson and H. Harrison, both of Company F, Third Virginia, are under arrest for sleeping on guard.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The statement sent by the War Department to Camp Alger to-day, saying that there was to be no change in the location of the camp and that no troops would be taken away except those destined for Porto Rico, was received by the officers at the camp.

That such is the case would seem to receive confirmation from the action of the Adjutant-General in directing the Twenty-second Regiment volunteers at the camp in Niantic to prepare to move out of the State.

After five minutes of this the officer of the day, Capt. Turpin of the Twenty-second Regiment, appeared in the office of the adjutant.

Private John Schapel of Company E of the 202d Regiment, removed to the hospital yesterday morning suffering from measles, is now doing well, and Major Wilcox, Chief Surgeon, says he will soon be able to report for duty.

Three more carloads of volunteers for the 203d Regiment arrived in Hoboken yesterday morning from Syracuse via the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad.

Mobile, Ala., July 25.—There are fully one thousand negro soldiers now in the ranks of Col. Bullard's Third Alabama Regiment of volunteers, all of whom are in camp here.
