

HID DYING MAN IN BACK ROOM

TOOK HIM HOME AFTER DARK TO EVADE THE POLICE.

Saloonkeeper in Bayonne's Hell's Kitchen says Richard Galvin was injured in a fist fight—friends think he was murdered for his week's wages.

After having his skull fractured in what is said to have been a fist fight resulting from a political argument, Richard Galvin was carried unconscious into the saloon of the Bayonne, N. J., and secreted in the back room for twenty-four hours. He was then carried to his home where the doctor who was called found him in a state of unconsciousness.

Richard Galvin was about 32 years old, and boarded with Mrs. Breslin, at 100 Avenue E, Bayonne. This avenue runs along the tracks of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; it is lined with shanties, and is notorious as the hang-out of one of the toughest gangs in Bayonne. Bat McSweeney's saloon is at 101 Avenue E. It is said by the police to be a meeting place for hooligans who travel by the Central of New Jersey.

According to the story told by McSweeney, Galvin entered his saloon about 8 o'clock on Saturday evening. He had known McSweeney for a number of years, and as he stepped up to the bar he said:

"Say, Mac, will you treat the bunch for 50 cents?" McSweeney lined the drinks up on the bar, and told Galvin said:

"Here's to Brady, Fagan and McClellan, three good Irish Democrats." Doper McCarthy took exception to McClellan's name. He and Galvin got into a hot argument and then adjourned to the sidewalk to settle it with their fists.

A few minutes later Thomas O'Brien followed Galvin to the back room where Galvin was lying unconscious on the pavement. He was carried into the back room of the saloon, and though he remained unconscious and his eyes were closed, from his mouth and ears McSweeney did not seem to be a doctor or for the police. He said that he thought Galvin was merely in a drunken stupor.

The unconscious and dying man was left lying on the floor of the back room until after 10 o'clock on Sunday, when four hours after he had been injured. Then four men carried him to his boarding house and told Mrs. Breslin, the landlady, that he had had a cold and was to drink and had hurt himself by falling.

Mrs. Breslin sent for a doctor, Dr. Cook responded and saw that Galvin had fractured skull, and could live only a few hours. He notified the police, and an ambulance was summoned from the Bayonne Hospital. Galvin died at 5 o'clock yesterday morning without regaining consciousness.

Detective Griffin, with two policemen, arrested McSweeney in his saloon early yesterday morning. McCarthy was captured on Avenue E after a stiff fight, and he had to be handcuffed before he could be taken to the station house. O'Brien was supposed to be living in McCarthy's home. When the police tried to get in McCarthy's father refused to open the door and said that he would "blow the roof" if the first man who tried to break in. Detective Griffin kicked in the door. McCarthy's father didn't do anything, neither was O'Brien. The three prisoners were arraigned before Recorder Lazarus yesterday morning and held without bail for examination on Wednesday morning.

The police say that McCarthy, though only 18 years old, is a dangerous character, and that he has been arrested for various crimes before, but through political influence has been able to escape trial. McSweeney's story is believed by the police, but that Galvin's relatives have any faith in it. They say that Galvin was a quiet, inoffensive man, who would rather run than fight, and that he would never have gone outside of McSweeney's saloon to fight with McCarthy. They point to the fact that McSweeney kept Galvin in the back room for twenty-four hours, though he never regained consciousness, and the blood was trickling from his nose and ears, and also that it was not until after dark that McSweeney had him carried to his home.

McCarthy has refused to make any statement. Daniel Hartigan, a cousin of the murdered man, says that Galvin had been paid off on Saturday afternoon, and that after paying his landlady he had about $10 when he left his boarding house. When he was searched his clothes only a few dimes were found. His friends think that he was assaulted, murdered and his body was carried to the back room of the saloon.

CARBOIC ACID FOR TWO

Woman Drank Half-Hour Prevented From Drinking the Rest.

Mrs. Mary O'Brien, 59 years old, of 119 East Fourteenth street, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid at her home yesterday afternoon, and only the timely arrival of Ambulance Sampson Reed of Bellevue Hospital and Detective Vance of the East Twenty-second street station prevented her husband, Lawrence, from following her example.

The woman was found barely alive by her husband in her apartments. After notifying the police, he discovered a half bottle of acid, with a note beside it, which read:

"This is for you." Dr. Reed knocked the bottle out of O'Brien's hand when he attempted to drink the contents.

Cut Own Head Off. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 9.—A Swede named Carlson committed suicide early this morning by cutting his head off with an axe. He placed his head upon one of the cellar stairs in his South Third street residence. Finding the stairs as a chopping block, the man swung the axe three times. Two blows cut gashes in head before the third cut through his neck.

Man Blown to Pieces by Dynamite. ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Michael Callaghan, the quarry foreman of the Portland Cement Works, was blown to pieces this afternoon by an explosion of a half pound stick of dynamite. This stick had failed to explode, and Callaghan, with the stick in his hand, was trying to remove the cap, while a Hungarian laborer was tugging at the fuse. The Hungarian was badly injured.

WELCHES ON $700 BET.

James Burns, a York street, Jersey City, saloonkeeper, who wagered $700 with Frank Cairnes and three other Republican politicians that Police Justice James J. Murphy, the Democratic candidate for Mayor, would be elected, has served notice on George Henry, the stakeholder, through his counsel, Joseph M. Noonan, not to give up the money. Henry is warned that he will be held personally responsible for the $700 if he pays the wager. He still has the money.

Burns explained his wagering by saying that others who shared the bet with him refused to make good, and he could not afford to stand the entire loss.

COSTLY BLAZE IN BROOKLYN.

Candle Probably Started Fire Which Destroyed a Big Factory.

The five story brick factory building of Herman Behr & Co., 31 to 39 Tiffany Place, Brooklyn, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The company manufactures ruly paper, glue, sandpaper and pumice stone. The fire was discovered in the mixing room on the second floor, where two electricians had been at work on the lighting. The workmen were at dinner at the time and probably this prevented loss of life.

Four alarms were sent in. These brought twelve engines, four hook and ladder companies, the water tower and the fireboat South Lee. Deputy Chief Murray was in charge of the firemen and Capt. Knipe had charge of the police arrangements.

The firemen worked at a disadvantage, as there was a low pressure and a scanty supply of water. Besides this, the street is narrow. Deputy Chief Murray had the large building surrounded by his firemen, and the fire was kept from spreading. At one time it was feared that the new public bath on Hicks street, which was open on a single night, was doomed, but it escaped without damage. The firemen prevented the flames from extending to the six story brick factory, which was on the same block, and which was filled with stock.

The wall paper factory of Waltham & Co., at 29 Tiffany place, was damaged to the extent of $1,000 by water. The loss on the sandpaper factory is estimated at about $700,000. Ten years ago the entire block on Tiffany place between Harrison and Grand streets was destroyed by fire, the damage being $1,000,000.

WHO IS WILLIAM BROWN?

Magistrate Tells Police to Look for Sweetheart of Woman Found Dead in Brooklyn.

Magistrate Furlong in the Gates avenue police court, Brooklyn, declined yesterday to give a decision in the case against Percy Jones, a cabman, who was charged with causing the death of Susie Davis, a young woman, who, on Monday night, was found dumped out of an upper window in the lively stable of Lubben Bros. in Van Brunt street near Broadway.

The Magistrate told Police Captain O'Reilly of the Ralph avenue station that he thought the police official might get further information from the young woman's relatives and also learn something about William Brown, who was supposed to be the dead woman's sweetheart. The case was adjourned until Nov. 23.

JACOB RIIS SEES GOV. ODELL.

He Wants Randall's Island House of Refuge Removed to a Farm.

ALBANY, Nov. 9.—Jacob Riis had a talk with Gov. Odell this afternoon regarding the future of the Randall's Island House of Refuge, which practically is a private institution. Mr. Riis wants the refuge changed to a farm in Westchester county, which would mean an expenditure of about $1,000,000, but he says he would like to have control of the institution by the State.

WHO WILL GET THIS STOCK?

Block of Electric Canal Mule Stock Held for Somebody.

ALBANY, Nov. 9.—Politicians in Albany are wondering for whom is being held a block of stock in the corporation which controls the patents on the "electric canal mule," which certain State officers seem over anxious to procure a great success. Advocates of the large canal are looking anxiously at the attempts to influence some State officer in favor of the "electric canal mule," although there is no disposition to adversely criticize its practicality.

The promoters of the "electric canal mule" have arranged to begin Wednesday, over the Erie Canal, for State Engineer Bond and Superintendent of Public Works Boyd, to afford a chance to the State to install the "electric canal mule" system, but for some reason the trip has been abandoned.

The directors are: Franklin H. Giddings, Howard H. Nieman, Susan E. Fitzgerald, Elizabeth B. Bartholow, Mary K. Starkey, Edith M. Homer, J. G. Phelps Stokes, Joseph N. Franolini, W. Kirkpatrick Bryce, Gino C. Sponanza and Samuel Thorne, Jr., of New York city. Everett S. Osborn, of Albany, and Seymour L. Cromwell of Bernardsville, N. J.

ORDER TO EXAMINE MME. PATTI

IN KENNEDY'S SUIT FOR $7,000 FOR RAISING GUARANTEE.

Hearing Set, Lawyer Vause Says, for Nov. 10, Before Supreme Court Justice Amend—Says He Never Raised Fund.

John J. Vause, the lawyer representing Joseph S. Kennedy of the firm of Kennedy & Moon, custom house brokers, said yesterday that the summons served on Mme. Patti on Saturday night was not in a suit to recover $100 from Mme. Patti for brokerage services, but in a suit for $7,000, in which an order to examine Mme. Patti has been obtained.

The $7,000, Mr. Kennedy says, is due him for trying to arrange a loan of $40,000 which was refused by the Mayor. He says that the Mayor, Mayor Robert Graubart authorized Mr. Kennedy to raise $40,000, which was to be a guarantee to Mme. Patti for her last eight concerts in this country. Lawyer Vause says that Mr. Kennedy raised the money after considerable difficulty, but in the meantime Mr. Graubart incorporated a company and didn't take up the loan. Mayor Mayor Robert Graubart representative, said yesterday that Kennedy had never been asked to raise $40,000 for Mme. Patti or Mr. Graubart and that he didn't even have a claim for brokerage services against Mme. Patti.

"In the first place," said Mr. Vause, yesterday, "we want to deny that there was any violence in serving a summons on Mme. Patti on Saturday night. When she came out of the Savoy Hotel the summons was handed to her, but she didn't take it and it was placed on her shoulder. Mr. Kennedy was near by at the time and the City Marshal, who had the summons, did not grab her, as has been stated. A summons was served the same night on Mr. Graubart on a single bill of exchange on an officer of the Robert Graubart company."

"Long before Mme. Patti came over here Mr. Graubart went to Mr. Kennedy and asked him to serve a bill of exchange, which was to be guaranteed $5,000 for each of the eight concerts, and she wouldn't make the contract with Mr. Graubart until the money was put up. Mr. Kennedy raised the $5,000 and his expenses if he raised the money."

Mr. Kennedy got a banking house in this city to put up the money as a security company to go on the bond. When he had completed everything he told Mr. Graubart that he had the money and came down the next day and the whole thing would be settled. Mr. Graubart didn't show up after that and the loan fell through. "We learned later that while Mr. Kennedy had been negotiating this loan Mr. Graubart had been arranging for the incorporation of a company known as the Robert Graubart company, which was to be the guarantor of the company was filed in New Jersey just about the time that Mr. Kennedy had arranged for the loan."

"The summons that has been served on Mme. Patti is an examination before trial. The hearing is set for Nov. 16 in Part II of the Supreme Court, before Justice Amend. Mme. Patti will be examined and if she fails to appear we will get an order for contempt of court."

When Mr. Vause was asked whether he thought Mr. Mayor had ridiculed Kennedy's suit and said it was all a joke.

Mr. Kennedy is never asked to raise $40,000, but he is asked to raise $5,000 for each of the eight concerts, which have been delayed pending the decision of the Federal authorities on the proposal to extend the pier line of the North River, and would cost about $12,000,000; new Police Headquarters, $1,000,000; additional sources of water supply, $50,000,000; and the Manhattan Bridge, $65,000,000.

"I don't find myself in the Board of Estimate, Tammany will have the spending of almost the entire $140,000,000 the city can borrow as a result of assessing real property at full values. When Mr. Low took office the debt-incurring capacity of the city was reduced to about $90,000,000."

PREPARING THE LOVEFEAST.

McCarren Dinner May Reconcile Brooklyn Democratic Factions.

Preparations for the banquet to be given at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, on Monday evening, Nov. 30, in honor of Senator McCarren and in recognition of his services in the cause of the Kings County Democracy in the late campaign, are already well under way. The committee of arrangements is as follows: William A. Doyle, chairman in the Seventh Assembly district; Col. Michael J. Cummings, secretary; James J. Williams, in the Fifth Assembly district; William R. McGuire, James S. Regan, Conrad Hasepuff, Dennis Winters, and Arthur C. Salmon.

Many of the speakers are hoping themselves toward a general recognition of Senator McCarren as the new leader of the organization, and it is expected that almost complete unity will be established before the big demonstration in his honor takes place. The list of speakers has not yet been made out, but it will probably include the Hon. Hugh McLaughlin all through the campaign, but is strongly opposed to Kennedy's national hostilities, especially with a State and national election impending.

It will not surprise observant politicians if the McCarren banquet will be a veritable Democratic lovefeast, with the veteran leader-emeritus himself as the bright particular star of the occasion.

Illinois Democrats to Present J. R. Williams for President.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Congressman James R. Williams of Illinois is the man upon whom the Illinois Democracy expects to present a united front for President, in the next Democratic National Convention. This announcement was made yesterday by the local and State leaders representing the various factions of the State party organization, and has the indorsement of Mayor Harrison.

Wisdom Crith Aloud.

"Hi, Sport!" cried Tom Sharkey from the top of his lungs, "on election day you had a floor about me, but when it came to election day you went to get on board with us. I was looking for a little piece of my good judgment. Hit it up. Whenever you want to be put in right, drop in on the smaller lead, steer you there. I'm not so swelled that I'm snappin' the chest buttons off my clothes. I'm just tellin' you this to clear me out. See?"

Cost of Elections to Supreme Court Bench.

ALBANY, Nov. 9.—William J. Kelly, who was elected a Supreme Court Justice in the Brooklyn district, has certified to the Secretary of State that his election cost him $4,150, most of which went to county expenses.

Mayor Brush's Election Expenses, $1.60.

MOUNT VERNON, Nov. 9.—According to a bill filed to-day with the City Clerk, it cost Dr. Edward F. Brush only $1.50 to be elected Mayor of Mount Vernon by the largest majority ever known. The money was paid out for postage stamps. Two years ago Dr. Brush spent several thousand dollars and was defeated by about twenty votes.

Profess Over Jones-Ahearn Vote.

The Aldermen will organize to-day as county canvassers. It is understood that the election of S. H. Jones, the Republican candidate in the Twenty-second district, who defeated James Ahearn, Tam, by 156 votes, will be protested. That event there will be a scrutiny of the ballots.

HALT ON ALL NEW CITY WORK

MAYOR TELLS HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS TO DROP IT.

$180,000,000 of Expenditure That Tammany Will Have to Pay for About—Subways, Docks, Municipal Building, Court House and Water Lands Included.

Mayor Low was back at the City Hall yesterday. Of the rumor that Gen. Horace Porter intended resigning the Ambassadorship to France and that Mr. Low would be appointed in his place he had nothing to say.

The Mayor intimated that from now until the end of his term he will devote himself to clearing up routine matters of local improvements and thorough expenditures which have accumulated in the three weeks that the Board of Estimate has spent in campaigning. The Mayor was inclined to drop entirely all further interest or effort in the many big municipal improvements upon which the administration has been at work. Although personally he would like to see some of them so advanced as to commit the city to carrying them out, he realizes that he could at any time be outvoted in the Board of Estimate, which is now controlled by Tammany. For that reason he has directed his heads of departments to start no new work. Mr. Low has resolved not even to appoint a new Commissioner of Accounts to succeed Rep. Russell.

Consequently it will be left to the incoming Tammany government to decide whether or not the many contemplated improvements on which a large amount of preliminary work has been done shall be proceeded with or abandoned. The cost of these improvements (including about $60,000,000 for the rapid transit extensions, the second tunnel to Brooklyn, the joining of the Broadway car line and the moving platform from Williamsburg Bridge to the Battery) would reach about $180,000,000. These are the items: A new and multiple building and terminal station, to cost about $50,000,000; the Chelsea dock improvements, which have been delayed pending the decision of the Federal authorities on the proposal to extend the pier line of the North River, and would cost about $12,000,000; new Police Headquarters, $1,000,000; additional sources of water supply, $50,000,000; and the Manhattan Bridge, $65,000,000.

CARS CRASH ON BROADWAY.

A 23D STREET CAR HURLED OFF TRACK AND A DOZEN HURT.

Many Cut by Glass and Bruised—Motorman of Southbound Broadway Car Says Brakes Wouldn't Work—Man Picked Up on Fender, Another Under Trucks.

Over a dozen persons were injured yesterday forenoon in a collision between a Broadway car and a Twenty-third street car at Broadway and Twenty-third street. The Broadway car, in charge of Motorman Martin Kane, was southbound and should have stopped to allow the Twenty-third street car, going west, to cross the tracks. The Broadway car was one of the heavy new cars and, according to Motorman Kane, the brakes did not work properly. It crashed into the westbound Twenty-third street car, crowded with women shoppers, and knocked it clean off the track. Nearly all of the windows of the crocstown car were smashed, part of the side was stove in and the back platform was knocked out.

Standing on the rear platform of the Twenty-third street car when the collision occurred were Edwin Desmonieux of 7 West Twenty-third street, who was inside the car, and Henry Kegerler of 328 East Twenty-seventh street. Both men were knocked over the gate, Desmonieux falling in front of the Broadway car and Kegerler rolling in between the trucks of the same car. Persons who saw the accident thought that both would be crushed to death, as the car had not yet come to a stop.

Policeman Kurts, who is stationed at the crossing, rushed to extricate them, but before he got to them Kegerler had managed to roll out the other side of the Broadway car. Desmonieux was carried to the hospital and his life saved in that manner. Both men were badly cut and bruised.

Mrs. Desmonieux's arms were badly bruised and she became hysterical when she found that her husband was not on the car after the accident. It was some time before the police succeeded in bringing the two together again. Their injuries were attended to by Dr. Erskine of the New York Hospital and they then went home.

A lot of passengers on the Twenty-third street car were cut by glass and bruised, but the police got the names of only a few. Three injured persons were taken to the New York Hospital. They were Lydia Miller, 345 East Thirty-eighth street, hand cut; Albert Blackwell, 372 Pulaski street, Brooklyn, bruised on left arm, and Margaret Mead, 143 Greary avenue, Mount Vernon, who had her left arm injured and went home, as did John Entwistle of 578 West 183d street, whose left eye was cut.

The police say that fully a dozen other persons were injured slightly. Only one person was hurt on the Broadway car. The smash-up blocked the Broadway and the crocstown lines for over thirty minutes, and a wrecking crew was needed to remove the crocstown car.

The Wanamaker Store

Men's Winter Overcoats

Saturday was cold and snappy. Gave promise of a still colder Sunday. Ought to have seen the men hustle to buy overcoats. You'd think that WANAMAKER'S was the only place in town to get them.

Hardly that, but men do know where the best overcoats are to be had, in quality and style, at given prices.

Like to have you come in and look at the particular overcoat in each of these groups that fits you.

If you're in the market at all for a coat, you'll be apt to take one of these:

At $15, Oxford mixed Overcoats, 44 inches long; full back; satin sleeve-linings; velvet collars; heavy serge body-lining. The best $18 value you ever saw.
At $20, Oxford mixed and black velour Overcoats; satin shoulders; wool body-lining; silk velvet collars. The best value we ever offered at the price.
At $25 and $30, Silk-lined Overcoats—the kind you don't see every day. Material is Oxford mixed and black velours. Finely tailored, and comparable with fine custom tailoring at double the price. Other Overcoats up to $55. Second floor, Fourth avenue.

Sumptuous Black Crepons

At Half Price and Less

These are the richest and most beautiful Silk-and-Wool Crepons that ever came from France. Not only are the designs most exquisite, but many have figurings of velvet to add to their charm.

The whole secret of the offering is the fact that such elegance is expensive, and merchants naturally touched them very sparingly, and the time came when the importer had to do something radical.

He did it, and we got the splendid collection practically at our own price. Public appreciation of these superb stuffs will change in a jiffy today, for we have marked these

$3.50 to $6.50 French Crepons
At $1.50 a Yard
