

WILLIAM M. LAFAN
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1903.
Subscriptions by Mail, Postpaid.

Readers of THE SUN leaving the city can have the Daily and Sunday editions mailed to their addresses (which may be changed when necessary) for 70 cents a month.

The Registration and the Election.
To-day is the first day of registration for the municipal election on the 31 of November.

Tammany distinctively is in a minority in New York. Only when it is able to draw votes from the decency and respectability of the town—when there is a square political issue between the Democratic and Republican parties—is it ever able to carry the town.

At the last election for Mayor, in 1901, the votes in the Manhattan borough were distributed thus:

Table with 3 columns: District, Total, and Percentage. Rows include East Side, West Side, and Fifth Avenue districts.

It will be seen that Tammany's only majority in these groups of Assembly districts was in the East Side, where it was 19,716.

It will be seen, as we remarked yesterday, that the great necessity is to keep down the Tammany majority in its East Side stronghold. In 1901, we may add, in the districts most occupied by the Jews, the Tammany vote was proportionately smallest.

It is significant that proportionately to the population of these three groups of districts the votes were only 13.29 per cent. in the East Side districts, to 18.34 per cent. in the West Side districts and 20.58 per cent. in the Fifth Avenue districts.

In the Fifth Avenue districts in 1901 there were 75,840 native males to 32,158 foreign born. On the West Side there were 179,663 native males to 89,102 foreign.

In the East Side there were only 268,734 native males to 272,794 foreign born. That is, of the 294,022 foreign born males in Manhattan, more than two-thirds were in the districts of the East Side.

In Brooklyn at the Mayoralty election in 1901 Tammany was beaten by 25,617 votes and in that borough there were, in 1901, of native males, 396,215, and of foreign born, 177,518.

If the citizens of New York prefer decency in their municipal government Tammany will be beaten badly on the 31 of November; but in order to vote for it they will have to register.

An Opportunity for a Philanthropist.
The various Constitutional and statutory provisions that exist in New York State to safeguard the rights and privileges of the citizens are sufficient and ample to protect the least important and least influential.

The reason for the almost inevitable delay in the conversion of South Africa into a vast productive agricultural country was tersely stated by Mr. Chamberlain, in his speech on the South African budget, last May.

Especially when the flag of truce is furled around a large cold bottle. The Hon. PATRICK A. COLLINS, Mayor of Boston, gave this friendly warning to the English guests:

The whole arrests made by the police in poolroom "raids" last summer in Manhattan were without support of law, and in utter defiance of it.

It is unfortunately true that the ordinary victims of such illegal acts are persons whose poverty or ignorance prevents them from asserting their rights and appealing to the proper tribunals for the redress the courts are sure to give.

and more readily accessible areas lie open to the settler.
Although still heavily handicapped by the complications of the labor question, the mining industry has taken a long jump toward its maximum output, shown in 1903.

and more readily accessible areas lie open to the settler.
Although still heavily handicapped by the complications of the labor question, the mining industry has taken a long jump toward its maximum output, shown in 1903.

The activity and the increase in the mining industry are reflected in the trade returns. Transvaal imports for the first six months of the year appear as about $57,000,000, as compared with about $21,000,000 for the same period of 1902.

The authoritative definition of the public rights by the courts would put a stop to the worst abuses that are suffered by the public now.

The founder of such a fund would earn both fame and gratitude.
It is now fairly certain that either Chinese or Indian coolies, though probably Chinese, will be brought in, under indenture, with provisions which will exclude them from permanent residence.

The Extraordinary Session.
A singular dissertation on the philosophy of the extra session appears in the editorial columns of our habitually sober contemporary, the Providence Journal.

The President had a choice of evils when he selected the date for the extra session of Congress. It would hardly do to call it before the end of the year, and if it were before the end of the year, it would be a source of embarrassment to many Congressmen.

It is easy to foresee that the President himself may be sorry that he called the session in November. He must expect to hear much about the postal scandals, and his ideas on the tariff are not so fixed that he can escape feeling for his own party's leaders who are forced to talk on the protective system while debating the approval of the Cuban treaty.

This is apparently written on the supposition that the Congress elections are to occur next month, instead of one year from next month, as is the case. But the members of the Fifty-eighth House were elected in 1902 and will meet for the first time as a new House when the extra session begins.

As to the personal comfort of the President, we do not imagine that he has considered it for an instant in fixing the date for the special session. If there is any discomfort in prospect for his administration in the postal scandals, it is bound to come in December, anyway, and a few weeks earlier or later will make no difference.

The time of the extra session was determined by considerations of convenience for the Senators and Representatives. They are called to Washington a few weeks earlier than usual in order that there may be time for the redemption of the country's obligations to Cuba, obligations which, as the Providence Journal correctly observes, appeal urgently to the President's sense of duty.

Notwithstanding the many obstacles presented by local conditions, industrial recuperation in the Transvaal is proceeding with a surprising rapidity. This, however, applies rather to the mining industry than to general industry.

The Surrender of the Honourables.
At the Red Bank, in Boston, the Hon. GEORGE FRIBBIE HOAR celebrated the glories of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery.

Especially when the flag of truce is furled around a large cold bottle. The Hon. PATRICK A. COLLINS, Mayor of Boston, gave this friendly warning to the English guests:

The whole arrests made by the police in poolroom "raids" last summer in Manhattan were without support of law, and in utter defiance of it.

It is unfortunately true that the ordinary victims of such illegal acts are persons whose poverty or ignorance prevents them from asserting their rights and appealing to the proper tribunals for the redress the courts are sure to give.

and more readily accessible areas lie open to the settler.
Although still heavily handicapped by the complications of the labor question, the mining industry has taken a long jump toward its maximum output, shown in 1903.

The activity and the increase in the mining industry are reflected in the trade returns. Transvaal imports for the first six months of the year appear as about $57,000,000, as compared with about $21,000,000 for the same period of 1902.

The authoritative definition of the public rights by the courts would put a stop to the worst abuses that are suffered by the public now.

The founder of such a fund would earn both fame and gratitude.
It is now fairly certain that either Chinese or Indian coolies, though probably Chinese, will be brought in, under indenture, with provisions which will exclude them from permanent residence.

The Extraordinary Session.
A singular dissertation on the philosophy of the extra session appears in the editorial columns of our habitually sober contemporary, the Providence Journal.

and more readily accessible areas lie open to the settler.
Although still heavily handicapped by the complications of the labor question, the mining industry has taken a long jump toward its maximum output, shown in 1903.

The activity and the increase in the mining industry are reflected in the trade returns. Transvaal imports for the first six months of the year appear as about $57,000,000, as compared with about $21,000,000 for the same period of 1902.

The authoritative definition of the public rights by the courts would put a stop to the worst abuses that are suffered by the public now.

The founder of such a fund would earn both fame and gratitude.
It is now fairly certain that either Chinese or Indian coolies, though probably Chinese, will be brought in, under indenture, with provisions which will exclude them from permanent residence.

The Extraordinary Session.
A singular dissertation on the philosophy of the extra session appears in the editorial columns of our habitually sober contemporary, the Providence Journal.

The President had a choice of evils when he selected the date for the extra session of Congress. It would hardly do to call it before the end of the year, and if it were before the end of the year, it would be a source of embarrassment to many Congressmen.

It is easy to foresee that the President himself may be sorry that he called the session in November. He must expect to hear much about the postal scandals, and his ideas on the tariff are not so fixed that he can escape feeling for his own party's leaders who are forced to talk on the protective system while debating the approval of the Cuban treaty.

This is apparently written on the supposition that the Congress elections are to occur next month, instead of one year from next month, as is the case. But the members of the Fifty-eighth House were elected in 1902 and will meet for the first time as a new House when the extra session begins.

As to the personal comfort of the President, we do not imagine that he has considered it for an instant in fixing the date for the special session. If there is any discomfort in prospect for his administration in the postal scandals, it is bound to come in December, anyway, and a few weeks earlier or later will make no difference.

The time of the extra session was determined by considerations of convenience for the Senators and Representatives. They are called to Washington a few weeks earlier than usual in order that there may be time for the redemption of the country's obligations to Cuba, obligations which, as the Providence Journal correctly observes, appeal urgently to the President's sense of duty.

Notwithstanding the many obstacles presented by local conditions, industrial recuperation in the Transvaal is proceeding with a surprising rapidity. This, however, applies rather to the mining industry than to general industry.

The Surrender of the Honourables.
At the Red Bank, in Boston, the Hon. GEORGE FRIBBIE HOAR celebrated the glories of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery.

Especially when the flag of truce is furled around a large cold bottle. The Hon. PATRICK A. COLLINS, Mayor of Boston, gave this friendly warning to the English guests:

The whole arrests made by the police in poolroom "raids" last summer in Manhattan were without support of law, and in utter defiance of it.

It is unfortunately true that the ordinary victims of such illegal acts are persons whose poverty or ignorance prevents them from asserting their rights and appealing to the proper tribunals for the redress the courts are sure to give.

and more readily accessible areas lie open to the settler.
Although still heavily handicapped by the complications of the labor question, the mining industry has taken a long jump toward its maximum output, shown in 1903.

The activity and the increase in the mining industry are reflected in the trade returns. Transvaal imports for the first six months of the year appear as about $57,000,000, as compared with about $21,000,000 for the same period of 1902.

The authoritative definition of the public rights by the courts would put a stop to the worst abuses that are suffered by the public now.

The founder of such a fund would earn both fame and gratitude.
It is now fairly certain that either Chinese or Indian coolies, though probably Chinese, will be brought in, under indenture, with provisions which will exclude them from permanent residence.

The Extraordinary Session.
A singular dissertation on the philosophy of the extra session appears in the editorial columns of our habitually sober contemporary, the Providence Journal.

The President had a choice of evils when he selected the date for the extra session of Congress. It would hardly do to call it before the end of the year, and if it were before the end of the year, it would be a source of embarrassment to many Congressmen.

It is easy to foresee that the President himself may be sorry that he called the session in November. He must expect to hear much about the postal scandals, and his ideas on the tariff are not so fixed that he can escape feeling for his own party's leaders who are forced to talk on the protective system while debating the approval of the Cuban treaty.

This is apparently written on the supposition that the Congress elections are to occur next month, instead of one year from next month, as is the case. But the members of the Fifty-eighth House were elected in 1902 and will meet for the first time as a new House when the extra session begins.

As to the personal comfort of the President, we do not imagine that he has considered it for an instant in fixing the date for the special session. If there is any discomfort in prospect for his administration in the postal scandals, it is bound to come in December, anyway, and a few weeks earlier or later will make no difference.

The time of the extra session was determined by considerations of convenience for the Senators and Representatives. They are called to Washington a few weeks earlier than usual in order that there may be time for the redemption of the country's obligations to Cuba, obligations which, as the Providence Journal correctly observes, appeal urgently to the President's sense of duty.

Notwithstanding the many obstacles presented by local conditions, industrial recuperation in the Transvaal is proceeding with a surprising rapidity. This, however, applies rather to the mining industry than to general industry.

The Surrender of the Honourables.
At the Red Bank, in Boston, the Hon. GEORGE FRIBBIE HOAR celebrated the glories of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery.

Especially when the flag of truce is furled around a large cold bottle. The Hon. PATRICK A. COLLINS, Mayor of Boston, gave this friendly warning to the English guests:

The whole arrests made by the police in poolroom "raids" last summer in Manhattan were without support of law, and in utter defiance of it.

It is unfortunately true that the ordinary victims of such illegal acts are persons whose poverty or ignorance prevents them from asserting their rights and appealing to the proper tribunals for the redress the courts are sure to give.

and more readily accessible areas lie open to the settler.
Although still heavily handicapped by the complications of the labor question, the mining industry has taken a long jump toward its maximum output, shown in 1903.

The activity and the increase in the mining industry are reflected in the trade returns. Transvaal imports for the first six months of the year appear as about $57,000,000, as compared with about $21,000,000 for the same period of 1902.

The authoritative definition of the public rights by the courts would put a stop to the worst abuses that are suffered by the public now.

The founder of such a fund would earn both fame and gratitude.
It is now fairly certain that either Chinese or Indian coolies, though probably Chinese, will be brought in, under indenture, with provisions which will exclude them from permanent residence.

The Extraordinary Session.
A singular dissertation on the philosophy of the extra session appears in the editorial columns of our habitually sober contemporary, the Providence Journal.

The President had a choice of evils when he selected the date for the extra session of Congress. It would hardly do to call it before the end of the year, and if it were before the end of the year, it would be a source of embarrassment to many Congressmen.

It is easy to foresee that the President himself may be sorry that he called the session in November. He must expect to hear much about the postal scandals, and his ideas on the tariff are not so fixed that he can escape feeling for his own party's leaders who are forced to talk on the protective system while debating the approval of the Cuban treaty.

This is apparently written on the supposition that the Congress elections are to occur next month, instead of one year from next month, as is the case. But the members of the Fifty-eighth House were elected in 1902 and will meet for the first time as a new House when the extra session begins.

As to the personal comfort of the President, we do not imagine that he has considered it for an instant in fixing the date for the special session. If there is any discomfort in prospect for his administration in the postal scandals, it is bound to come in December, anyway, and a few weeks earlier or later will make no difference.

The time of the extra session was determined by considerations of convenience for the Senators and Representatives. They are called to Washington a few weeks earlier than usual in order that there may be time for the redemption of the country's obligations to Cuba, obligations which, as the Providence Journal correctly observes, appeal urgently to the President's sense of duty.

Notwithstanding the many obstacles presented by local conditions, industrial recuperation in the Transvaal is proceeding with a surprising rapidity. This, however, applies rather to the mining industry than to general industry.

The Surrender of the Honourables.
At the Red Bank, in Boston, the Hon. GEORGE FRIBBIE HOAR celebrated the glories of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery.

Especially when the flag of truce is furled around a large cold bottle. The Hon. PATRICK A. COLLINS, Mayor of Boston, gave this friendly warning to the English guests:

The whole arrests made by the police in poolroom "raids" last summer in Manhattan were without support of law, and in utter defiance of it.

It is unfortunately true that the ordinary victims of such illegal acts are persons whose poverty or ignorance prevents them from asserting their rights and appealing to the proper tribunals for the redress the courts are sure to give.

and more readily accessible areas lie open to the settler.
Although still heavily handicapped by the complications of the labor question, the mining industry has taken a long jump toward its maximum output, shown in 1903.

The activity and the increase in the mining industry are reflected in the trade returns. Transvaal imports for the first six months of the year appear as about $57,000,000, as compared with about $21,000,000 for the same period of 1902.

The authoritative definition of the public rights by the courts would put a stop to the worst abuses that are suffered by the public now.

The founder of such a fund would earn both fame and gratitude.
It is now fairly certain that either Chinese or Indian coolies, though probably Chinese, will be brought in, under indenture, with provisions which will exclude them from permanent residence.

The Extraordinary Session.
A singular dissertation on the philosophy of the extra session appears in the editorial columns of our habitually sober contemporary, the Providence Journal.

The President had a choice of evils when he selected the date for the extra session of Congress. It would hardly do to call it before the end of the year, and if it were before the end of the year, it would be a source of embarrassment to many Congressmen.

It is easy to foresee that the President himself may be sorry that he called the session in November. He must expect to hear much about the postal scandals, and his ideas on the tariff are not so fixed that he can escape feeling for his own party's leaders who are forced to talk on the protective system while debating the approval of the Cuban treaty.

This is apparently written on the supposition that the Congress elections are to occur next month, instead of one year from next month, as is the case. But the members of the Fifty-eighth House were elected in 1902 and will meet for the first time as a new House when the extra session begins.

As to the personal comfort of the President, we do not imagine that he has considered it for an instant in fixing the date for the special session. If there is any discomfort in prospect for his administration in the postal scandals, it is bound to come in December, anyway, and a few weeks earlier or later will make no difference.

The time of the extra session was determined by considerations of convenience for the Senators and Representatives. They are called to Washington a few weeks earlier than usual in order that there may be time for the redemption of the country's obligations to Cuba, obligations which, as the Providence Journal correctly observes, appeal urgently to the President's sense of duty.

Notwithstanding the many obstacles presented by local conditions, industrial recuperation in the Transvaal is proceeding with a surprising rapidity. This, however, applies rather to the mining industry than to general industry.

The Surrender of the Honourables.
At the Red Bank, in Boston, the Hon. GEORGE FRIBBIE HOAR celebrated the glories of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery.

Especially when the flag of truce is furled around a large cold bottle. The Hon. PATRICK A. COLLINS, Mayor of Boston, gave this friendly warning to the English guests:

The whole arrests made by the police in poolroom "raids" last summer in Manhattan were without support of law, and in utter defiance of it.

It is unfortunately true that the ordinary victims of such illegal acts are persons whose poverty or ignorance prevents them from asserting their rights and appealing to the proper tribunals for the redress the courts are sure to give.

and more readily accessible areas lie open to the settler.
Although still heavily handicapped by the complications of the labor question, the mining industry has taken a long jump toward its maximum output, shown in 1903.

The activity and the increase in the mining industry are reflected in the trade returns. Transvaal imports for the first six months of the year appear as about $57,000,000, as compared with about $21,000,000 for the same period of 1902.

The authoritative definition of the public rights by the courts would put a stop to the worst abuses that are suffered by the public now.

The founder of such a fund would earn both fame and gratitude.
It is now fairly certain that either Chinese or Indian coolies, though probably Chinese, will be brought in, under indenture, with provisions which will exclude them from permanent residence.

The Extraordinary Session.
A singular dissertation on the philosophy of the extra session appears in the editorial columns of our habitually sober contemporary, the Providence Journal.

The President had a choice of evils when he selected the date for the extra session of Congress. It would hardly do to call it before the end of the year, and if it were before the end of the year, it would be a source of embarrassment to many Congressmen.

It is easy to foresee that the President himself may be sorry that he called the session in November. He must expect to hear much about the postal scandals, and his ideas on the tariff are not so fixed that he can escape feeling for his own party's leaders who are forced to talk on the protective system while debating the approval of the Cuban treaty.

This is apparently written on the supposition that the Congress elections are to occur next month, instead of one year from next month, as is the case. But the members of the Fifty-eighth House were elected in 1902 and will meet for the first time as a new House when the extra session begins.

As to the personal comfort of the President, we do not imagine that he has considered it for an instant in fixing the date for the special session. If there is any discomfort in prospect for his administration in the postal scandals, it is bound to come in December, anyway, and a few weeks earlier or later will make no difference.

The time of the extra session was determined by considerations of convenience for the Senators and Representatives. They are called to Washington a few weeks earlier than usual in order that there may be time for the redemption of the country's obligations to Cuba, obligations which, as the Providence Journal correctly observes, appeal urgently to the President's sense of duty.

Notwithstanding the many obstacles presented by local conditions, industrial recuperation in the Transvaal is proceeding with a surprising rapidity. This, however, applies rather to the mining industry than to general industry.

The Surrender of the Honourables.
At the Red Bank, in Boston, the Hon. GEORGE FRIBBIE HOAR celebrated the glories of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery.

Especially when the flag of truce is furled around a large cold bottle. The Hon. PATRICK A. COLLINS, Mayor of Boston, gave this friendly warning to the English guests:

The whole arrests made by the police in poolroom "raids" last summer in Manhattan were without support of law, and in utter defiance of it.

It is unfortunately true that the ordinary victims of such illegal acts are persons whose poverty or ignorance prevents them from asserting their rights and appealing to the proper tribunals for the redress the courts are sure to give.