The District Attorney's inquiry into the cause of the death of James McLaughlin, the Glennon witness, has developed nothing which can be taken into a court of law to show how McLaughlin came to his death.

Mr. Jerome announced yesterday that he was satisfied that no proof of the manner of McLaughlin's death could be gathered that would be of any effect in court.

Two of the Central Office detectives went into the saloon at Fifth street and Eighth avenue and brought out from the store the brother of the proprietor, one Steidelberg, had seen McLaughlin in his saloon at 9:30 on Sunday morning.

Some disappointment is expressed that the Lucania apparently did not report the date on which she communicated with the Kronprinz Wilhelm, as this would have enabled a pretty trustworthy estimate to be made of the time the Kronprinz will arrive in New York.

The Lucania passed Roche's Point at 8 o'clock to-night. A southerly gale was blowing, a big sea running and the weather was very thick.

TO THE POP OF CHAMPAGNE. HALSEY CORWIN WEDDING ONE LONG DIZZY WHIRL.

Many Rooms Reserved in the Clarendon Hotel for Those Who Got Too Tired -- "Last of 1400" Shouted a Survivor as He Flourished an Empty Bottle.

The streets were full of sham yesterday. But Halsey Corwin didn't care. He wasn't a street. He was married. Now and then, when he had time to think, he was a little sad for one thing—he and his bride could not ride in three cabs at once.

The bride was Roberta Menges, the Pearl of Sheephead Bay. She is the daughter of W. C. Menges, the well-known horse owner and all-around sport.

It was the rustle and the clink of falling change that first bestowed on Halsey the honored title of the "Coney Island Angel" and in fact bestowed on him the fair one who has become his bride.

The temperature rose in Coney Island on the moment of Mr. Corwin's arrival there. The inhabitants, who have been habituated by stern necessity and not by choice to long periods of abstinence from frocked together from Canarsie to Norton's Point.

She did not get home the next morning. Nor the next. Mr. Menges became worried. He asked some questions and was told that his daughter had gone to visit relatives in Manhattan.

A warrant was issued for Halsey Corwin after the hearing. He said he didn't care. The trial under the warrant was adjourned three times at steadily increasing intervals.

The wedding itself was comparatively quiet. It was held at half past 10 o'clock at the Clarendon Hotel.

There was a glorious procession of hacks to the Clarendon. At the door, young Chatterton, who was one of the Pretorian Guard, had accompanied the bride and groom on his first excursion to elevate and alleviate Coney Island, stood announcing in joyous accents that no one was to go to the wedding.

"All the bedrooms on the second floor," he cried, "have been reserved for quitters and dead ones. All you have to do is to tell the nearest waiter that you are passing away and he'll see you through. Those not leaving other orders will be waked—if possible—at 3:30 to-morrow morning."

"This is a great day for Sheephead Bay and over half the family," he announced, "I feel honored to welcome into the bosom of my family one who is not only the soul of honor but a gentleman of the word."

One of the honored guests of the evening was Mr. Corwin's new bulldog. The Coffee Drinkers Require Proof.

When persons insist on taking some kind of food or drink that causes disease it is not fair to blame a Doctor for not curing them. Coffee keeps thousands of people sick in spite of all the Doctor can do to cure them.

The mutilated body of a man about 20 years old floated into the north slip of the Jersey Central Railroad ferryhouse at the foot of Liberty street yesterday morning. The body was partly nude. It seemed to have been in the water about two weeks.

Nearly every bone in the man's body had been broken. His skull was fractured, and his throat was cut from ear to ear, and there were several other cuts on his chest and head. One foot was missing.

The first conclusion that the police came to was that the man had been murdered. Closer examination of the body convinced them that it had been mutilated by coming in contact with the ice in the river or by being crushed by the passing boats.

There was no mark by which the body could be identified. The man weighed about 150 pounds. He had a high forehead, eyes and was smooth shaven. The sleeve of a flannel shirt clung to his left arm and part of a pair of dark trousers with a blue stripe down the legs. One foot was an amputated one of good quality.

Henry M. Pierce, LL. D., who was the President of the Female College in this city for fifteen years until 1871, died on Tuesday night at Ocala, Fla. He was born in 1831, graduated from Waterville College in Maine and came to this city in 1856.

There were more men in the world like Halsey Corwin I wish I had a hundred daughters and that each could marry such a model man.

Mr. Leuterbach said that he hoped that the wedding, with all its good fellowship and gaiety, was but the introduction to a long life of happiness and prosperity for the Corwins and all their friends.

A Moving Occasion. The attachment to old things is an innate sentiment. With most persons even an old garment—if it was a good one—is cast aside reluctantly.

To-day we feel a natural sense of regret as we abandon the building at Broadway and Prince street, which has been our principal business home for the past twenty years.

Our firm was organized in November, 1874, by the consolidation of the firms of M. N. Rogers & Co. and Charles B. Peet & Co., who were the lineal descendants of clothing organizations dating back, in one case, to 1838.

Our immediate predecessors were manufacturers and wholesalers only. The consolidation added a retail department, and the first location of the present firm was at Broadway and Broome street—quarters which soon proved inadequate to the growing business.

The building at Broadway and Prince Street was completed in January, 1882, and we were its first occupants. The structure was then one of the most modern and imposing in the neighborhood, occupying the former site of a number of old New York dwellings, converted into fashionable retail shops, as well as the site of the Astor Estate offices on Prince Street.

It had as neighbors the Metropolitan Hotel opposite and the St. Nicholas Hotel two blocks below—two of New York's leading hosteleries.

The district, as a retail centre, has changed so materially that our branch stores, up-town and down-town, like lusty sons, have outgrown their parent in volume of business; but the "old man" as a retailer will be very much in evidence at the new store, while the manufacturing and the wholesaling departments will rejoice in larger quarters and increased facilities.

Despite the discomforts of late years caused by the overcrowding of some departments, there is a reluctance at pulling up stakes and leaving old associations.

What reputation we have made has been made here. Here we have had the fun of a lot of hard work and the satisfaction of developing a business of considerable renown.

The new building at Broadway and 18th Street is on the site of the old Star Theatre—once Wallack's. Architecturally the structure is a variation from the average warehouse; it is amply commodious, conveniently accessible, with corner entrances at both Broadway and Fourth Avenue.

We take advantage of the holiday to transfer the retail department to its new quarters, and the old customers of the Prince Street store will find their usual salesmen at their service on Monday morning.

Worth Reading. "You will find enclosed thirty-one one-cent stamps for one of Dr. Pierce's Medical Advertisers, cloth bound," writes James H. Crampton, Esq., of Sharpsburg, Washington Co., Md. "I took it for a friend of mine who is using your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I cannot praise your medicine too highly. I was in business in Baltimore and had rheumatism for three months; couldn't get up at all. I tried the best doctors I could get, but they did me no good. I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it cured me. I came home to Sharpsburg, and there were three cases of different diseases. I advised the patients to use Dr. Pierce's medicines, which they did, and all were cured."
