

The purchase of any cyclopædia short of the best is not only bad judgment but worse economy.
THE BEST IS APPLETONS'.

APPLETONS'

There's no depth its plummet hath not sounded and brought to the surface the infinite thoughts of the world's great minds.

UNIVERSAL CYCLOPÆDIA and ATLAS

Columbia University

Dr. James H. Canfield, Librarian of Columbia University in the City of New York, in ordering a set for the University Library, said: "It speaks well for the new 'Universal Cyclopædia and Atlas' that more than thirty of Columbia's Professors are among its editors and contributors. It is without doubt the best working Cyclopædia in existence."

New York State Library

Melvil Dewey, LL. D., Director State Library, Albany, N. Y., writes: "For twenty-five years I have been studying publishing methods and cyclopædias. My judgment is that the new 'Universal Cyclopædia and Atlas' is incomparably the best working reference library in the English language. You may be sure that I shall give it the greatest prominence in our lists of books."

THERE'S BUT ONE BEST CYCLOPÆDIA—JUST ONE!

It has been THE SUN'S ambition to assist at all times in educational enterprises. The splendid response to our latest plan, announced one week ago, is an assurance that the people, far and near, value the present effort. The flood of answers received confirms our belief that the busy activity of this day makes a Cyclopædia absolutely indispensable. With no time to investigate for himself, a man must have a ready reference work of unquestionable accuracy. We are convinced that there is nothing in the English language that so fully meets the demand for authoritative information as this new, great work.
