

MITCHELL SAYS HE'S PLEASED

MINERS OPERATORS PUT THE

MINERS CASE FAIRLY. Consults With His Assistants and May Have Reply—Operators Say the Miners Now Begin to Realize There Will Be No Yielding—Pitkin as a Drink.

WILKES-BARR, June 11.—When Mr. Mitchell, President of the miners' union, was asked this afternoon if he had any statement to make with reference to the correspondence between him and the presidents of the coal railroad companies, he said:

"They have made out the miners' case very well. I could wish no better exposure of our cause than the operators have made. It would be better if they could make a detailed reply to the Presidents' statement. Mr. Mitchell could not say how that would be. It was in conference with the three district Presidents of the mine workers' union the greater part of the day and this evening, and the impression prevails that within a few days Mr. Mitchell will issue a broadside response to this morning's statement from the operators.

As to West Virginia, Mr. Mitchell said that 28,000 miners in West Virginia had quit work and that the remaining 1,500 had quit. He said that he had telegraphed to employ counsel to defend the seven agitators who are under arrest in Fairmont, W. Va., for violation of an injunction. These men are William Morgan, a member of the National Board, and Huggerty, McKay, Springer, Noon, Pagan and Edwards, national organizers.

Concerning the publication of the anti-strike correspondence, Mr. Mitchell said that he had authorized this evening the following statement:

"The publication of the correspondence this morning was most timely. The letters had been reserved until the proper time and now they will have a most excellent effect on public opinion generally, and this will spread until the miners are impressed with the absolute determination of the operators to refuse all concessions. Many have been sceptical about the operators' position, but now that they will be convinced, it will not be long before they begin to give in and be ready to return to work. The letters show that the companies will fight to the last ditch for their right to manage their own properties. They show, too, that Mr. Mitchell did not care one cent for the public, but actually proposed that the coal operators should advance the price of coal to the consumer to give to the miners a percentage of that increase.

"Eventually, but not immediately, the miners will realize the position of their union. Then, when they do, will come the real fight, and the strike will be over. When that time comes the miners will find their true friends are their employers and not the agitators.

From those immediately concerned the opinion here is that, when the miners fully grasp the fact that the fight is on to the finish, the effect will be to make a small number of agitators out of the thousands who went into the strike recently and will in groups here and there break away and ask to go back to work, taking with them the danger of outbreaks, which every moment is in the air, will become acute.

There are few who believe that the Mine Workers' Union will give up the long fight to impose its will on the anthracite country without a resort to desperate measures. It is supposed to be up Mr. Mitchell's sleeve: A general strike among the bituminous miners and a sympathetic strike more or less general among the anthracite miners.

Railroad men in the anthracite country have shown some symptoms of unrest with the past week. They have adopted resolutions to support the miners' strike and the employees of the Delaware, Schuylkill and Susquehanna road struck rather than haul non-union coal or provisions and supplies for the miners. They were called upon by the union to return to their old jobs.

For several days neither non-union men nor supplies for non-union men have been carried over the Delaware, Schuylkill and Susquehanna line, and this morning eight of the engines on the line were sent to work at Fairport. They were stopped by a crowd of strikers and taken to return to their homes.

The anthracite region all day over the entire anthracite region has had its effect in keeping down the tendency to violence which is latent everywhere. Reports from all quarters are that there is now an impetus of peace and quietude. There was an incident at the William A. mine this morning, but it was quickly suppressed by strike leaders who hurried to the scene.

It was at the William A. mine yesterday that with slugs and with bullets and handkerchiefs for missiles was begun. An ugly riot gathered for the morning of the day, overlooking the colliery and began making demonstrations similar to those of yesterday. The William A. mine is just over the line in the anthracite region. The Sheriff started deputies to the scene, but before they arrived the strike leaders had scattered the crowd.

About Fort Susquehanna at Nanticoke this morning a peace that either is a sudden appearance, or is merely an ominous silence preceding an outbreak of some kind. Thus far the Susquehanna coal company has only refused work for the return to the mine. The mine is not yet open, however, and is now organizing its full force of fifteen, fifteen, and engineers. Tomorrow, or the day after, it is expected that the mine will be in operation. The mine is not yet open, however, and is now organizing its full force of fifteen, fifteen, and engineers.

operating the pumps. At Eagle Hill and Silver Creek collieries, the pumps, which have been driven off by strikers, have been driven off by strikers, and the collieries, which are the most valuable owned by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company, are also being rapidly drowned out.

PHYSICIAN TURNED BACK.

Medical Attention Denied to a Deputy Injured by Coal Strikers.

Fairmont, Pa., June 11.—Petty disturbances continue about the collieries in this neighborhood and it is learned that the companies will demand protection from the Sheriff, Burgess Hunt of Hughesstown and Burgess Huntington of Derry. Hunt has been asked to say positively whether it is possible for him to prevent the attacks which are occurring in their bailiwicks. If not, the Sheriff will be asked to station deputies at these places. Last night at the Connell colliery at Lackawanna, William Scott, a deputy, was chased and stoned by a crowd of Italians. He received three bad gashes on the head.

Burgess Huntington, who is also a doctor, was called to the colliery to attend the man, but the mob stoned the doctor, seized his horse and turning it around compelled him to return home without visiting the patient.

More serious trouble is daily expected as the Italians are in an angry mood and are heavily armed.

DEFIED INJUNCTION ORDER.

West Virginia Coal Strikers Go to Jail—Strike Not Spreading.

MONONGAHELI, W. Va., June 11.—These strike leaders were arrested here today for violating Judge Mazon's injunction: Thomas Haggerty, William Morgan, John Springer, Edward McKay, John Noon, John Edwards and Pagan. They were taken to the jail at Fairmont. They say they are willing to fight it out in the courts. The remainder of the strikers dispersed, being without leadership, and the strike is consequently ended. All the men say they were misled, and will return to work.

Fairmont, W. Va., June 11.—Sensational reports which gained circulation from Clarksville to the effect that the strikers are gaining ground in this region, which includes the Clarksville district, are denied by the operators who reside here. They showed official reports from every mine in the district and today it appears that the rumors are unfounded. Nearly all the mines in the district are owned by Fairmont and New York men, who are ready to work.

"Mother Jones" is in charge of the camp at Monongahela today, where everything is quiet, and no speaking or marching. The strikers are in a somewhat open ground, the crowd has dwindled to a hundred. The seven leaders who were arrested today for violating an injunction were sent to jail in a district of bond and a hearing set for tomorrow.

Every colliery which was in operation the day the strike order first went into effect, is in operation today, and out of 10,000 miners in the region not 300 are idle. An attempt to assassinate Supt. A. J. Rickman at the Monongahela mine failed last night, but the bullet did not strike him. The situation appears to be quiet, with small chances of a total suspension of operations.

June 11.—Three hundred striking miners from the Clarksville district, where few mines are idle, are marching toward Fairmont in a last effort to force the operators to come out to the pickets. One hundred of them wanted to return home yesterday, but were induced to stay in the collieries. Their employers say they cannot be brought out.

In lower West Virginia there is no change, and another effort is made to adjust matters at East Bank, where the operators expressed their willingness to pay the rate, but refused to treat with the national committee on the ground that they were not the proper persons to consult on the welfare of the district. The New River district has thousands of living coke ovens. No attempt is being made to keep them alive. At Thurmond the strikers are growing lax and some would not be surprised if the men to rush back to the mines when their holiday spree has ended.

NO MOVE TO END THE STRIKE.

Commissioner Wright and the Coal Presidents Deny That They Have Any Plan.

Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright had a conference lasting for more than two hours yesterday with President Thomas F. Fowler of the Ontario and Western Railroad, President W. H. Truesdale of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and John Markle, representing the independent coal operators. The conference took place in the office of the Ontario and Western Railroad, Beaver and William streets. Mr. Markle represented the independent operators at the conference before the Civic Federation. Mr. Wright asked a number of questions as to wages, conditions and other matters relating to the anthracite mines, all of which were answered freely, and he was allowed freedom to say any figures and statements he asked for.

When seen later Mr. Wright said that a number of questions as to wages, conditions and other matters relating to the anthracite mines, all of which were answered freely, and he was allowed freedom to say any figures and statements he asked for.

ANTHRACITE PRICES EASIER.

It Really Is Not So Severe, One Coal Dealer Admits—City Contract Let at $4.02.

The coal dealers said yesterday that the price of hard coal were a little easier than at this last week. One of the dealers said that he had purchased a cargo of sea coal for $3.25 a ton yesterday morning, while at this time last week he paid $6 a ton. A representative of Heiler & Co., hard and soft coal dealers, admitted that while anthracite was scarce, the reports as to its scarcity were greatly exaggerated.

THE NAVY SHORT OF COAL.

Miners' Strike May Interfere With the Proposed War Game.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The coal strike may interfere materially with the proposed war game to be played in August by the North Atlantic squadron and the Coast Artillery at the Long Island Sound approach to New York. Reports to the Navy Department show that there is barely enough coal on hand on the home station for present needs. Not only is the supply of the war game threatened, but the danger that many of the naval vessels now in commission will be unable to attend to their cruising duties.

A dozen or more men are suspected of the crime.

PAINTERS ASK MORE PAY.

Hear They'll Get Less Instead—Mass Meeting Called to See About It.

A mass meeting of painters belonging to the Amalgamated Association of Painters and Decorators has been called for to-night in Cooper Union to take action on the refusal of the employing painters to grant a demand for an increase of wages. The demand was made last March to go into effect Aug. 1.

The painters ask for an increase in pay from $1.50 to $4 a day for plain painters and from $4 to $10 a day for decorative painters. The union also demands that the employers should not only refuse the demand but also give notice that on June 15 the wages of the plain painters would be reduced from the present rate of $3.00 a day.

More than 125 employees of the Wisner Piano factory in Brooklyn were locked out on Monday morning after they had threatened to strike over a dispute about wages. Mr. Wisner says he paid the wages that any factory in New York or Brooklyn could pay, but does not propose to be forced to put the man back on salary.

WEDDING GIFTS IN DANGER.

MISS MURIEL SEABURY'S WEDDING AFTER THEM, BUT TOO LATE.

They'd Come to Mrs. Kopper's Home in Jersey, So There Was No Left—But for Threatened Supplementary Proceedings—Bill Excessive, Father Says.

Under an execution issued by Justice Murray of the Tenth District Municipal Court in favor of Dr. H. E. Humphries of 175 West Eighty-eighth street, Deputy Sheriff Max Altman attempted to levy yesterday afternoon on the wedding presents of Miss Caroline Kopper, the daughter of Col. Frederick Kopper, formerly commander of the Seventy-first Regiment, who was married last evening to Stewart W. Capen, a nephew of Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, in All Saints Episcopal church.

The action taken by Dr. Humphries was occasioned, he says, by his inability to collect a bill for $24 for medical services rendered a year ago to the bride of yesterday. Miss Kopper returned from Europe in the spring of 1901 with a bad attack of nervous prostration. Col. Kopper called in Dr. Humphries. The diagnosis was made by Miss Kopper for about six months and cured her.

The doctor says also that after a reasonable length of time he rendered a bill for $24 to Col. Kopper. Col. Kopper did not pay it. Then Dr. Humphries presented the bill to Miss Sarah Jenkins of 160 West Eighty-first street, with whom Miss Kopper had been living. She turned over to the house the wedding supper was served last evening. Miss Jenkins told Dr. Humphries that he had presented his bill to the wrong person.

Dr. Humphries concluded to make one more attempt to collect his bill, and presented it to Miss Kopper. She turned the bill over to her father, who also turned over to her the wedding supper. Dr. Humphries sued Miss Kopper. She paid no attention to the suit herself, but her father retained Lawyer William R. Bronk to defend it. The bill for the claim was first, that the bill should have been sent to Col. Kopper; second, that part of the alleged services was not rendered by Dr. Humphries; and third, that Miss Kopper, at the time Dr. Humphries was rendered, was incompetent to contract debts.

The case was decided by Justice Murray in favor of Dr. Humphries and judgment was entered on April 22. Under the judgment an execution was issued, and yesterday afternoon the deputy sheriff went to the residence of Miss Jenkins to levy on the wedding presents. He was told that all the presents had been sent to the future bride in Westfield, N. J. Then he was invited into the house to see for himself. Altman accepted the invitation, found nothing and returned the execution unsatisfied.

Arthur K. Wing, attorney for Dr. Humphries, said last night that there were more ways than one to collect a judgment, and he trusted that his next step would be to call up Mrs. Capen in supplementary proceedings.

Col. Kopper said, while he was having himself for the wedding, that he was to have the bill of paying his daughter's bills and would pay this when Dr. Humphries concluded to make his charges reasonable.

CHARITY IN POLICE STATIONS.

Cops Care for Hungry Wayfarers—One Couple Sent to Philadelphia.

A man who said he was Frank Page walked into the Charles street station last night with his three-year-old daughter and asked for lodging. He told the police he was on his way from Jacksonville, Fla., to Philadelphia and that he had landed from the harbor of Long Beach, California, in the afternoon without a cent. His expenses on board had taken all he had, he said, and he and the little girl were hungry.

He told such a straightforward story that the policemen passed the hat around and raised nearly $5. They went out and got him some supper, gave him the hat, and started him for Philadelphia, where he said his parents lived.

A woman who said she was Mrs. Alice Meinhardt, 36 years old, and her seven-year-old son, came to the Charles street station last night and asked for assistance. She said she and her son had not had anything to eat in three days and that they had been sleeping on the streets. She said her husband had deserted her and that she had been dispossessed from her rooms, at 730 East 157th street, Brooklyn, by a man who said he was her father and the boy, and the policemen, who were playing dominos in the back room, waited on them. When the boy finished his dinner he was given a job with a peddler and Mrs. Meinhardt was locked up on a charge of vagrancy.
